Questions for Boys.
Gas for Chicago.
Garbage, Out and In.
Jobs and Santa Claus.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

WILLIAM MARGARETTEN, president of Margaretten & Co., of Perth Amboy, N. J., writes:

"A party whose card is enclosed called at my office today and endeavored to interest me in the purchase of land at 'Pinewald.' One of the outstanding points in his argument was that Arthur Brisbane and Adolph Ochs have purchased land there, and that Arthur Brisbane highly recommended this land at a banquet."

This writer never recommended the purchase of any particular real estate anywhere, never heard of "Pinewald," which may be highly desirable. Nevertheless whoever quotes this writer as recommending anything for sale is mistaken or worse.

BOYS PASSING the Edison examination must tell "the value of an acre of farming land in Iowa, what should be done with Communistic propaganda, the proper working of the theory of survival on a desert island," etc.

THE QUESTIONS are not easy. Nobody in Iowa knows exactly what an acre of farming land is worth. Neither Mr. Edison nor our government knows what is to be done with "Communistic propaganda." We shall have to wait and see. It depends on prosperity.

AS TO THE theory of survival of the fittest on a desert island, it would depend on cocoanut trees, goats, physical strength and a "man Friday." Winning the examination would not mean, probably, survival of the fittest.

THROUGH a $100,000,000 pipe line, the Chicago Gas Light and Coke Company is bringing natural gas from Texas to Chicago. And hereafter Chicago, instead of paying for so many cubic feet of gas, will pay for so many "heat units." There is more heat in natural gas than in manufactured gas, and it seems just to the company that consumers should pay more. The Illinois Commerce Commission agrees with that theory.

Some Chicago anarchist will probably suggest that since God Almighty made the gas, and the company has nothing to do but let it run through a pipe, it seems hardly necessary to make an extra charge, once the pipe is paid for.

A NEW KIND of bootlegging appears in New York City. Scows, belonging to the city, operated by city employes, go out to sea, carrying ashes, dead horses and other garbage, to be thrown into the ocean.

And, returning from the deep waters, they sometimes bring another kind of garbage, namely bottled liquor, with them.

One of these scows returning from its toil, seized by prohibition agents, was found bringing back $120,000 worth of liquors.

THE GOVERNMENT says it will seize the $75,000 steel barge although it belongs to the City of New York.

That city will have to explain which of its intelligent politicians combined pleasure with business, hauling out one kind of garbage, hauling in another. Every employe on the scow knew of the law-breaking and profited, of course.

REVELATIONS IN connection with rioting in the prison at Auburn, N. Y., throw light on our "prohibition age." It is testified that prisoners made moonshine whisky in their cells, drank it, and, dead drunk, were put into their berths by prison guards, presumably rewarded for their trouble.

Calvin Coolidge says no act of Congress can control what men drink.

Congress also has difficulty controlling what men drink.

TURKISH TERRITORY was invaded by savage tribesmen, coming out of Persia. Kemal Pasha threw his troops into Persia to get them, and killed thousands of them.

To Persia's demand for damages "for invasion," Kemal Pasha replies, "Come and get the damages."

WHAT INTERESTS students of history is the fact that Kemal has announced his intention to find nomadic tribal life in Turkey. It seems strange to think that millions of human beings are still ready to fight to the death for the right to wander up and down in the earth, with no settled habitation.

AMONG OTHER things, including lowest wheat and cotton prices, and a general uncertainty, our nation is "enjoying" the worst drought in its record.

Washington officials say the dry spell is unparalleled, in records reaching back 50 years.

FARMERS AND truck gardeners have planted, ploughed up and replanted crops.

Perhaps the drought will mean higher prices for some farm and garden products. Unfortunately, as usual, the higher prices will be due to the fact that the farmer hasn't the goods to sell.

BIG DIRIGIBLE MOORED AT MONTREAL AIRPORT

Airship Delayed by Damage In Storm During Last Lap of Record Journey

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN,
International News Service.

MONTREAL, Aug. 1.—Another brilliant page was written in dirigible history today when the R-100, Great Britain's challenge to Germany's pre-eminence in lighter-than-air navigation, successfully completed a trans-Atlantic flight from Cardington, England, to the St. Hubert Air Station near Montreal.

The R-100 was sighted from the airport here at 2:27 o'clock this morning, 75 hours and 42 minutes after she left Cardington. Because it was dark at the time, the world's biggest dirigible did not moor to the powerful million dollar mooring tower here until 5:37 a. m., 78 hours and 52 minutes after she departed from Cardington.

SETS RECORD

In spite of the fact she was delayed many hours by storms and damage to her tail fin, the R-100 established a new record for East to West crossing of the Atlantic to North America. Due to the route taken, however, the distance was considerably shorter than most previous dirigible flights from Europe to America.

Until the very last lap of her journey, she was making splendid time. Then she encountered damage to the fabric of her stabilizing fin, and stormy weather conditions—a combination of events that forced her to greatly reduce her speed.

DAMAGE NEGLIGIBLE

Damage to the fin's fabric was negligible, officers of the ship said upon her arrival. Squadron Leader R. S. Booth, commander of the R-100 on the trip, said the big dirigible "came through in fine condition." He characterized the

MOORE SHUNS PROMOTION

A vacation looked better to Police Lieut. Harry Moore, of the North Side, than an acting inspectorship of the Carrick district. He declined the appointment, with the acquiescence of his superiors, and Lieut. Charles Cahill has been appointed. Yesterday Cahill was transferred from Mt. Washington to the North Side.

The new appointee will succeed Inspector Dennis Hennessey, who was moved to the South Side district after Public Safety Director James M. Clark had "broken" Inspector John J. McArdle. Hennessey today assumed charge of the South Side after clearing up his business at the Carrick station.

Lieut. Moore in declining the appointment as acting inspector stated that he had made all arrangements for his vacation and, rather than change his plans, he would decline the appointment, if that was satisfactory to his superiors, Police Superintendent P. P. Walsh said.

COAL RIB PRICE HELD MILLION TOO HIGH

Experts Put $340,000 as Top Figure; Company to Seek Return of $1,275,000

The Pittsburgh Coal Company is asking Mt. Lebanon township and some of its property owners, under threats to remove surface support, $935,000 to $1,105,000 in excess of the fair value of coal pillars it is offering to sell, according to coal experts and mining engineers.

The maximum recovery from this move of the coal company to dispose of coal supports in its "retreat" from this field is $1,275,000, according to its own tonnage estimates. This is based on the price of 75 cents a ton offered to individual property holders.

This is exorbitant under normal trading conditions, regardless of the public interest involved and the element of public safety and property damage, according to authorities.

They say a fair price for the coal necessary to assure maximum surface support would be from $170,000 to $340,000.

SET AT 10 CENTS TON

They declare that a fair value for the coal in place would be 10 to 20 cents a ton. According to R. F. Hoffacker, Park Building, coal mining engineer and a leading valuation expert of the Pittsburgh district, a good value for this coal in place is 20 cents a ton, and five to 10 cents less per ton is a fair value.

The coal is not worth more than 10 cents a ton in place, declared Attorney Harold M. Irons, formerly assistant city solicitor and an expert in condemnation proceedings.

"That is far more than the valuations on this coal contended for by the company in fixing county assessments," he asserted.

According to estimates from Pittsburgh Coal Company engineers obtained yesterday through C. E. Lesher, vice president of the company, there are approximately 3,400,000 tons of coal unmined in its field underlying Mt. Lebanon. While a portion of this mineral area comprises an ex-

REDS ORDERLY, DECRY WAR

Police of the Pittsburgh district were prepared to prevent disorder among Communists who today are celebrating "International Anti-War Day."

Throughout the world, especially in Europe and some sections of South America, police and army officials were watching radical leaders, in many cases causing "preventative arrests" by locking them up over the great Red holiday.

Three men and three girls, arrested late yesterday for distributing Communist literature in East Pittsburgh, were fined by Burgess Beech last night.

EDISON GENIUS TEST WON BY FRECKLED LAD

Rhode Island Youth of 17 Far in Front; Big Interest In Desert-Rescue Problem

By LAURENCE DUMOND,
International News Service.

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Aug. 1.—Arthur O. Williams, Jr., of East Providence, R. I., today was declared the winner in the Thomas A. Edison scholarship contest to find a "genius," for which boys from 48 states and the District of Columbia competed.

The scholarship will provide Williams with a full college education, free of charge.

FRECKLED VALEDICTORIAN

Williams is a freckle-faced youngster of 17. His father is chief clerk of the Providence Gas Company.

Arthur graduated from East Providence High School in June, and was valedictorian of his class.

For several summers, he said, he had been working to save money with which to attend college. He says he will go to Massachusetts Tech at Cambridge, where Wilber Huston, last year's winner, is a student. Williams will specialize in physics.

Charles Edison, son of the donor of the scholarship, said last year's contest was close, but this year there was no question as to who was the winner, adding:

"Williams' information on current events and general information was remarkable, while

BLAST BURNS 12 IN OHIO MINE

TILTONVILLE, O., Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Twelve miners were injured, one critically, by the explosion of a keg of powder in the Red Bird Mine of the Collieries Company, of Cleveland, near here today.

All the injured were taken to a Martins Ferry hospital.

The blast occurred about a mile from the entrance as a crew was preparing to clean out slate and stone that fell last Wednesday.

Elvin McLaughlin, 38, was reported in critical condition. The others were expected to recover.

Seth Williams, pit boss, said a broken electric wire ignited the powder keg.

ALLEGHENY LEADERS CALLED

Philadelphia and Luzerne Recounts Also to Come Up As Hearings Start Tuesday

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The Nye senatorial campaign funds committee will resume its investigation into the recent Pennsylvania senatorial primary Tuesday, with public hearings in the Capitol, Senator Nye (Rep.), of North Dakota, the chairman, announced today.

He said subpenas would be issued tomorrow for a number of witnesses, including state officials who had charge of the recounts in Philadelphia, Allegheny and Luzerne Counties. He declared that he understood the recounts had shown little or no change in the senatorial vote in these counties.

While the primary campaign was still in progress, the Senate Campaign Fund Investigation Committee was active.

Senator Nye came here May 15 for a personal survey of political conditions. At that time, the primary campaign wa sin its last stages.

Nye held a conference with members of the board of registration commissioners and questioned the board particularly about the 12,000 names stricken off the books at the preceding primary election. He also conferred with United States Attorney Louis Graham and District Attorney Andrew T. Park.

Later, when the quiz was resumed in Washington, both Commissioners Armstrong and McGovern were summoned. Armstrong asked a postponement and appeared before the committee after the election.

Since, other investigators have appeared in Allegheny County and various candidates were called to tell of their campaign expenditures.

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Aug. 1.—(INS.)—Two youths were dead today and two others were under observation as state health authorities quarantined 200 Chicago boys following an outbreak of spinal meningitis at a Y. M. C. A. vacation camp at Fish Lake.

The dead are William Nalmet, 13, and Theodore Bryant, 10, both of Chicago. Two others, suspected of having the dread disease, are at St. Theresa Hospital here.

Coolidge Pleased by Calm In U. S. Foreign Relations

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Aug. 1.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

If when anything is unusually bad it becomes a subject for news, by the same principle when something is good it is at least worthy of comment.

At the present time the foreign relations of the United States are in a particularly satisfactory condition. While there are always trifling questions concerning trade and individuals requiring diplomatic adjustment, we are especially free from any major issues with other nations.

Calvin Coolidge.

With but one important exception our war debts with Europe are adjusted, all misunderstandings have been removed from the Pacific Ocean area, Central and South America are quiet, our claims in Mexico are being adjudicated, the revolution in China involves us but slightly, and the naval limitation treaty has taken our armaments from the field of international friction. The helpful visit of the President to so many South American countries will be augmented by his purpose to go to Mexico.

Our position toward all other people is neutral and impartial. Our chief motive is a great desire to be friendly. No foreign government regards us as a menace. We hold the respect of the world sufficiently to be usually sought as the arbitrator of its disputes.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

Beacons, Heralds Wait Call Of Stork to York Castle

GLAMIS, Scotland, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Tenants on the Glamis Castle estate, where the Duchess of York is resting in expectation of an early visit by the stork, today began collecting fuel for the huge beacon which will announce the royal birth to the countryside.

High on Hunters' Hill, overlooking the ancient castle of the duchess' family, fagots were being piled in a mountainous heap. Lighting this beacon will be a signal for other bonfires throughout the country, in accordance with the ancient custom of days when these flares were the only quick method of communication.

Today, two special telephone lines had been connected directly with Buckingham Palace in London, so the King and Queen may be constantly in touch with Glamis Castle.

Dispatch riders have been ordered to hold themselves in readiness to carry telegrams and other messages in case of a sudden emergency. Sir Henry Simon, noted London surgeon, has taken up residence near the castle.

Albert, Duke of York, and Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon were married April 26, 1923. The duke is the second son of King George, and his wife ranks "fourth lady of the land." Their first baby, born April 21, 1926, at her father's London house, was named Princess Elizabeth Alexandra Mary.

MT. LEBANON BOARD ACTS TO CONDEMN PILLAR COAL

STEPS TAKEN TO PROTECT DISTRICT

Officials Order Action To Safeguard Streets; All Property Benefits

The township commissioners of Mt. Lebanon have fired the first gun in the war against the Pittsburgh Coal Company.

By unanimous resolution, they passed an ordinance last night condemning sufficient coal under streets and highways to insure their safety. They also authorized Township Solicitor Edwin B. Goldsmith to file a petition against the company, asking for an injunction to restrain it from proceeding with the mining or threats to mine the coal underlying the streets, highways, water and gas mains and sewage system.

The resolution passed Monday night, authorizing the township engineer to negotiate with the coal company for the purchase of coal underlying the new $240,000 municipal building, was rescinded.

BASIS FOR COMPLAINT

The emergency legislation, which passed first and second readings last night, is the basis for the bill of complaint in the injunction proceedings. Goldsmith said last night that he will ask Judge Harry Rowand to hear the petition Monday morning. The commissioners will meet again Monday night, to dispose of any developments that may come up in the matter.

The bill of complaint was read and approved at last night's meeting.

It avers that the price asked for the coal is exorbitant and unwarranted; that to remove or threaten to remove the coal is an imposition, illegal, inequitable and a deprivation of the rights of the township and the property owners.

Because of changed conditions in Mt. Lebanon since the date voyage as a "good test flight" and he and other officers interviewed indicated that in their opinion, the flight was a success in every respect.

The R-100 is now attached to the mooring mast of St. Hubert Airport. She stands out horizontally from the top of the mooring mast, 200 feet above the ground—a big, proud-looking ship, the sun's rays glinting off her dull gray sides.

Slowly, the R-100 thrummed across the field, flying low. She cautiously circled around the mooring tower several times. It became brighter and the airship extinguished her lights. She was traveling at a very low speed, and at times seemed suspended in the air.

EDGES CLOSER TO GOAL

Finally, at 5 a. m., the R-100 had maneuvered to within 200 yards of the tower and then she dropped a flexible steel cable. The telescopic arm, 71½ feet high, at the top of the tower, also released a flexible steel cable. Members of the ground crew proceeded to hook the two cables together. This was accomplished at 5:08 a. m.

An army of newspapermen and photographers watched the maneuvering of the dirigible from the field, about 100 yards from the mast. The dirigible presented a colorful picture, her dark gray sides etched against the blending red and white horizon back of the Mount St. Bruno hills.

Inch by inch the two steel cables, now joined as one, were drawn down into the tower through the telescopic arm by means of a hydraulic winch. Slowly the airship was brought closer to the mast and seemed to hang there by a slender thread, but actually a powerful coil of steel. Finally at 5:37, the nose of the R-100 was coupled to the socket at the top of the mooring tower and the trans-Atlantic dirigible was safely moored.

LARGER SHIP NEEDED

Sir Dennistoun Burney, designer of the R-100, said that were it not for the fact that bad weather was encountered in the final lap they would have reached St. Hubert's airport at 6 o'clock last night. He declared they made splendid time over the ocean.

Asked concerning the commercial possibilities of such a flight, Sir Dennistoun said:

"It will require an airship double the size of the R-100 with an average speed of 85 miles per hour before we can realise the full commercial possibilities of lighter-than-air craft."

NEW BILLINGS HEARING LIKELY

Woman's Story of Sabotage, 'Not Bombing,' May Give Impetus to Pardon Plea

By R. W. JIMMERSON,
Universal Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 1.—Warren K. Billings may be recalled from Folsom prison, where he has spent nearly 14 years, to testify before the Supreme Court justices on Monday when they resume the hearings on his application for pardon.

This seemed probably today as the result of the startling testimony yesterday of Estelle Smith, who revealed for the first time what she says is the true story of what Billings carried in his suit case on the day of the 1916 Preparedness Day bombing.

Billings was a "saboteur," not a bomber, Estelle Smith declared.

He was hired by a machinists' union during the strike which was then in effect, to damage automobiles, she said.

She concluded her story, which fell with bombshell unexpectedness, by stating her absolute belief that Billings could not have been at Steuart and Market streets when the deadly bomb exploded.

The effect of her narrative was electrical.

The first result was a new petition to justices of the Supreme Court that Billings be produced before the court to confirm or deny Estelle Smith's tale.

Astronomers Take 'Suckers' to Win Natives' Help

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Bound for Tin Can Island with a supply of all-day suckers, chewing gum and gewgaws, to insure the good-will and co-operation of the natives, a group of Navy scientists today was headed for the South Seas, to view the solar eclipse of October 22.

Niuafou, known as Tin Can Island, is 250 miles southwest of Pago Pago and directly in the path of the eclipse, whose totality will be only 93 seconds.

In the party is R. W. Marriott, of Swarthmore College.

INFANT SLAIN; MOTHER HELD

A 25-year-old mother is being held for slashing the throat of her 5-month-old daughter on the kitchen table of their home at 843 Steuben street, West End, today. The baby is dead.

The mother, Mrs. Mary Prentice, police say, after welding the knife walked to the adjoining parlor, sat down and wept.

Her sister, Ellen Duffy, 15, the only other person in the house, saw her and asked:

"What's the matter, Mary?"

The mother answered:

"Oh, Ellen, I've just cut my baby's throat."

USES PARING KNIFE

The baby, Mary Agnes, was dead when Dr. H. M. Gangloff arrived five minutes later. A paring knife, apparently the instrument of death, was nearby.

Police, detectives and neighbors filled the Prentice's six rooms of the modest double house, but the young mother seemed to see none of them. To questioners she answered:

"Oh, dont bother me now."

Dr. Gangloff, who attended the infant's birth in March, reported that the mother had not been in good health since, that he had been treating her for high blood pressure.

Mrs. Prentice was held without bail in the county jail by Coroner William J. McGregor on a charge of murder.

NEIGHBORS AMAZED

The news stunned neighbors, for they recalled that as recently as last night Mrs. Prentice had taken the child for a ride in the go-cart and had fondly displayed her to the residents.

The husband, William Prentice, Jr., shoe salesman, was called from his work. He told Deputy Coroner W. R. Sellers that his wife had been suffering mentally, Sellers reported.

Mrs. Prentice seemed in a state of collapse as police prepared to take her to the headquarters of homicide detectives. The detectives were told by Dr. Gangloff that the mother was a mental case.

U. S. WARNS CHINESE AS REDS LOOT

Must Safeguard Americans; Hankow in Imminent Peril From Communist Advance

BULLETIN.

HANKOW, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—The situation in Hankow today became serious, with Chinese swarming into the foreign concessions for safety. The Nationalists hurriedly set to work strengthening the city's defenses.

Every preparation possible was made in anticipation of an attack by the Communists, who today were blowing up railway bridges 30 miles to the north.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—C. T. Wang, Chinese foreign minister, was warned by the American legation at Peiping today that the American government expected the Nationalist rulers to protect the lives and property of Americans in Changsha, Hunan treaty port looted by Communist armies.

Simultaneously, foreign consular authorities at Hankow said they were convinced the Nationalist government was unable to protect its own interests in Changsha, pillaged by the Reds, and expressed fear for the safety of Hankow, rich industrial city on the Yangtze River, which they said might be the next city to fall into the hands of the plundering armies.

Communist troops in unknown numbers surrounded Hankow. Consular authorities said despite Nationalist promises to organize a drive against the invaders, the situation was questionable because the Nationalist forces were not strong enough even to support their own pickets.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—All American warships in Chinese waters were stripped for action today and patrolling the Yangtze and Sian rivers to stem the rising tide of Communist outbreaks and bring foreigners out to safety.

The United States does not intend to add to the forces now in China, it was stated. There are already some 8,400 soldiers, sailors and marines.

FRECKLED LAD WINS TEST

his answers to scientific questions were practically perfect."

An executive of the Edison Laboratories advised Williams not to talk of his examination. How Williams, answered the much-discussed "desert question," therefore, remains a mystery.

DESERT PROBLEM

Of all the questions in the quiz, comment today revealed that among the boys as well as the general public, the question referred to as the "stranded desert problem" caused the most interest, and to the boys the most thought.

It provided that the boy was leader of an expedition, nded on the desert with water food enough for only three he entire party to ever reach ization.

he contestant was asked to de- what he would do if he, with rilliant scientist of 60, his 39- ar-old wife, interested only in ociety, their 6-year-old child, two half-breed guides, the boy's own fiancee, and his best friend of 25, a scientist of much promise, were members of the party.

OPINIONS DIFFER

James Compton, Wichita, Kan., the first boy to finish the quiz, said he would save the younger guide, the fiancee and the best friend. That was the answer given today by many scientists, including Dr. George H. Sherwood, director of the American Museum of Natural History, New York.

Nathaniel Kurtzman, Montana, second of the contestants to finish, said he wrote he would save the fiancee, the best friend and the child.

Most contestants said they would save the women.

Robert Smith, of New Mexico, was the only boy who would have saved his own life. He said he would have taken out his fiancee, the child and himself and later would have adopted the child.

Most of the questions, prepared by Mr. Edison, Henry Ford, George Eastman, Harvey S. Firestone and several other leaders in industry and thought, tested the imagination, character and the will to work.

MERGER DATE EXTENDED

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 1.—(AP.)—The date for the consummation of merger between Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company and Bethlehem Steel Corporation has been extended to August 29, it was announced today as trial of suit to enjoin the deal went into its twenty-first day in Mahoning County Common Pleas Court.

The merger contract has been extended four times pending the litigation and may be again extended further if the trial is not completed this month.

Attorneys for the Cyrus S. Eaton interests, who seek to block the merger, were again concentrating their attack upon Bethlehem's bonus system today, as well as on $12,000,000, which Bethlehem listed among its assets for "good will." These two points have been pushed forward by the Eaton group as important grounds for the suit.

GOLF OPERATOR TO DEFY BAN

Emanuel Rose will operate his miniature golf course in Squirrel Hill in defiance of Police Supt. Walsh's order that all such courses be closed in deference to the Blue Laws. Rose regards his opening as a test of the law.

Rose already has been fined once for operating on Sunday. He has appealed the fine and is seeking an injunction to prevent police interference.

Yesterday Judge S. H. Gardner sent the injunction papers unsigned to the prothonotary's office to be filed.

Weather Conditions.

A disturbance, centered over the South Atlantic coast is responsible for generous rains in the Carolinas, and light amounts over the Coast states from New Jersey to Florida. There were also scattered rains in the Gulf states and the Rocky Mountain states. Throughout the remainder of the country the skies are mostly clear, with little indication of rain. A well defined low pressure area appears over Manitoba and extends southwestward over the Rocky Mountain states. The temperature changes were slight over the West but over the Dakotas there were substantial rises.

River Conditions.

The rivers are stationary. Stage at Franklin is 1.10ft. [illegible] Lock No. 7, 9.5; Lock No. 4, Pittsburgh, 5.1; Dam No. 4, 9.0; Dam No. 6, 7.8; Dam No. 8, 8.1, and Dam No. 12, 4.0. The dams are up.

Aviation Bulletin.

There are some clouds over Eastern Pennsylvania and Southern New Jersey, but the ceiling is generally unlimited. Over the western portion of the district there are only scattered clouds and the ceiling is unlimited. The visibility is reduced somewhat in some localities on account of haze and smoke, due to the light wind movement. Wind direction is variable.

There will be thundershowers over the Atlantic Coast states this afternoon and tonight, but west of the mountains good flying weather will continue tonight and Saturday.

Washington Man Safe on Gunboat

WASHINGTON, Pa., Aug. 1.—Mr. and Mrs. James S. Pates have received word that their son, James Pates, Jr., in the employ of the Standard Oil Company at Changsha, China, center of the Communistic outbreak, was safe and aboard the gunboat Palos.

He reported 45 other Americans had been taken aboard the war vessel. They were to be taken to Shanghai.

KING ADJOURNS PARLIAMENT

LONDON, Aug. 1.—(INS.)—The British Parliament, which has labored for months with delicate empire and international problems as well as serious dissension within itself, was prorogued for the summer by King George today.

The King's speech was read to the strangely peaceful chamber by a deputy, as His Majesty was yachting at Cowes. Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald and others privileged to do so had already left before the ancient ceremony of prorogation began.

King George's speech bristled with "satisfactions" and "gratifications" except as regards unemployment, which he said was causing him "grave anxiety." All the problems which have beset parliament during the last few months, the Indian and Egyptian uprisings, the naval treaty, debts, reparations, Rhineland evacuation and other political and financial problems of Europe, were dealt with in the King's address.

GERMANS HOP FOR ICELAND

KIRKWALL, Orkney Islands, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Wolfram Hirth and Oscar Weller, German aviators, took off in their small monoplane at 9:40 a. m., British summer time (4:40 a. m., Pittsburgh daylight time), today for Iceland.

The aviators are attempting to fly from Germany to the United States by easy stages. They left Berlin July 24, going to Croydon, England, by way of Calais.

Grove City Opens 34th Bible School

The thirty-fourth annual Grove City Presbyterian Bible School opens in Grove City Presbyterian Church Friday evening. Sessions will continue for 10 days. The principal speaker will be the Rev. Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo, Washington, D. C. Other preachers include Dr. Walter L. Lingle, president, Davidson College, Dr. George W. Richards, president, the Theological Seminary of the Reformed Church, and Prof. George L. Robinson of the Chicago Theological Seminary.

Braddock and Greensburg avenues, Turtle Creek, denounce war on this the sixteenth anniversary of the starting of the World War.

Half a dozen Turtle Creek police were present, but there was no sign of disorder. The speakers were Irene Karry, organizer for the Young Communist League, and Max Salzmon, district organizer for the Communist party.

Accused of distributing Communist bills in East Pittsburgh, Irene Karey, 22, of 375 McKee place; Silvia Ressa, 21, of 244 Dinwiddie street; Anna Saneci, 19, of 611 Penn avenue; Joe Chandler, 22, of East Diamond street; Peter Chappa, 22, 805 Main street, Pittsburgh, and A. W. Selastin, 21, of Springdale, were fined $1 and costs by Burgess Beech, in East Pittsburgh. They were arrested by Lieut. David Bennett, Sergt. William McCoy and Patrolman William Boyle, Samuel Crowley and Samuel Whitman, East Pittsburgh police.

RELEASED ON FORFEIT

Arrested by Turtle Creek police on a similar charge, Michael Starks, 30, of Linden avenue, East Pittsburgh, was at liberty today under a forfeit, pending a hearing before Burgess George Donaldson.

Charged with passing Communist literature, Betty Shean, 16, of Concord street, and Ida Ornefsky, 19, of Landis street, were in jail today serving 10-day sentences in preference to paying fines. A third girl, Nell Amter, 21, was fined $10 or 10 days in jail by Magistrate Ray Schneider today in North Side Police Court.

THOMPSON WINS JAIL DELAY

Taxis, plaintiff. No sign of recognition passed between them.

Thompson had been granted several postponements and extensions of parole since last December, with a view to allowing him to recoup his financial losses and make reparation to the estate of the late John Niccolls, father of the princess, and the properties of Emma Messmore, both of which he was proved to have used for his own purposes.

A gigantic coal land deal was supposed to be pending, but it has never materialized.

The amount involved in the dispute is around $300,000.

Water Is Adequate In North Boroughs

Sensing a water shortage with the issuance of orders restricting the use of hose or sprinklers, North borough residents were relieved today to learn that the temporary order was due to the breaking of a water main at Jackson avenue in Avalon. That the water supply is adequate and that no shortage is foreseen, was stated by officials.

INFANT SLAIN; MOTHER HELD

A 25-year-old mother is being held for slashing the throat of her 5-month-old daughter on the kitchen table of their home at 843 Steuben street, West End, today. The baby is dead.

The mother, Mrs. Mary Prentice, police say, after welding the knife walked to the adjoining parlor, sat down and wept.

Her sister, Ellen Duffy, 15, the only other person in the house, saw her and asked:

"What's the matter, Mary?"

The mother answered:

USES PARING KNIFE

The baby, Mary Agnes, was dead when Dr. H. M. Gangloff arrived five minutes later. A paring knife, apparently the instrument of death, was nearby.

Police, detectives and neighbors filled the Prentice's six rooms of the modest double house, but the young mother seemed to see none of them. To questioners she answered:

"Oh, dont bother me now."

Dr. Gangloff, who attended the infant's birth in March, reported that the mother had not been in good health since, that he had been treating her for high blood pressure.

Mrs. Prentice was held without bail in the county jail by Coroner William J. McGregor on a charge of murder.

NEIGHBORS AMAZED

The news stunned neighbors, for they recalled that as recently as last night Mrs. Prentice had taken the child for a ride in the go-cart and had fondly displayed her to the residents.

The husband, William Prentice, Jr., shoe salesman, was called from his work. He told Deputy Coroner W. R. Sellers that his wife had been suffering mentally, Sellers reported.

Mrs. Prentice seemed in a state of collapse as police prepared to take her to the headquarters of homicide detectives. The detectives were told by Dr. Gangloff that the mother was a mental case.

MEARS MAY HOP TOMORROW

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(Universal.)—John Henry Mears and his pilot, Henry J. Brown, will be off on their round-the-world flight tomorrow at dawn if weather conditions are favorable.

Today mechanics were busy at Roosevelt Field making final adjustments of the big Lockheed-Vega plane in which Mears hopes to better the 21-day record of the Graf Zeppelin.

GIRL ACCUSED BY 2 SISTERS

Lucy Borelli, 19, of 4730 Juniper way, was turned over to Morals Court social workers today after two sisters testified against the girl.

The girl was arrested on complaint of Mrs. Nicolina Martini, who said the girl was missing from her home for three days. Another sister, Mrs. Rose Barona, 22, of 424 Orwell way, testified the girl was too friendly with her husband. The girl denied seeing her brother-in-law and said she spent the first three nights this week sleeping in a rest room at the West Penn Hospital.

nesota, who lost two sons in on battle.

Land was sighted on Wednesday morning about 10:30 o'clock. We reached Plymouth about o'clock, and Cherbourg at midnight. We boarded the train Thursday morning and every one was anxious to reach Paris.

PLEASANT VOYAGE

On board the boat, every consideration was shown to the mothers and widows. We had breakfast about 7:30 a. m., followed by a hot bullion at o'clock, lunch at noon, tea and cakes at 3 and dinner at 6.

Wednesday evening we had concert, and the following night there was community singing. Motion pictures entertained us on Friday, Sunday and Tuesday nights, and there was dancing every evening.

The captain's farewell dinner was held on Tuesday. Episcopal Church services were held Sunday morning, and a mass was offered every morning. While we enjoyed the ocean voyage, the sight of land certainly thrilled us.

RACES TONIGHT BUT NO BETS

Dogs will race over the Guy suta Kennel Club tracks at Blay nox again tonight, but there will be no betting on the outcome, according to the sponsors.

Four county detectives who attended the resumption of racing last night, reported to Chief George W. Murren that about 20 spectators watched the races, and that they saw no evidence of gambling.

John Douglas, Jr., receiver of the tracks, has been advised to increase the price of admission by District Attorney A. T. [illegible], who has banned wagers.

River Boat Sale Proceeds Asked for Sick Deckhand

When arguments were being made before Federal Judge R. M. Gibson on the distribution of $380 from the proceeds of the public auction sale of the steamer General Wood, to claimants with claims aggregating $4,500, Attorney L. C. Barton asked that the $380 go to Henry Tripler, 45, a former deckhand on the boat. The latter is now a tuberculosis patient in the Marine Hospital at Fort Stanton, N. M.

At the sale of the boat last May by United States Marshal J. C. McGregor to satisfy claims of creditors, the craft brought $610. After the court and marshal's costs were deducted $380 remained. How to satisfy claims of $4,500 became the question.

One of the intervening petitioners was Attorney Barton, in behalf of Tripler, who, the lawyer said, contracted tuberculosis while a member of the crew, in August, 1928. The attorney described the General Wood as an ill-equipped vessel, without proper quarters for its crew and consequently liable for damages.

Barton said that on a trip up the Ohio, Tripler had no place to dry his clothes and in wearing them wet became ill. After being treated in the Marine Hospital here he was sent to the government hospital in New Mexico.

The court reserved decision on the argument.

The General Wood, once one of the outstanding towboats on the Monongahela and Ohio rivers, is being scrapped by its new owners.

Quiz to Unravel Mystery Of Lassman Drowning

PORTLAND, ME., Aug. 1.—(AP.)—County Attorney Ralph M. Ingalls today began an investigation of the circumstances surrounding the drowning of Al Lassman, former New York University football star, at Long Lake, near Harrison, July 6.

Sheriff Lloyd W. Jordan was sent to Camp Zakelo, on Long Lake with instructions to bring back to Portland 14 persons, including Issy Zarakov, former Harvard athlete, and head of the camp, for questioning.

The original account of Lassman's death, as given out by the camp the day after he drowned, said he was a visitor at the camp and went on the lake alone in a canoe.

Yesterday, New York University authorities issued a statement charging Lassman had been employed as a counselor at the camp and rescued two or three boys who were with him in the canoe before he drowned.

Mothers Unite to Avert Further Baby Mixups

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—The Associated Mothers of Illinois was formed today by a hundred women to sponsor state legislation to prevent a recurrence of a case similar to the present Bamberger-Watkins baby mixup in two infants may have been reared in Englewood Hospital before they were born.

Grace Dibrell, who initiated the movement, was made chairman. Through a committee the organization will make suggestions in bills, one of which will provide that William Watkins' son and which is the Charles Bambergers' boy.

Addressing the meeting, Barbereit O'Hara, attorney for Watkins, urged the women to work for a law for a monthly inspection of hospitals.

Lawyer Samuel Moyerman, of Philadelphia, representing Watkins' first wife, a night club entertainer, telegraphed O'Hara asking definite information regarding the questioned divorce Watkins said he had obtained in 1928.

Mrs. Margaret Watkins left to visit her parents at Braceville, Ill., and she took with her baby.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Death by execution is not accidental, it happens "on purpose," Federal Judge Woodward has decided in the case of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Diamond, of Gary, Ind., against the New York Life Insurance Company.

The Diamonds sought to collect on a $10,000 accident policy carried by their son, Harry, who was electrocuted at the Michigan City (Ind.) Penitentiary for the murder of his wife.

QUAKE VICTIMS AIDED BY POPE

ROME, Aug. 1.—(Universal.)—A Papal purse of $200,000 has been distributed for the aid of the victims of the Italian earthquake, Msgr. Chiappetta, special Papal legate to the stricken districts, reported today.

Msgr. Chiappetta informed Pope Pius that reconstruction of the demolished churches and parish houses could not be accomplished at a cost less than $4,800,000, and recommended that no more be constructed on hills.

The belief that the earthquake, which killed more than 2,000 people last week, was of volcanic origin was dispelled by the director of the Benevento geo-dynamic observatory, who said the catastrophe was purely tellural (of the earth), as proved by the devastating landslides.

Many citizens today returned to their homes, which government experts had pronounced safe. Movement of troops out of the zone progressed rapidly, and public rationing had ended in some towns.

Wife Deems Movies 'Bunk', Director Sues

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Harry Schenck, film director, filed suit for divorce, complaining his wife, Lillian, believed motion pictures and film people were "the bunk." The Schencks have been married 17 years.

The director alleged his wife complained about his occupation, objected to his film friends, and habitually accused him of associating with screen actresses.

Township Acts to Condemn Pillar Coal

tensive solid vein, yet it is all termed by the company pillar or supporting coal, left for the protection of the surface and the workings in the mining of the area.

$1,275,000 SOUGHT

The company engineers estimate that one-half of this remaining tonnage, or approximately 1,700,000 tons, constitutes entirely adequate surface support. This is roughly the quantity which would ultimately be included in the transfer to surface owners if the expressed plan of the company to negotiate the sale of all supporting coal should be completed. The other half of the remaining tonnage, the great bulk of which is considered recoverable, will be mined and marketed in the "retreat." About 10,000,000 tons of coal have been mined by the company in its operations in this tract.

At the maximum price of 75 cents a ton, the property owners of Mt. Lebanon would be summoned to turn over to the company $1,275,000 to assure surface support required by the law of Pennsylvania in mining of coal but waived by former owners.

This aggregate consideration should not exceed $170,000 at 10 cents a ton, or $340,000 at 20 cents a ton, assuming the contractual rights of the company prevail to the limit, experts declare.

PROFITS SHOW VALUE

They assert that rarely has coal in place been sold for more than 25 cents a ton and then only under the most favorable conditions. A fair yardstick for measuring value, they point out, is the average profit a ton, which in the 75 years of the industry in Allegheny County is less than 10 cents including the huge profits in war years when coal brought $3.50 at the mine. The excessive value of 75 cents is shown by a comparison with existing market prices, $1.60 to $1.75 a ton for screened coal and $1.30 to $1.40 a ton for run-of-mine coal men hold.

A coal broker said today:

"An average price of a ton of coal loaded on a railroad car, about $1.60, after the cost of cutting, loading and moving the coal to the tipple, proves that the coal in the ground is worth much less than the 50 or 75 cents the company is asking. If it has to take the coal out of the Mansfield tipple at Carnegie it would be foolish to try to take it out on any basis."

Assessed valuations of coal show the exorbitance of the demand, according to experts. At 50 cents a ton an acre of coal would be worth $4,000 to $5,000, and at 75 cents a ton it would have a value of $6,000 or $7,000, or more compared to valuations of coal in place, separate from the land, of about $400 an acre fixed by Allegheny County assessors. Thomas J. McMahon, chief property assessor of Pittsburgh and an expert on land valuations nationally recognized, stated the value of coal in place would range between $150 and $450 an acre.

SMALL COST HINTED

An idea of the value of coal in place fixed by the company is afforded by the amount set aside for depletion, according to coal men, who state that the usual sum is 12 cents a ton set aside as a depletion charge when a ton of coal is mined, on the theory that this sum will reimburse the company for the ton taken out by providing for another ton to take its place.

Another indication of value advanced is the claim of the company seeking a high valuation on coal for obtaining a greater allowance for depreciation in fixing a basis for federal income tax, that its coal was worth $1,000 to $1,200 an acre. It is estimated by experts that the coal under the Mt. Lebanon area cost the company originally two or three cents a ton or less.

Should all the coal estimated to be required for support be sold at the rate of 50 cents a ton offered by the company for negotiations in blocks or groups of property owners, it would yield to the company $850,000. This is an excess of $680,000 over the fair value of 10 cents a ton and $510,000 over the 20-cent value fixed by experts.

DENIES 'BLUFF'

An important consideration pointed out by one expert is that it would be useless for all the property owners in one block or group to buy the coal support if one owner refused to take part in the transaction, as the removal of his support would jeopardize the group area.

Lesher declared that the company is not attempting to "bluff" the property owners of Mt. Lebanon, as charged by Ira H. Edmundson, president of the Mt. Lebanon Chamber of Commerce, and characterized as absurd the charge that the move of the company is a "shakedown."

He said that the offer of the company is a fair price, especially as the company sought to negotiate with blocks or groups of owners at the price of 50 cents per ton. The best method is to arrange a group transaction, Lesher said, otherwise the utmost safety is not assured. Where a single property owner entered into negotiations, according to Lesher, he was advised to await a group transaction or keep his money and take his chance. Lesher said the company had entered into negotiations with a number of property owners for the sale of supporting coal and that in some cases purchases have been completed. Regarding the intention of the township to seek an injunction, Lesher declared:

"Instead of asking injunctions and going to war about it, the property owners should band together, grouping a large number of properties in units of about an acre, and enter into negotiations for the purchase of the coal to obtain the best price possible, which would simplify the matter for us and for them."

Celebrated Artist Dies in Montreal

MONTREAL, Quebec, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—A. Dickson Patterson, 76, who during his career as an artist painted the portraits of many outstanding figures in Canadian life, died here yesterday.

He was an exhibitor at the Royal Canadian Academy shows and at the Chicago and St. Louis world's fairs. At the Pan-American exhibition at Buffalo in 1901 he was awarded a medal.

Large Negro Bank In Chicago Closed

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—The Binga State Bank, one of the largest Negro banks in the country, with deposits of $1,200,000, was closed by the state auditor at the request of its directors, because of frozen assets and a shortage of cash.

The bank, in the Negro district, was one of the largest state banks in the city. Jesse Binga, Negro, was president.

CONDEMNATION OF COAL TO BE DEMANDED

the coal company acquired the mining rights, the rights of the company are not paramount to the rights of the township under its police powers, and rights of eminent domain, the bill avers.

The bill states:

"If the company persists in its alleged threat to remove the coal from under the streets, highways, roads, sewers, gas and water mains, buildings and homes existing in the township of Mt. Lebanon, it will result in a subsidence of the surface whereby great and irreparable damage will be caused to the township, citizens and property owners.

GREAT DAMAGE SEEN

"If the Pittsburgh Coal Company persists in the removal of the pillars of coal, there may arise a subsidence in the surface and great damage to sewers, highways, gas and water mains and such a nuisance created as to be injurious to the health, safety and welfare of the entire body of citizens, and create a condition which will be irremedial and damage of such character caused that there would be no adequate remedy at law.

"The coal could have been removed at times in the past when the pillars might have been removed in the course of good mining practice, but:

"For reasons unknown to the petitioner, the company left it standing in pillars, and the action of the defendant company at this time, in the face of the growth and development of the surface over their workings, is inequitable, unconscionable, illegal, and unwarranted, as is the effort to procure by threats creating fear in the minds of the property owners, that their property may suffer to such an extent as to compel them to pay over to the company exorbitant prices for the purpose of buying coal threatened to be removed."

CALLS FOR RESTRAINT

The petition asks that the coal company be restrained from proceeding with or threatening the mining of coal now remaining standing, and be enjoined from causing any slides, falls or cave-ins in their operations and from interfering with entry of agents of the township into the mine workings for the purpose of determining actual present mining operations.

C. W. Scheck, chairman of the township commissioners, prior to passage of the ordinance and resolutions, declared:

"I am convinced that this is largely a bluff on the part of the company to sell coal. However, we cannot stand idly by and say, 'Go ahead and bluff.' Some people have been scared into buying the coal under their properties, and anybody that still wants to buy the coal under their property should insist on getting a deed from the company. If the borough keeps enough coal under its streets to insure their safety, there would be no danger to abutting property. There is some of this coal that it would be impracticable to take out."

IRONS SCOUTS CLAIMS

Attorney Harold M. Irons, former city solicitor and expert on condemnation proceedings, who represents a number of property owners in Mt. Lebanon, spoke at the meeting. He said:

"I don't believe a jury in Christendom would give the company a nickel in this case. These property owners have put their competence in their homes. This is little short of piracy on the company's part and an invasion of the American home. The conduct of the company is against them and if such conduct is shown to an American jury, I doubt if they could get a verdict all down along the line."

HAS HARD ROAD AHEAD

"The company is going to have a hard road to travel in these proceedings and the farther they go, the deeper into the woods they will get."

Scheck said that the publicity given the coal company's attempt to put over their proposition has created the impression that all of Mt. Lebanon is threatened with damage by the proposed removal of the coal. He added:

"As a matter of fact, the coal has been removed from under a vast area of the township for many years. There is not going to be any havoc wrought even if all the coal is mined out. Misunderstanding of the situation tends to give Mt. Lebanon an awful black eye, but mining has been going on for 50 years. Many other localities in Allegheny County have had the coal taken out for years. We are taking this action as an insurance against the remotest possibility of damage, not because we are a bit worried that the township is ready to drop into a deep pit, as the uninformed and calamity howlers believe."

Fail to Find Trace Of Burned Airplane

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—A life-saving crew here failed to find wreckage of a monoplane said by a Coast Guard lookout to have fallen in flames late Wednesday into the ocean eight miles east of Point Reyes.

A check of airports brought no report of a missing plane. W. C. Day, the lookout, said the ship was flying about 200 feet above the water when flames spurted from the fuselage.

TREE SITTERS PASS 17TH DAY

With 17 days in the leaves to their credit Pittsburgh's champion tree-sitters today were "sitting it out" in an attempt to remain in place until the opening of school.

With one of the Homestead teams out of the race after one and one-half weeks aloft the champions are feeling a little more secure in their title fight.

The champions with another month confronting them feel that it will be a simple matter to remain aloft during that time. Extreme heat, or copious rainfall however, may change the minds of even the most hearty tree-sitters.

Watchman's Shots Foil Effort to Steal Plane

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Aug. 1.—Police are investigating an attempt by four men to steal an airplane at the Patterson Heights Airport. Victor Burdge Bridgewater, watchman, saw four men tuning up a plane and when they refused to leave he fired several shots at them. Then they ran.

ACTRESS DENIES DOPE CHARGES

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 1.—(INS.)—Branding as "preposterous" reports that she will enter a hospital to undergo a serious operation, Mary Nolan, motion picture star, today went ahead with preparations for her next film, which goes into production at the Universal studios next Monday.

The former Imogene Wilson spent yesterday at the studio, being fitted for costumes which she will wear in the new picture, and denying charges she was a drug addict, reports of which she branded a plot by two nurses to ruin her reputation. She was in a hospital for treatment of a severe case of sunburn.

McKeesport Boys Win DeMolay Honors

Charles P. Schmidt, 726 Vermont avenue, Glassport, and H. Wayne Dulany, of 1532 Lincoln way, McKeesport, have been awarded the honor of being representative DeMolays. Both boys are members of the McKeesport chapter, Order of DeMolay, and out of eight such awards in the State of Pennsylvania, two came to the McKeesport chapter. Both boys are graduates of the McKeesport High School.

HALT COAL LAND SALE FOR TAX

Federal Judge R. M. Gibson today signed an order which restrains the treasurer of Armstrong County, Harry B. Rearic from selling the property of the Pine Run Coal Company in Red Bank Township, to satisfy a tax assessment of $1,312.

Receivers for the company, G. B. Straub and A. Clinton Sickles asked the order. They contended that the plant and several houses on the coal land having been removed, the company is not subject to the tax.

A sale had been announced for Monday.

Kelly Dolled Up On Lofty Perch By Manicurist

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 1.—(INS.)—Alvin "Shipwreck" Kelly, who has perched atop a flag pole 225 feet above the Boardwalk pier for the past 40 days, today was shaved, manicured, massaged and shampooed by Miss Angelina Yuengling, who ascended the pole in a saddle.

You may not need to rent a home now, but it's a good thing to remember that the easiest way to find a place is through the Classified Ads.

LEAGUE SHUNTS DOPE PROBLEM

GENEVA, Aug. 1.—(Universal.)—The League of Nations has characteristically side-tracked the opium problem, it became known here today, with the indefinite postponement of the session of the opium advisory committee scheduled for August.

The August session of the opium advisory committee had been expected to prepare an agenda for the much-heralded limitation-of-opium-manufacture conference.

The full blame for the calling off of the advisory committee's session can be placed with the British, who failed to hold in London a preliminary meeting of representatives of all countries manufacturing opium.

The conference regarding the limitation of opium manufacture, originally set in motion by the United States, has now been forestalled.

Wooden Leg Wrecks Marriage by Mail

EVANSTON, Ill., Aug. 1.—(INS.)—The correspondence plan for getting married suffered a serious blow here today with the filing of a divorce suit by Mrs. Amelia Moulton.

In her bill for divorce filed against Harold Moulton, of New York, a caretaker, Mrs. Moulton says she learned too late that he had a wooden leg.

Real Estate

When the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board closed its membership campaign this week it increased its enrollment to 450 active members and is outranked only by the boards in New York, Chicago and Philadelphia.

The campaign which was inaugurated January 1, has been carried on systematically through an augmented membership committee of 35 workers on the board. This committee was headed by J. F. McClurg, who was given loyal teamwork by his aids. At its meeting Tuesday the board of governors approved the applications of the last contingent of new members.

Bids are being received by Gustav Schramm, of Rochelle street, Knoxville, for a new residence which he will build in Lebanon boulevard, Mt. Lebanon Township. Harry Viehman, architect, has drawn the plans.

Extensive alterations will be made to the existing building of the Presbyterian Home for the Aged at Glenshaw, according to plans prepared by Lawrence Wolf, architect.

G. A. Aarson has sold to John V. Broderick through Phil A. Doeblin a brick dwelling and a two-car garage, fronting 50 feet in McFarland road, Mt. Lebanon. Through the same broker B. L. Miller sold to John V. Shutte a 3½-acre plot with dwelling at Bower Hill.

Smith & Mott sold for Hagel and Meneely to Henry D. Thomson and Marion D. Thomson a brick-and-shingle dwelling of six rooms and built-in garage on a lot 30 by 130 feet in Norwich avenue, Brookline.

Ambrose Huber sold to Frances M. Bregenzer an improved property with lot 25 by 67 feet in the business district of Brownsville road, Knoxville, for $8,500.

The First German Evangelical Lutheran Zion congregation has deeded an improved property with lot 40 by 120 feet in Boggs avenue, Mt. Washington district, to Philip Basson for $9,000.

ROUGHAGE IN DIET NEEDED IN REDUCING

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Eliminates Danger

Are you one of those who are reducing by diet? If so, there is one important thing you should know—diets that do not include roughage cause constipation, often with serious consequences. Guard against it!

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN contains the roughage needed to insure regular elimination. It is guaranteed to relieve both temporary and recurring constipation or your money will be refunded. Two tablespoons daily—in serious cases, with each meal.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is not fattening. But it does add valuable iron to the blood which helps prevent anemia (another dieting danger) and bring a glowing, healthy color to the complexion.

You can enjoy Kellogg's ALL-BRAN in many delightful ways. As a ready-to-eat cereal with milk, honey, sprinkled over cereal and salads, in soups. It is appetizing in cooked food. Your grocer has Kellogg's ALL-BRAN in the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Former Venango Oil Operator Dies

FRANKLIN, Pa., Aug. 1.—James Hastings Snowden, former oil lease operator of Venango County, died in New York Wednesday night after a brief illness. He was well known as a philanthropist. He left Oil City 25 years ago. Once the owner of leases at Plumer and Trunkeyville, he later operated on a large scale in Western territories.

Low Water Handicap As Dwelling Burns

WASHINGTON, Pa., Aug. 1.—A five-room frame dwelling, in Arnold avenue, Canonsburg, was destroyed with all contents when lack of water pressure hampered firemen in fighting a blaze which broke out in the basement. The property was owned by Frank Kaminsky. Loss was estimated at $8,000.

Radox Oxygen Baths Captivate and Thrill American Women

Radox (Radiates Oxygen)—England's Famous Oxygen Bath Salts Now on Sale in America—Rids Body Pores of Impurities, Acid Secretions and Odorous Deposits.

THE SENSATION OF EUROPE

Radox, that marvelously rejuvenating, beautifying and energizing English Bath Salts—the talk of all Europe—is at last obtainable in the U. S.

Radox is more than just the usual highly perfumed salts in expensive jars—

Combining the same wonderful properties of world-famous Spas of Carlsbad, Marienbad, Vichy and similar medicinal baths, Radox also releases a volume of oxygen in your bath water—this Oxygen penetrates every one of the millions of body pores and swiftly and thoroughly cleanses them of harmful acids and odorous deposits.

The quick way to banish blackheads and blemishes—how enchantingly smooth and velvety soft your skin is—your whole body just glows with an alluring beauty which Radox alone imparts. The perfect body deodorant.

Get a large package of Radox today for 85 cents at Mayflower Drug Stores, or any drug store. Enough for 8 of the most joyous, beautifying and rejuvenating baths you ever had in your life, and if you don't agree—money back.

M'NAB JAILED IN WIFE KILLING

James McNab, 54, of 159 Wabash avenue, rear, who, police say, killed his wife, and after burying her beneath his rear porch, slashed his throat in an attempt to end his own life, today was being held in county jail on a charge of murder.

When Homicide Detective Dennis Timpona took him from the coroner's office to the county jail, he again admitted committing the crime, it was alleged, and said:

"No, it isn't my conscience that's bothering me. But anyway, I'm sorry now that I did it."

At the coroner's office McNab told virtually the same story he gave police July 9, when a plumber discovered his wife's body partially beneath the porch.

Then he said, according to police, that he had an argument with his wife and that he hit her. She fell down stairs, police quoted him as saying, and he left her there all night. She was dead the next morning.

McNab was discharged from the South Side Hospital late yesterday.

Damaged Steamship Beached in Safety

LONDON, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—The 4,928-ton British India steamship Nerbudda, badly damaged in collision with the Spanish ship Legazpi 100 miles east of Gibraltar, today was reported safely beached at Ferro Castle.

MATCH 'TRUST' FOUGHT HERE

The $350,000,000 Swedish match industry, headed by Ivar Kreuger, who conceived the idea of a match monopoly in America and went back to Sweden where he cornered the match industry of Europe, is threatened by the entry of a company headed by Pittsburgh interests.

The Palmer Match Company, headed by John L. Walker, president and treasurer; James H. and J. M. Lockhart and H. L. Mason, Jr., already attracting notice in the match industry, is soon to add to its large plant in Akron, O., officials announced today.

The Palmer company, following action of the Diamond Match Company, recently served notice on the Swedish company that it would cancel the agency contract it held for the sale of Kreuger safety matches in the United States.

Walker, asked if the Palmer company is likely to invade the foreign field, answered that at present the company is finding it difficult to supply the American demand.

Mary Pickford Once More Says That She Is Not Quitting Films

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1930, Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 1.

Another rumor that Mary Pickford would retire was born and died today.

The report, like that of a month ago, grew out of a cut in the Pickford forces and an alteration in the star's plans for her next picture.

Immediately on hearing the rumor, I located Mary, and she personally denied the retirement angle. There will be a further delay in her picture, however. In fact, her talkie version of "Secrets" may be abandoned entirely.

"I haven't been able to get together with Sam Taylor on the story, because he has been busy finishing Miss Talmadge's picture," said Mary. "He's not in favor of making 'Forever Yours' (the new title) anyway.

"Sam believes that it would be better for me to do a light comedy at this time. I'm undecided myself. 'Romance' is not a comedy and it is reported to be doing very well. We'll study public reaction a little more closely, if it seems advisable for me to do a lighter story, then we'll have to look around for one."

Mary denied that she will follow Doug's example and work in a picture for Joseph M. Schenck.

"As long as I make pictures, I'll produce them myself,' she affirmed.

A DOUBLE NEGATIVE

When Joseph M. Schenck returned to California, Al Jolson drove to Barstow to meet him. On the way back, they got off the main road and had to inquire how to proceed.

Al spied two men walking along the road.

"Do you know how to get to San Bernardino?" he asked one of them.

"No," replied the man.

Just as the car was pulling away, the fellow came running back.

"Here's my friend," he shout-

THE WAR GAME IN AIR BOOMS AND ZOOMS IN STANLEY

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"The Dawn Patrol' is zooming and booming on the Stanley screen. It is one of those pictures about war in the clouds. Youngsters, not so far away from the toy soldier age, drink hard liquor and then sail out into the dawn to die. They are a pathetic lot, these boys. They have a song about drinking a toast to the men already dead and invariably on the tomorrow THEY are the MEN.

Richard Barthelmess is the star. And here's one time no heroine fair awaits him at the finale. Instead, he goes into the fadeout clinch with that pale thing, Death.

The picture achieves thrills in its air sequences. There are daring raids over the battle lines. Flaming planes careen crazily to earth. A hero makes a solo flight to the enemy's supply base. He sends giant bombs flopping downward. Zoom! A railroad train and bridge is blown to bits. Zoom! This time it is a munition factory.

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Neil Hamilton are prominent. And Mr. Hamilton, in the role of a major, tries to be another Capt. Stanhope. But he succeeds in only one respect—in the amount of liquor he consumes.

ORIGINALITY SHRIEKS!

In other ways, too, the film shows the influence of that powerful war drama, "Journey's End." For example, in the style of its dialogue. It strives for those biting, snapped-off sentences. Also there is an orderly present reminiscent of Mason and a tenderfoot who says "fawther" just as young Raleigh would say it.

"The Dawn Patrol' shows the influence of other things. Army orders, which motivated the grim plot of "Sergeant Grischa," also motivate the action in the Barthelmess film. They are the cause of men sending their best friends out to die.

Comedy is present. And a moment that is rather ridiculous. Imagine Mr. Hamilton in his underwear, waving clinched fists at the heavens.

The best thing about it all is the air battle displays. These are moviesque, but spectacular. The next best is the acting of Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. The star, Mr. Barthelmess, can learn something from him.

The production, lengthy as it is, is entertainment. Too bad, it isn't more impressive.

GOOD LUCK, MR. POWELL

On the stage is the revue, "Ginger Snaps"—and Dick Powell. Smiling, as usual, Mr. Powell passes out some real ginger snaps and goes through a couple tunes. Next week this same Mr. Powell is to move back to the Enright, scene of his first Pittsburgh popularity.

Mr. Powell, as far as we're concerned, has been an enigma as a master of ceremonies. We admit this frankly. Likeable and happy always, he lacks the versatility—so it seems to us—that m.c.s. should possess. But he has gotten by in a big way. And there is something about him—an honesty and a modesty—that has made us glad he did. So we're cheering for him and hoping Old Man Success will continue to deal him an ace-high hand. And this isn't "newspaper talk." It is sincere.

ed, "and he don't know either."

INA LOSES OUT

Ina Claire (Mrs. John Gilbert) is due for a disappointment. Just as everything appeared set for her to do the film version of "Rebound," Pathe stepped in and bought the talkie rights to this nimble-witted comedy by Donald Ogden Stewart. Now the leading feminine role will fall either to Ann Harding, Constance Bennett or Mary Astor. In the meanwhile, Ina continues to be a big hit in the local stage version of "Rebound."

PAIN
so easily relieved!

How to treat
Headaches
Neuralgia
Neuritis
or check a Cold

WHY are some women so patient with pain? Shopping with a head that throbs. Working when they ache all over. Sometimes it's hours before they take Bayer Aspirin and get relief! Most men take these tablets the moment that some ache or pain threatens their comfort. So should you. Genuine Aspirin is perfectly harmless; cannot depress the heart. The tablet stamped Bayer is always genuine Aspirin; always the same, always safe. So it isn't sensible to suffer with a headache, a cold, neuralgic pains, or anything else that these tablets relieve almost as soon as swallowed. Buy by the bottle and save money. Any drugstore has the 100-tablet size.

TRUE STORIES OF CONSTRUCTIVE BANKING No. 4

Bookkeeper Builds Capital from Income . . .

BACK in 1916 he started a Farmers Savings Account with one dollar from his first week's pay. Today a balance of more than $8,000.00 in his Savings Account and other investments are the result of following a planned financial program.

Until 1923 his weekly deposits were regular, though small. Since 1923 they have been at the rate of $20 per week. There have been frequent withdrawals when worthwhile opportunities for investment came along but the Savings Account has been, and continues to be, the foundation for his financial structure.

"I think," he told us recently, "that the practice of depositing part of each pay helps me organize and control my expenditures so that I really get more for my money than if I were to spend it all without any definite plan. Certainly the fact that I have been able to pay cash for an occasional automobile and to pay insurance premiums on an annual basis has saved many dollars in interest charges."

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Pittsburgh Folks Speed Return

Early September will bring back many Pittsburgh folks, who've been in the Northeast nearly all the long summer. Many members of the younger set will be home by mid-September, since many entertainments in honor of debutantes will mark the final weeks of the first month of autumn.

One such event of September will be a dinner dance the Christian I. Shannons, of Sewickley, will give in the Allegheny Country Club.

And the guests of honor will be two buds of the season, Ruth Willock, daughter of the Frank Scott Willocks, and Madelaine Alexander, daughter of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Maitland Alexander.

Ruth will make her bow in the Pittsburgh Club on December 22, and Madelaine made her debut on June 25.

Starring the very first day of the last month of summer is an engagement. And I venture to prophesy that before young folks return to town in the autumn there'll be many more.

The betrothal I've just learned of is that of a Greensburg girl and a Jeannette man. The John M. Jamisons, of "East Gate," Greensburg, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Hetty Barclay Jamison, to Paul Euwer, son of the William F. Euwers, of Jeanette.

Hetty's father is a former state senator and is president of the Jamison Coal and Coke Company, of Greensburg. Hetty is interested in horses and dogs, like other members in her family. At the dog show at Greensburg in July I saw her watching her entries, and I've always noticed her at Greensburg horse shows. At the dog show this year, she was a member of one of the committees, I believe.

Mr. Euwer is a Princeton man. During his university days he was on the varsity football team, and was captain of the baseball team his senior year.

Have you heard that Col. and Mrs. Samuel Harden Church are back from Europe, and are now at their Wallingford street place?

News of Travels

And that Mrs. William Rice Jarvis and her daughter, Margaret Jarvis, are in Cape Cod, Mass., for the remainder of the summer?

Mrs. William Zang and her daughter Neil and Miss Neil Stewart are home from Bedford, Pa. Later they will go to Hyannisport.

Georgianna Collin, after being the house guest of her grandfather and grandmother, the George Hubbard Clapps, of Woodland road, has gone to Kennebunkport, Me., where her father and mother, the William Welsh Collins, have a cottage.

Virginia Jones, daughter of the William Evan Joneses, of Edgeworth, who accompanied Georgianna, is a guest of the Collin family.

Mrs. Anna B. Gallup, of South avenue, Wilkinsburg, announces the betrothal of her daughter, Miss Betty Gallup, to Graham Lee Moses, son of Mrs. Jane Lee Moses, of Maple avenue, Edgewood. The engagement will terminate in a home wedding on August 30. After an eastern trip Mr. Moses and his bride will be at home in South avenue, Wilkinsburg.

A varied round of social festivities marks the calendar at Watch Hill, R. I., where so many Pittsburgh folks are summering. The Richard Beatty Mellons gave a luncheon there last Saturday for 34 guests, in honor of the A. Rex Flinns, who have been their house guests. The Flinns had a cottage at the resort last season. On Saturday evening the Alan Magee Scaifes entertained 26 guests at a dinner at the Dunes Club, Narragansett.

Resort Gossip

The Harry Darlingtons entertained several guests at dinner aboard their yacht, the Ardea, in the harbor Sunday evening.

Mrs. William S. Moorhead and Mrs. Darlington are among the women taking part in the women's four-ball foursome tournament at the Misquamicut Golf Club this week. The William Christopher Robinsons and their daughter, Mary, and their son, William, Jr., arrived last Friday from New York on their yacht, the Solana, bringing several guests from Pittsburgh, including the Alex Robinsons, Rebecca Doyle, the Ledlie Youngs and Charles L. Bell.

Mrs. Eugene Massler and Mrs. Verner Scaife, guests of the William Booth Trainers, have been honored with several informal affairs. Mrs. William S. Moorhead gave a dinner in their honor Tuesday night and Mrs. Trainer entertained at an informal dinner party for them on Wednesday. Last Sunday Mrs. William Robinson gave a party for them on her yacht, with a sail in the afternoon and a supper party afterward in the home of the J. Frederic Byerses. Bucky Byers, the very youthful son of the J. Frederic Byerses, caught the largest blackfish that has been caught off Watch Hill this year, last Monday. It tipped the scales at 10½ pounds. Recently, Bucky landed the record catch of sea bass off Montauk Point, 32 fish in all, the largest weighing five pounds.

Honor Guests

Mrs. W. J. Holland entertained 40 guests at the golf club on Tuesday. Among the women who have entered the women's tennis doubles tournament to take place next week are Mrs. Thomas H. Eddy and Althea Robinson.

Miss Mary Louise Warner, daughter of Mrs. George Carlton Hughes, of Freeport avenue, Aspinwall, and Dr. William R. Marshall, of Aspinwall, were married at 7:30 o'clock in the Aspinwall United Presbyterian Church by the Rev. John Milholland. Garden flowers, ferns and palms decorated the church.

Church Wedding

The bride wore a gown of ivory satin and a veil of tulle, and carried white roses and lilies of the valley. Her matron of honor, Mrs. John Marshall, wore green point d'esprit and carried garden flowers. Miss Margaret Nelson, of Duquesne, Pa., and Miss Katherine Walker, of Elizabeth, bridesmaids, wore yellow point d'esprit gowns, and Mrs. Robert Murphy, of Bellevue, and Miss Katherine Howd, of Wellsboro, Pa., also bridesmaids, wore pink point d'esprit. All the bridesemaids carried arm boquets of garden flowers.

Jane Gilson Hughes as flower girl wore orchid point d'esprit, and carried a colonial boquet.

Dr. John Marshall was best man, and Robert Murphy, Emmet McLaughlin, Raymond Goehring and Dr. Donald Goehring were ushers.

A reception in the Pittsburgh Field Club followed the ceremony. After September 1 Dr. and Mrs. Marshall will be at home in Aspinwall.

Italians Hold French Fliers, Forced Down

FINALMARINA, Italy, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—A French military airplane manned by two sergeants, with machine guns aboard but no ammunition, was held here today pending an investigation after a forced landing about 9 o'clock last night.

OFFICER GIVES TIMELY HELP

Motorcycle Patrolman John Polesak, of Cheswick, today was wondering who the Pittsburgh patrolman was who went to his rescue while he was battling a Negro prisoner in Springdale last night. The city officer, in civilian clothes but wearing his badge, jumped out of an automobile and covered the Negro with a revolver until Polesak could put handcuffs on him. Then the helpful stranger left without giving his name.

Polesak was taking Andrew Brown, 28, a Negro, of Kelly street, Pittsburgh, to the Springdale lockup in the sidecar of his motorcycle when the prisoner reached for the officer's gun, encased in an open holster. In the ensuing struggle both Polseak and Brown were thrown to the roadway.

Brown was held on a charge of larceny of an automobile, and his three Negro companions, who said they were Harry Cochran, 24; Thomas Alexander, 30, and Edgar Taylor, 25, all of Apollo, were held as accessories after the fact.

Girl Wed at 11 Gets Divorce At 15

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—(INS.)—Sarah Cohen, just 15 years old, was in possession of a divorce decree here today.

She was tired of married life with her husband Charles Cohen, she told Judge Robert Gentzel yesterday. To the astonished judge she said:

"Four years of married life with him is enough."

$200,000 Mansion Of Financier Burns

FRAMINGHAM, Mass., Aug. 1.—(INS.)—Raceland, the $200,000 residence and stables of John R. Macomber, one of New England's wealthiest financiers, was swept by fire today.

May Morn, bay mare, ridden by Miss Dorothy Neyhart at the last Brookline Country Club race meeting, lost her life when she left a stampede of seven other horses and re-entered her stall.

SEEK MORROW SUCCESSOR

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—In an effort to fill the diplomatic post he considers most important in the Western hemisphere, President Hoover has turned his attention to the selection of a successor to Dwight W. Morrow, ambassador to Mexico.

Morrow has set September as the time when he probably will relinquish his Mexico City post in preparation for the November senatorial campaign in New Jersey, in which he is the Republican candidate.

It is generally expected in diplomatic circles here that one of Mr. Morrow's final acts in Mexico City will be to lay before the Mexican government the name of his successor, to learn if the President's selection is "persona grata" to the Southern republic.

A BRIGHT FUTURE PREDICTED FOR THE BLACK SATIN FROCK

—Sketched in Paris—

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, AUG. 1.—Once again can the sartorial story be told in black and white. This Autumn will find the classic color combination more firmly entrenched than ever, particularly for frocks of the more important type. And those of you who are addicted to black and white frocks developed in lustrous satin, or crepe will find that your tastes have been catered to by the leading couturiers who intend to see that we are all magnificently attired this Autumn. And despite the glamorous sheen of a metallic material or the rich surface of a velvet or a brocade we shall find that the richest looking, if not the most lavish dresses are of heavy, lustrous satin in black alone or combined with white. Dresses of this type are invariably most simple in detail, otherwise the model is rather apt to be overwhelming, something that the perfectly dressed woman always avoids in even her most magnificent toilettes. And as black and white can be very garish and loud, if not properly handled, it is advised that great care be exercised in the choice of a frock in this color scheme, which should always be worn only with appropriate and carefully chosen accessories, intended to sustain and emphasize the black and white motif without being too obvious about the task.

THE TOLLMANN MODEL shown combines black and white satin in a very smart manner. Black and white bead embroidery trims the top of the bodice. The wrapped effect in the two colors at the hips is a clever and effective note. The circular skirt is decided by flaring, but, because of the weight of the material, falls in heavy deep folds. The novel hip treatment is of course only for the very slender figure.

THE SEMI-SPORTS semi-formal frock which is a gem from the Worth summer collection, is of crepe de Chine in a lovely pastel blue. The guimpe is of white georgette with scalloped edges. The clever little bodice has a loose cape back and ties in two bow-knots at front. Diagonal piecings form the snug-fitting upper half of the skirt, and a box-pleated flounce, the lower, thus combining the fashionable snug hipline with the practical fulness so desirable in a daytime frock.

CIVIC CLUB TO HOLD GARDEN FESTIVAL

Two Affairs Arranged For Sept.

The Women's Civic Club is planning two important affairs for September. The garden festival will be held Tuesday, September 16, from 6:30 to 11:30 o'clock. The committees plan to make the affair the outstanding event of the year. Mrs. George Capp is general chairman, and Miss Christine Goldstrohm, vice chairman. The public health and welfare committee under the direction of Mrs. Robert Laing, is planning a corn roast for September 3, to be held on the lawn of the club. A supper will be served that evening from 5 to 10:30 o'clock.

The Chautauqua reading class will reorganize the first week in September. A class in modern fiction will be organized at the same time. The next business meeting of the club will be held on Tuesday evening, September 2.

Indigestion

Immediate Relief!

What most people call indigestion is usually excess acid in the stomach. The food has soured. The instant remedy is an alkali, which neutralizes acids. But don't use crude helps. Use what your doctor would advise.

The best help is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. For the 50 years since its invention it has remained standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick in its effect, so harmless, so efficient.

One tasteless spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in acid. The results are immediate, with no bad after-effects. Once you learn this fact, you will never deal with excess acid in the crude ways. Go learn—now—why this method is supreme.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drug store.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

Pineapple Has Qualities Suitable for Summer

Dr. Copeland Finds the Canned Variety Especially Tasty and Valuable for Hot Weather Salads.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
Former Health Commissioner of New York City; U. S. Senator from New York.

Among all the fruits at our disposal none is more valuable or more popular than pineapple. Certainly there is no fruit that excels it in flavor and aroma. We should make use of it more than we do.

There is nothing more delicious than the fresh, ripe pineapple. Unfortunately, we cannot always find the just perfect fresh fruit, for it has to be shipped so far that it cannot be picked fully ripe.

But canned pineapple is made from fully ripe fruit, put up right where it matures on the trees. This is really the ideal canned product.

ROUGHAGE VALUABLE

Pineapples are grown in various tropical countries. Some of the finest fruit we have on sale in America is the Hawaiian canned pineapple. The pineapple canning industry in Hawaii has grown to great proportions in the past quarter of a century. This fact attests to the growing popularity of the fruit.

The ripe pineapple contains from 9 to 15 per cent of sugar. It possesses valuable fruit acids which are stimulating to digestion, as well as health promoting. The unripe pineapple has a much lower sugar content.

We hear a good deal about the important roughage needed in digestion. The pineapple, with its fibrous substance, is valuable in this particular. The intestinal tract will not function properly unless we eat foods which give bulk and roughage to the diet.

NOT FATTENING

For canning purposes, the ripest and juciest pineapples are used. Fruits so dead ripe that they cannot be shipped in the natural state come right to our table, with their goodness unaltered.

Summertime is salad time. A fruit salad made with pineapple appeals to almost everybody. It is particularly cooling and appetizing on a hot day. With one large slice of very ripe pineapple on lettuce leaves, together with sliced pears, oranges and strawberries or other fruits, you have a wonderful salad.

For those who love sweets, but who are forced to reduce, here is a fruit that is well taken. A reasonable amount of pineapple will prove beneficial and less fattening than any other sweet food.

RICH IN MINERALS

We need the minerals and vitamins of the fruits. Pineapple is particularly rich in mineral salts, and it has laxative properties that are valuable.

When you go hunting for a good dessert, pineapple ice cream or sherbet is indeed delicious for any occasion. There is an ice cream made with pineapple, mint leaves finely chopped, and orange juice. Doesn't it sound good? And it is good for health.

PRUDENCE PENNY'S RECIPES

Chilled Watermelon Balls
Rolled Flank Steak
Stuffed Potatoes
Broiled Tomatoes
Spiced Beets
Steamed Cherry Pudding
Coffee

A fruit appetizer, thoroughly chilled and attractively served, is sure to be the right introduction to a summer meal when the appetite is particularly fickle and must be coaxed a bit, even when rolled flank steak does appear on the menu.

I know you'll find the ice-cold watermelon balls most refreshing when served with a sprig of mint or sprinkled with a few drops of lemon juice.

Ready for the rolled flank steak? You prepare it like this: First mix a French dressing in the usual way, using 3 tablespoons oil to 1 tablespoon vinegar or lemon juice. Season with salt, pepper, paprika and mustard.

Pour half the French dressing on a platter. Lay 3 pounds flank steak on the platter and pour the remaining dressing over it. Let the meat stand in the refrigerator for about 2 hours, then drain. Spread the steak with this mixture: 3 cups bread crumbs, 1 large minced onion, ½ teaspoon poultry seasoning, 1 teaspoon salt, pepper, and ⅛ cup melted butter.

Roll the steak and fasten it together with short skewers.

Heat a piece of suet and when melted add the meat roll. Brown on all sides, then add a scant ½ cup water. Cover and cook slowly until the meat is tender. About an hour before serving, place stuffed potatoes around the meat and continue cooking.

Wash and pare 6 potatoes and remove the centers with an apple corer. Season with salt and pepper. Insert small white onions in the center of the potatoes. Turn the potatoes when partly done and, if you wish, add a few mushroom caps.

One of the surest ways to have a party successful is to be perfectly natural about your entertaining. Parties that cost so much money that it worries you, and that demand a maximum of energy just to get them in swing, aren't much fun, usually.

Given a sandwich toaster and the necessary ingredients, a coffee percolator and a pot of fragrant, exquisitely brewed tea in order that your guests may take their choice of beverages, even an impromptu party couldn't help being a grand affair.

Much, to be sure, will depend on the sandwiches. I commend you to these that follow:

ORIENT SANDWICHES—Cream a package of cream cheese, and add to it ½ teaspoon of salt and 10 stoned, chopped dates. Add chopped walnuts, and spread between buttered toast.

SALMON AND CUCUMBER SANDWICHES—Remove the skin and bone from a small can of salmon. Mash and mix with ½ small cucumber which has been pared and chopped finely. Season with salt and pepper and moisten with salad dressing. Use as a filling between slices of buttered toast.

CRAB AND OLIVE SANDWICHES—Chop ½ cupful of shredded crabmeat and 6 stuffed olives together. Moisten with salad dressing and spread on toast.

GINGER AND NUT SANDWICHES—Put through the food chopper candied or preserved ginger. Add chopped nuts and moisten with soft jelly or orange juice. Spread on buttered toast and garnish with a half walnut. Omit the top slice of toast.

PEANUT SANDWICHES—Mash a package of cream cheese, mix with a tablespoon of lemon juice and add ¼ pound of salted nuts. Spread between slices of buttered toast, cut in small triangles, and garnish each sandwich by pressing half a peanut firmly into the center of the top slice.

FRUIT PUNCH—Four cups cold water, 2 cups sugar, 1 cup orange juice, ½ cup lemon juice, 2 cups grated pineapple.

Boil water, sugar and pineapple together for 20 minutes. Add fruit juice, cool and strain. Pour over plenty of ice cubes in which candied orange peel has been frozen, or if you wish to use fewer ice cubes, dilute beverage somewhat with cold water before serving.

ORANGE PIE FILLING—One cup sugar, ½ cup flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, grated rind 1 orange, 1 cup orange juice, juice ½ lemon, 2 tablespoons butter, 3 egg yolks.

Mix sugar, flour, salt and grated rind; add fruit juice and cook in double boiler 10 minutes, stirring until thickened, and afterward, occasionally. Add butter and egg yolks, beaten light; cook 2 minutes and cool. Finish like lemon pie.

LEMON CATSUP—Grated rind of 4 lemons, juice of 4 lemons, 1 tablespoon grated horseradish, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons white mustard seed, 2 teaspoons celery seed, 4 cloves, few blades mace, few grains red pepper.

Mix ingredients; boil 35 minutes and bottle while hot. Let stand 5 or 6 weeks to ripen. Serve with fish.

HAM AND SPINACH SALAD: Prepare a salad dressing of 2 tablespoons oil, 1 tablespoon vinegar, ½ teaspoon mustard, salt and pepper.

Mix with 2 cups boiled spinach and pack lightly into 6 small molds. When chilled, turn each mold of spinach on a slice of cold ham served on lettuce.

Garnish with sliced, hard-

PEACH BETTY: Cut 6 large peaches in halves, removing the stones. Place the peaches in a baking dish, hollow side up and put a teaspoon of butter in each half. Pour ¼ cup of raspberry juice over the peaches.

Sprinkle with ¼ cup bread or cake crumbs and 1 tablespoon sugar. Add another layer of peaches and cover with bread or cake crumbs and 1 tablespoon sugar. Use another quarter cup of the raspberry juice for basting during the baking.

Serve the peach betty directly from the hot baking dish.

CHERRY ROLLS—One and one-half cups special cake flour, sifted; 3 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons butter or other shortening, ½ cup milk (about), 1 can (two cups) red cherries, seeded and drained.

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again. Cut in shortening. Add milk gradually until soft dough is formed. Roll ¼-inch thick. Cover with cherries. Roll in long roll, pressing edges together. Cut into 1½-inch slices. Place in greased pan and pour cherry sauce over them. Bake in hot oven (425 degrees F.) 30 minutes, basting often. Serve hot, with sauce poured around them and a tablespoon of whipped cream placed on each side. Serves six. Cherry sauce calls for 1 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 cup cherry juice, 1 cup water and a tablespoon butter. Combine sugar and flour, add fruit juice and water, and cook 1 minute. Then add butter.

TUNA LOAF—One and one-half cups tuna, 1 cup soft bread crumbs, 2 eggs, 3 tablespoons chopped celery, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley, 2 tablespoons chopped green peppers, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 cup milk, 3 tablespoons butter, melted.

Mix ingredients and pour into buttered loaf pan. Bake 35 minutes in moderately slow oven. Unmold carefully and surround with baked tomatoes. Garnish with parsley.

PEAR CHIP—Eight pounds pears, 4 lemons, 10 cups sugar, ½ ounce ginger root, 1 cup water.

Wash and peel the pears. Cut in halves and remove cores. Wash and slice lemons very thin. Remove all seeds. Mix pears, lemon slices, water and sugar. Let stand 30 minutes. Boil gently 30 minutes. Add ginger root. Let stand over night. Boil 4 minutes. Pour into sterilized jars and seal.

DUTCH APPLE CAKE

Two cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons sugar, 4 tablespoons fat, 1 egg, 1 cup milk.

Mix the flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Cut in fat with knife. Add egg and milk. Pour to thickness of 1½ inches in a greased pan. Add the apple mixture.

APPLE MIXTURE

Two cups apples, cut in thin slices, ⅔ cup water, 1 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 3 tablespoons butter, ½ teaspoon vanilla.

Mix apples and water. Cook 5 minutes in covered pan. Add sugar, cinnamon and butter. Cook 5 minutes. Add vanilla. Cool. Spread on top the dough mixture. Bake 20 minutes in moderate oven.

Serve warm or cold. Cut in squares.

7 AT CIVIL WAR UNIT REUNION

WASHINGTON, Pa., Aug. 1.—Seven surviving veterans attended the annual reunion of the Ringgold Cavalry in the home of James H. Dever, here. This famous Civil War unit was also known as the Twenty-second Pennsylvania Cavalry.

Those present were Samuel C. Farrar, 87, Crafton; Morris Smith, 87, Daisytown; J. W. Byland, 84, Daisytown; John B. Taylor, 92, Beallsville; Wade J. Day, 86, Washington; Hopkins Moffitt, 92, Daisytown, and Joseph Barnett, 84, Girard, O.

The necrological report announced death during the past year of Samuel Wright, formerly of Charleroi, and Henry M. Snyder, Beallsville.

These officers were re-elected: President, Wade J. Day, Washington; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. J. W. Wilson, Canonsburg, and necrological secretary, Samuel Farrar, Crafton.

PENNSYLVANIAN ADDS 25 POUNDS IN SIX WEEKS

Konjola, the New and Different Medicine, Proves Right Remedy in Stubborn Case.

Medicines, like men, are known for their deeds, not for promises and claims that are made for them. Konjola stands upon a bedrock foundation of successes and accomplishments. Scientifically compounded of 32 ingredients, 22 of which are the juices of roots and herbs of a medicinal value long known to science, this great compound has made an unparalleled record in the relief of ailments of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. When given a fair trial, in most cases over a period of from six to eight weeks, it is rare indeed that this master medicine does not bring about the relief for which sufferers seek.

The Konjola Man at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, is prepared to tell you more about this justly famous compound. See him today and get the facts, true and verified. Mr. Levi L. Wise, 996 Fayette Street, Washington, near Pittsburgh, has an interesting experience to relate. Here is what he recently reported to the Konjola Man:

"I cannot praise Konjola too highly. It is a wonderful medicine. I had been suffering with stomach and liver trouble for a year or more. I tried many medicines and treatments but could not get any results. Gas formed and I bloated after each meal until there were times when I could scarcely get my breath. I had spots before my eyes and sometimes went temporarily blind. This was a terrible feeling.

"I read of the wonderful results people were getting as they appeared in the local papers. I have taken six bottles of Konjola and I have gained twenty-five pounds. The gas and bloating have disappeared and I have no trouble with my eyes. I sleep well at night, have a good appetite and feel stronger generally. My color has greatly improved and I really could not be in better health than I am today."

Mr. Levi's case is typical of thousands. Konjola's record has made this master medicine and tonic the most talked-of in America. Free from alcohol or nerve-deadening drugs, Konjola is safe and sure.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where he is meeting the public daily, explaining the merits of this new and different medicine. FREE SAMPLES GIVEN by the Konjola Man. Konjola is also sold by all Dow Drug Stores, in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

THE WOMAN at home can take a liquid medicine regularly. The woman who is working or travelling finds it almost impossible to do so. Realizing this fact, the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company is now offering its famous Vegetable Compound in convenient palatable tablet form.

For half a century, women have depended upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to carry them through the trying periods of maturity, maternity and middle age. Now any woman can take her medicine regularly wherever she may be. The stenographer can keep these handy tablets in her desk, the salesgirl at her counter. Each package contains 70 tablets or 35 doses.

These tablets are just as effective as the liquid form.

Mr. Spear Makes a Statement

Everyone who has been reading the papers lately knows that at this time prices are the lowest ever known for good furniture of tasteful designing. Such prices were unbelievable even a few months ago. At the July Furniture Market in Chicago prices again took a big drop—today, in this 1930 August Sale they are lower than any furniture man ever dreamed they could be.

This is not because furniture prices have been unduly high in the past—but because of prevailing abnormal economic conditions. How long the present situation will exist no one really knows, and the most sincere advice that any furniture merchant can give the prospective buyer is to "buy now."

With all our knowledge of the furniture industry and conditions affecting it, we cannot see how prices can go any lower than they are today, nor how long they can remain at the present extreme low level. The upward trend, which is beyond any store or individual's power to prevent, may begin overnight, as it were. One thing is certain, however, furniture manufacturers cannot continue to manufacture furniture at a loss. The person who buys furniture now will not regret his investment, for he has more things in his favor than he may ever have again.

Here, at Spear's, we have done such a good selling job the first six months of this year that when July first rolled around our warehouses were practically empty! We had no vast reserve stocks, bought at the old, higher prices, to dispose of. This is tremendously to our customers' advantage, for when our buyers attended the great Chicago Market, less than a month ago, they were able to take full and complete advantage of the big price drop that occurred, with the result that every piece of furniture in our August Sale is fresh from its maker at a low price that may never again be surpassed.

I invite you to visit either Spear store to examine and compare our values; to view the many floors of good furniture that to my mind is the most brilliantly styled, most comfortable, livable furniture to which mankind has ever been treated.

Sleuths Foil Plot to Free Captive

GANGSTERS IN AUTO ELUDED

Man Accused in Car Theft Tips Captors to Scheme; Alleged Pal Also Held

Robert J. Quinlan, alias Ben J. McCloy, and Roy Harmony, alias Jack Allen, were being held in the county jail today, although friends of Quinlan are alleged to have made an unsuccessful attempt to "shoot him to freedom" while he was being returned to Pittsburgh from Newark, O., Wednesday night.

The pair, according to Frank J. Neville, of the Kissel-Skiles Company, are accused of stealing an automobile owned by the company and to have sold it in New Hampshire after altering the identification. Harmony was taken into custody yesterday afternoon in the East Liberty offices of the Western Union, where constables waited for him to appear for a message.

QUINLAN ARRESTED

The theft occurred last June 30, Neville said. A few days ago it was learned Quinlan was in Newark. He was arrested there on complaint of Neville. Wednesday Neville and Constables Rocco Belsito and Frank Carricato from the office of Justice of the Peace James A. Hernon, of Sharpsburg, went to Newark to return Quinlan to Pittsburgh.

As they were returning by automobile Wednesday night, Quinlan, Neville said, pointed out a large automobile following and declared his friends, armed with a machine gun, were in the car. They would attack when he signaled them, Quinlan said, according to Neville. Apparently fearing injury in the prospective battle, Quinlan directed the constables and Neville to drive on unfrequented roads, thus eluding the followers, Neville said.

HARMONY ARRESTED

Questioning Quinlan, police learned of the machine being in New Hampshire and wired to police there. The present owner replied that he had just received a telegram from Harmony in Pittsburgh, demanding another payment for the car. A telegram was sent to Harmony and when he appeared in the Western Union office he was arrested by Carricato.

Police say the pair work as bell hops in hotels and during the summer travel with carnivals. Justice of the Peace Hernon committed them to jail pending hearings.

TRAFFIC GROUP MAPS SAFETY PROGRAM

Rosenbaum Sees Prospect Of Downtown Parking Ban Being Absolute Necessity

Methods which might be adopted for the relief of congestion in the downtown streets were discussed at the general meeting of the Better Traffic Committee yesterday at which Frank L. Duggan, general chairman, presided. The committee also discussed the fall traffic safety educational program and gave consideration to the final draft of the codified traffic code.

Walter Rosenbaum, vice chairman of the committee, commented on the possible elimination of parking downtown. He said traffic conditions have become so alarming that unless the committee could get co-operation from all points, the eventual elimination of downtown parking would be an absolute necessity.

The committee passed resolutions expressing their sympathy to the family of the late Dr. William M. Davidson, city superintendent of schools, who died Sunday; congratulating May-Stern Company for their gift of a playground to the city, and lauding the newspapers for their traffic law enforcement efforts.

The committee called upon the Chamber of Commerce, the flood commission, the City-County Planning Commissions and other interested groups, to co-operate in efforts to promote the provision of adequate off-street parking facilities on the wharves and in other parts of the city adjacent to the downtown business district.

Rosenbaum announced that the unveiling of the committee's traffic safety monument on the Bigelow boulevard island at Thirtieth street, was to take place Monday morning at 8:30 o'clock.

13,750,000 CONSUMERS NEARBY

Commerce Chamber Report Shows City's Merits for Distribution of Products

In a summary of industrial information, the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce today points out that 13,750,000 individual consumers reside within 200 miles of the city. The figures were compiled by A. S. Keller, industrial manager of the chamber, to show the value of the city as a manufacturer's distribution center.

The summary is said to be one of the most complete ever put out by the chamber in an effort to show the city's industrial relationship with other centers of the country. The summary shows that 70 per cent of the invested capital of the country is represented within a 500-mile radius of Pittsburgh.

IN POPULOUS AREA

In the same territory, it is declared, there lives 56 per cent of the country's population and 47 per cent of the population of Canada. Located in this radius are 65 per cent of the country's manufacturing establishments. The booklets may be obtained free at the chamber, Keller said. The summary also emphasizes the transportation facilities available to manufacturers and distributors, and it mentions that the Pittsburgh district has 240 miles of navigable water frontage; 6,700 miles of public roads and nine state highways radiating from the city to outside territory.

ELECTRIC LINES

In addition, five urban and interurban electric railways out of the city haul consumers and buyers from 152 cities and towns. There are six main trunk lines and 19 industrial and terminal switching roads listed under the steam railroads. Pittsburgh, according to the summary, is the center of fuel and transportation in the country. It is 40 miles from the center of population east of the Mississippi and 49 miles from the center of labor population in the country.

Comparing the living conditions here with these in 92 industrial centers of the country, Mr. Keller says it costs the average family $17.27 less per year to live here per year. Based on a statistical study, Keller set the living cost of the average Pittsburgh family at $1,417.10 per year.

THIRD USED FOR FARMING

The booklet points out that one-third of the area in this district is given over to agriculture and that the annual value of crops is $22,000,000. Twenty-one of the 26 commercial minerals found within a 100-mile radius are produced in commercial quantities.

In comparing Allegheny County with 20 most populous counties of the United States, excepting New York City and Washington, D. C., this county ranked fourth in wages paid to workers, fourth in value of products, fourth in cost of material used. The latest available figures set the value of the county's diversified products at more than $1,500,000,000 yearly.

Besides the statistical information in the booklet which required several months to compile, Keller has placed maps showing market and trading area and charts pertinent to Pittsburgh's location as a distribution center.

NEW OFFICER TO CURB PETTING

Petting parties are to be regulated by Hampton Township's new policeman, when he is appointed.

Thirty citizens of the township petitioned Judge Samuel H. Gardner in Quarter Sessions Court to authorize the township commissioners to employ a policeman, setting forth that the township constable did not have time to keep the parked automobiles moving off the country roads. They added that there has been an outbreak of thievery since the opening of a large coal mine at Wildwood.

Justices of the Peace Joseph H. Hillman and Albert T. Lorch testified at the hearing that a policeman is needed.

Judge Gardner enlarged upon the petition, authorizing the township to employ two policemen at $150 a month, with the understanding that only one is to be engaged at present.

SEEKS $30,000 IN LOVE SUIT

Suit for $30,000 damages for breach of promise against a man whom she said she had been ready to marry at any time for seven years, has been filed in Common Pleas Court by Miss Louise H. McKelvey, of Laketon road, Wilkinsburg, against William A. Brown, of Pittsburgh.

The woman says Brown first proposed in 1922 and from then until April 20, 1930, continued to pay her attention and frequently asked her to marry him. She always consented, she says, and he gave her gifts and other tokens. However, she says, he postponed their marriage on one pretext and another and on April 21, 1930, she says he married Miss Mary Stahl. Miss McKelvey says Brown notified her of his marriage on June 16.

MISS HARD-BOILED

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Raquel Rojos, half-Spanish and half-American, has come from the desert town of Hermosa, Ariz., to New York, where she has planned to marry Jack Farrell, a young engineer. Her exotic beauty attracts the attention of Alphonse Courbet, who engages her as a model to go to Paris. The engagement arouses the fury of Mme. Pauline, who is fiercely jealous of newcomers in Alphonse's shop.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XV.

In the private salon of Alphonse behind the main show room of the shop, Raquel sat for a long time, her mind focused on the rules which, according to the great dictator of fashion, would make her into a first-class model.

"One must relax so," he said, allowing his body to fall into a pose of elegant ease.

"The chin up, now a tilt, so. As though one listened to catch the strain of a haunting melody. The shoulders straight, forward, ah, ever so little. A sway of the hips, leonine, so." Raquel caught her lip under her white teeth. She must not laugh at Alphonse as he swayed across the thick, cream-colored rug. She imitated him. So perfectly he himself gave way to a smile of delighted approbation.

"She is quick, like the little monkey," he said to the tawny saleswoman who assisted at these strange rites. "Now a wrap, the ermine one, white with the fringe of black. Down from the shoulder—so. The hands, to enfold it lovingly so that the silhouette—that is right. So! With verve! Now the feet—"

Up came the long, pointed white fingers of Alphonse in a flutter of dismay.

"The feet, Madamoiselle!" he exclaimed. "They are quite impossible. On that stool, please, that I may examine more closely. Ah-h." A sign of relief escaped him. "It is not the feet, after all. It is the boots. Such boots I have never seen. Peasant boots, Miss Emily. I will select the shades, a dozen, for the beginning."

saleswoman called Miss Emily to lunch with Raquel at a nearby tea-room.

Curious glances of other saleswomen followed them from the shop. The air was tense. As if it had been electrically charged.

"Who is Madame Pauline?" No sooner were they clear of Chez Alphonse than Raquel asked the question. In the tone of one not to be silenced by evasion.

Miss Emily laughed mirthlessly.

"Pauline is, well, I suppose you'd call her the boss of the works or something," she said. "She used to be a saleswoman, like I am, a few years ago. She's off her head about Alphonse. Absolutely dotty about him. She did threaten to put a knife in one girl. Poor little devil blew out of the shop and never did come back. Take my advice, Rojos, and lay off Alphonse. Pauline's got something on him."

"That's his business." The ripe curve of Raquel's red lips tightened. "If she wants to make a fool of herself, let her. But she'd better never lay hands on me again."

Miss Emily, seeing the set of those red lips, the pallor of that perfect face, thought that if the new model so willed it, the terrifying regime of Madame Pauline in the shop of Alphonse was indeed ended.

Raquel's first afternoon in the shop was a duplicate of the morning. As she walked toward her hotel in the early evening, she asked herself again and again:

"Can there really be so many

And so on through the long morning, Raquel swaying, Raquel sheathing the slim lithe-ness of her in sleek satin, in powdery velvet, in silken cobwebs and the sheen of costly furs.

Alphonse did not again mention the woman with the ample breast and absurdly narrow hips. Nor did he refer to the unpleasant scene that had been so effectively stopped by his entrance to the shop.

STINGERS GONE BEES DIE

There were a few bees short today from the J. P. Hoffman farm in Fort Couch road, Upper St. Clair Township, simply because their stingers were lost in a demonstration being given by E. J. Anderson, State College specialist.

Anderson's familiarity with bees brings respect to the extent that the whole colony from a hive will swarm over him from head to foot. One forgot Anderson was their friend yesterday and lost its stinger in his right arm. Four others, the specialist explained, received the odor of poison left by the stinger and they opened war, losing their only recommendation for existence in the hive. The other bees bar them from entering and therefore they die of hunger.

Forty thousand bees live in the six hives on the farm. The queen in each hive lays approximately 2,000 eggs daily, Anderson said, and 10 to 12 attendants predigest all food before it is given to her. A forlorn hum was apparent from one hive, the queen evidently being lost, Anderson explained.

The demonstration was arranged by Henry R. Eby, Allegheny County Agricultural Extension Association director, and a second program was held in the afternoon at the Alfred Soergel farm, Wexford.

Many Children Make Use of 'Milk Well'

Hundreds of Hill district children are taking advantage of the opportunity to obtain milk at cost at the "milk-well" opened by the Irene Kaufmann Settlement, Center avenue, as part of its child health campaign.

Street cars have been chartered for numerous trips to industrial plants and recreation centers for the children of the settlement during the remainder of the warm weather.

309th Engineer Unit Opens Convention

North Sider Saved From Shot by Belt

Frank Devore, of 2600 Charles street extension, North Side, narrowly escaped death at 2:30 a. m. today when an unidentified man fired at him from the street while he was crossing his own front yard. The bullet struck his belt, veered and grazed his left side. His injury was slight.

Quits Jail Cell to Marry, Enters Workhouse

Peter Badini was married today and then changed his residence from the county jail to the workhouse.

Judge S. H. Gardner yesterday signed an order permitting Badini's release from jail long enough to go to Epiphany Catholic Church to be married to Assunta Balasmo to whom he was married in a civil ceremony some time ago. The petition was presented through the Rev. James Harvey, assistant pastor at Epiphany.

On June 6, Badini was sentenced to serve from one to three years in the workhouse by Judge H. H. Rowand for beating his 3-year-old son, Peter Badini, with a strap at the Badini home, 1210 Sheffield street. At that time he was serving a 60-day jail sentence.

Inhalator Hero Meets Death by Drowning

Lawrence Culp—many families will remember him bending over his inhalator, working furiously for hours to save those countless victims of pneumonia, of drowning—could not save himself.

Lawrence Culp

Culp is dead, drowned in the Allegheny River near the camp of the inhalator crews of the Mine Safety Appliance Company, Springdale. His pals applied the inhalator, but in vain. They believe he got a heart attack while swimming about 20 feet from the shore. A number from the camp were with him. They pulled him out quickly—but too late.

Employed by the appliance company as a member of the inhalator crew, he has saved scores of lives in the past few years. Many of those who recall him as a benefactor will probably attend his requiem, a high mass at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow in St. Paul's Cathedral.

Just 30, he lived with his mother, Mrs. Margaret Culp, at Wilmot street and Parkview avenue, Oakland. He leaves also two brothers, Charles and William Culp; three sisters, Mrs. Jean Gouch and Misses Grace and Margaret Culp.

OIL MEN HERE CUT OUTPUT

A 30 per cent curtailment of crude oil, to stabilize the industry and maintain a balance between supply and demand, was voted at a meeting of producers of Pennsylvania crude oil of Greene, Washington, Allegheny and Beaver counties at a meeting in the William Penn Hotel. Under a resolution production in the four counties is to be cut down on a pro-rata basis, effective today.

The meeting followed a similar one in Butler Wednesday, when producers in Butler, Lawrence and Armstrong counties decided on a reduction in production.

A cut of 20 per cent was made in the Bradford-Allegheny field May 16, and July 1 an additional cut of 30 per cent was made.

BRUSH FIRES RUSH FIREMEN

Six widely scattered brush fires were blamed for a number of alarms sounded in widely scattered parts of the city last night. Although no damage was reported, firemen from many engine houses were called out.

Three of the fires occurred in different parts of Schenley Park, and were thought to have been caused by cigarets dropped by visitors in the park. Lack of rain has dried up grass and shrubbery, and the smallest spark ignites them, firemen said.

Other fires were reported from the East End, the South Side, and the Mt. Washington districts.

'POOL' WRITER GETS 60 DAYS

Declaring number writing must stop, Judge Samuel H. Gardner, in Criminal Court late yesterday, sentenced Edward Evans, Negro, of 422 Monroe street, who pleaded guilty to conducting a lottery, to 60 days in the workhouse.

"If you were a higher-up I would give you a much heavier term," Judge Gardner said.

George Irwin, Negro, 1208 German way, the prosecuting witness, testified that he had bought a $1 ticket from Evans, and said he hit the lucky number. He should have received $540, he said, but did not get it and thereupon made an information against Evans.

Evans was closely questioned by Judge Gardner and District Attorney Andrew T. Park. He said he had been employed by Nathan Mattes, of 1600 Center avenue, to write numbers. He said Mattes did not give him the $540 to pay off Irwin.

District Attorney Park informed the judge that Mattes had been arrested and held in $1,000 bail by Alderman John P. Kearsher, of the South Side, but had failed to appear for a hearing and his bail had been forfeited. County detectives are looking for him, Park said.

OFFICIALS VIEW PARK WELL

Paul B. Riis, director of County parks; County Commissioner E. V. Babcock and John Burke, of the parks department, yesterday inspected the new well brought in on Mill road, near Pine Creek, which is spouting water at the rate of 200 gallons a minute. Another will be drilled near it, officials said.

It is believed that water for North Park can be obtained from such wells, drilled at an expense of about $1,000. To lay mains from the city reservoir, five miles away, would cost $100,000, plus the cost of water, Riis pointed out. A storage tank and special water mains will be laid to carry water to various sections of the park.

Pennsy to Establish Mexico City Agency

A general agency of the Pennsylvania Railroad wil be established soon in Mexico City, E. W. Smith, vice presedent, announced today. Smith said American travel to Mexico has shown a marked increase during recent months.

The Pennsylvania Railroad has direct connections at St. Louis with railroads to the Mexican border and it is now possible to reach Mexico City by rail in three and one-half days from New York.

P. R. R. PICNIC IN FINAL DAY

By AL GOUGH

LIGONIER, Aug. 1.—The eighth annual Pennsylvania Railroad Mutual Beneficial Association outing rounded out the third and final day at Idlewild Park, near here, with more than 10,000 persons in attendance.

Nine special trains brought picnickers from Cresson, Conemaugh, Blairsville, Derry, Youngwood, Uniontown, Bellaire, O.; Mingo Junction, Oil City, Pittsburgh and Pitcairn. In addition there were more than 3,000 automobiles, most of them loaded to capacity.

Yesterday's outing was an old-fashioned basket picnic, railroaders and their families gathering round the festive boards spread out on shady, grassy spots in the wooded hills of old Idlewild. Refreshments were free. There was a program of sports, a baseball game, dancing and a general good time reunion for all.

LINK DRINKING WITH CRASH

Three men figuring in an auto accident in California avenue at 6 a. m. today admitted, police said, that they had been drinking. Dr. W. B. Gordon, a city physician, after an examination, said that the men were not intoxicated.

When the car of George Schnellbacher, 31, of 2212 Atmore street, crashed into an iron pole, Edward Clark, 24, of 2339 California avenue, suffered a crushed skull. Schnellbacher and James Fullerton, 30, of 2674 California avenue, also were slightly injured. All were taken to St. John's Hospital, and the latter two released after their injuries were dressed. Clark is a son of Patrolman W. J. Clark, attached to Woods Run Police Station. The men were returning from a roadhouse, they told police.

BUILDING GAINS AT WEST VIEW

New building in West View for the first six months of this year totals $396,200 as against $358,400 for the corresponding period of 1929, according to C. A. McClain, borough clerk.

Permits issued to June 30, this year, include those for three apartments, $60,000; 47 dwellings, $329,000, and 24 garages, $7,200.

Permits issued recently were to Jacob Roessler for a brick veneer bungalow at 128 Oakley avenue, estimated to cost $6,500; Harry A. Bailey, two-story brick veneer dwelling, 414 Stanford avenue, $8,500; Dr. Kenneth Miller, two-story brick veneer dwelling, 581 Perrysville road, $11,500; W. B. Heid, two-story frame dwelling and garage, 363 Fordham avenue, $8,500.

SAYS PERJURY CURBS COURTS

Citing difficulty in obtaining truthful testimony in court trials, former United States District Attorney John D. Meyer, speaking at the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis Club in the William Penn Hotel yesterday, declared that perjury is so widespread in the country's courts that obtaining convictions in a large number of trials is impossible.

"No city can be cleaned up unless loyal citizens help. Like an engineer, a lawyer must have facts before he can get anywhere with a case," he declared.

The Camera Question Box

Today's question—Thomas Edison says that success is due 90 per cent to hard work (mental work); 10 per cent to talent, and rarely to luck. Do you agree?

Miss Landon

MISS ROSE LANDON, stenographer, Oakland—Certainly. There are a lot of people who get "breaks" and good luck, but there are more who really get some place because of their own efforts.

John Connolly

JOHN CONNOLLY, shipper, Lawrenceville—Yes I agree with Mr. Edison. He's a good example of that himself and he ought to know. Nobody ever gets anything of any value without plenty of hard work.

Samuel H. Smith

SAMUEL H. SMITH, store manager, Squirrel Hill—What Thomas Edison says is correct. When it comes to making something of yourself hard work is everything and you can't get anywhere without it.

Miss Weber

MISS VIRGINIA WEBER, secretary, North Side—Opportunities come to everyone, but few people take advantage of them. I think people should watch for them and then work hard for what they want, and stick to it.

Miss Mallinger

MISS MINERVA MALLINGER, saleswoman, Oakland—Well, I think success is frequently due to luck, although most people have to climb by their own effort, and there's a lot of hard work before any of them reach the top.

H. E. Silverblatt

HAROLD E. SILVERBLATT, treasurer, Squirrel Hill—Success is due mostly to hard and conscientious work. Those people who count on good luck helping them out are seldom successful.

TAKE NAIL FROM BOY'S CHEST

Thirteen - month - old Milton Strain was resting easily in Presbyterian Hospital today, following the removal late yesterday from his bronchial tubes of the nail he swallowed five weeks ago.

For several weeks the child, son of Milton Strain, living on a farm near Franklin, was believed suffering with a cold. When it was discovered he had swallowed the nail, he was brought to the Presbyterian Hospital.

Doctors there said today their little patient could be removed to his home in a day or two.

FLYING ESSAY JUDGES NAMED

Three representatives of Pittsburgh district flying schools are to judge the aviation essay contest being conducted by Warner Brothers in connection with the presentation of "The Dawn Patrol" at the Stanley Theater. The judges, W. J. Austin, R. V. Trader and A. L. Byler, represent, respectively, the Penn, Curtiss-Wright and Pittsburgh Schools of aviation.

Prizes include six ground school courses and 12 extended flights over the Pittsburgh district. Instructions in the elements of flying will accompany the flights. Essays will be on the subject "Why I Like to Fly." They must arrive at Department D, Warner Brothers' Theaters, 209 Clark Building, before midnight Sunday to be eligible. Results will appear in the Sun-Telegraph Tuesday.

TRAIL ROBBERS AFTER HOLDUP

H. J. Limegrover, 45, of 7805 Frankstown avenue, Gulf Refining Company collector who was held up yesterday by two bandits, today was to examine the rogues' gallery in the Detective Bureau in an effort to pick out the men responsible for the theft.

Detectives, armed with descriptions furnished by Limegrover, are seeking the bandits.

The robbers were in a machine with which they blocked Limegrover's way near Gross and Cypress streets. One of the bandits remained behind the wheel while the other ran to Limegrover's car, pointed a revolver at him, and fled back to his own machine with a brief case, which had lain on the seat beside the collector.

Limegrover told police he was armed with a tear gas gun, but was unable to use it. The holdup happened a short distance from the company offices.

North Side Board Outing Wednesday

Final preparations have been completed for the annual outing of the North Side Board of Trade at West View Park Wednesday. William G. SEIZE MADMAN ON WATER TANK

Carnegie firemen early today were called to aid police in capturing Anthony Bugala, 39, Austrian war veteran, who climbed to the top of a 40-foot water tank at Pine street and the P. C. and Y. Railroad tracks after, according to police, he became violent and threatened neighbors with a knife.

Bugala, gassed during the World War, was said by police to have gone mad in his home at 125 Jane street, Carnegie, shortly after 1 a. m. Neighbors quieted him after he is said to have run across the street with a knife and threatened several persons. An hour later he again became unmanagable and when police arrived, ran from the house.

They found him later perched on the water tank. After trying to persuade him to descend, the police called firemen who used ladders to reach him. He was taken down by Police Lieut. Harry Keisling and Motorcyclemen Fred Mathias and Charles Skirpen.

DECLARES WIFE ALREADY WED

Claiming to have discovered that his wife was already married to another man, Harry Ebbitt, 1766 Laketon road, Wilkinsburg, has filed suit for annullment in Common Pleas Court against Hazel Ebbitt, now of Hays Borough.

They were married in Greensburg March 8, 1927, and after living together for more than three years, until July 3 last, he says they separated upon his discovery of her prior marriage. He says she wed Donald Skekel, 961 Graham street, on September 14, 1918, living with him until 1925. He says his wife has two children by her first marriage.

80TH VETS SET FOR PICNIC

The eleventh annual outing of veterans of the Eightieth Division will be held tomorrow at West View Park, under the auspices of Pennsylvania Auxiliary No. 1, Eightieth Division Veterans' Association, and the Brig. Gen. Lloyd M. Brett Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars. About 50 disabled veterans from local hospitals will be honored guests at the park.

Arrangements will be made at the park for the members of the division who are planning to attend the reunion of the division, which opens in Johnstown August 7. Special rates have been offered by the railroads, and blanks will be issued to the soldiers at the picnic tomorrow. The annual picnic of Allegheny County Council, Veterans of Foreign Wars, also is to be held at the park tomorrow, with members of about 60 posts participating.

The committee in charge of the picnic includes: Miss Gertrude Horne, Mrs. W. A. Gordon and Mrs. A. H. Kohnfelder, of the auxiliary, and J. J. Madden, Richard Loeffler and Samuel Fleming, of the Brig. Gen. Brett Post.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Girls Are Not So Fond of Egotistical Men

Girl's here's your chance

He's tall and dark and handsome. He says so himself. Likewise, "snappy and attractive."

Ladies pursue him. propose to him. He will, if pressed, supply the addresses of two who did. And yet—he can't win the one girl of his choice. It's a mournful, mournful tale. And we're supposed to bust into big wet tears as we read it.

Harriet started it. Harriet, if you remember, wrote this department a letter bemoaning her spinster estate, and asking where in heck an office girl could find her man, and why she so often leads a lonely life. "Six-Footer" thinks he has it all doped out. According to him, it's her own fault. She doesn't appreciate a Regular Guy when she sees one. Here's his wail. And it's some wail.

"Dear Sally:

"The letter from Harriet, which I've just been reading attracted my notice by the questions it asked, and because of the fact that I think maybe my story might shed some light on the answers to them.

My case is a lot like Harriet's—except that in my case, it's the girl who is the offender. Harriet wants to know how an office girl can find her man, and why she so often leads a lonely life. Well, maybe she and her 45,000,000 wondering sisters might find their answer in what has happened to me.

TOO SNOOTY

"Office girls are too snooty for their own good. For the past year I have come into contact with one, in business here, and I have become deeply interested in her. But does she care, or appreciate me? She does not, I may say that other girls, friends of this young lady, have accused me of being 'tall, dark and handsome.' But this particular one I'm interested in seems to be simply an iceberg although she is pleasant to me at all times.

"I have acquainted her with my family background, my education and my ideals, and they are all good ones, if I do say it myself, but nothing seems to make any impression on her. She has so far refused two invitations to lunch with me, although she admitted to having no other attachments. Her reasons for refusing were plausible enough, but I am skeptical. Her next refusal will be the last. And she needn't complain of being 'lonely' afterward, either.

"Do not think for a moment that I have difficulty finding girl friends. I am not given to flattery or attempting to 'blow my own horn,' but I assure you that there are in my own home circle of friends, at least 10 girls who would jump at a marriage proposal.

HAD TWO PROPOSALS

"Incidentally, I don't mind telling you that I have experienced the thrill of having two different girls propose marriage to me, strange as it may seem. They were charming girls, too, but not being in love with either of them, of course, I gently evaded the issue.

"This will answer Harriet's cry that the office barrier shuts her in. I am interested in an office girl to the exclusion of my friends in my own social circle. And instead of appreciating my interest, she turns it down. I have a lot of other friends who like me. I am quite snappy and attractive, yet I seem to fail miserably to attract this business girl. What do you suppose is the matter with her? Why can't she see me? Others do.—Six-Footer."

Why won't she give you a h'l love?

Well, maybe she thinks you're already giving your self enough for ten, Big Boy. And she probably considers any more admiration superfluous.

In other words, brother, you've got the world's record crush on yourself. Cruel words—but you've got to hear them some day, and it might as well be now. And the girl who ties up with you will have to spend her life being a chorus.

Why does all your high power promotion about yourself fail to impress your Girl Friend? That's why, Big Boy. If she wants to listen to broadcasting, she can buy it in a radio and shut it off when she wishes. She won't—if she has the sense God gave a gooseberry—marry it in a husband.

Maybe if you'll deflate your head and act your age, she'll take a chance on you yet. But you'll certainly have to change your line and show some real assets beside a lovely shape and a noble lineage. She's probably looking for a Man, not a "snappy and attractive" collar ad.

Speaking of Endurance Test, Don't Overlook Patience, Says Fay King

SO MUCH SWANK — AND SO MUCH STALL! I DON'T BUDGE FROM HERE UNTIL I GET MY MONEY!
THAT THING
YOU KNOW, THERE'S SOMETHIN' I'VE BEEN WANTIN' TO ASK YOU, FOR A LONG TIME — WHATEVER BECAME OF YOUR COUSIN JOE?
FOR YEARS SHE'S BEEN WAITING FOR HIM TO PROPOSE.
HUM-HUM-HUM-HUM-MMM-HUM-HUM-HUM-MMM-HUM-MMM
I WISH SHE'D STOP THAT HUMMIN'
FOR TWENTY YEARS THIS HUSBAND HAS SUFFERED LISTENING TO HIS WIFE ABSENT-MINDEDLY HUMMING LIKE MAD!

By FAY KING

Endurance contests of all kinds are getting a front page tumble these days.

But greater endurance tests in everyday life deserve to be appreciated too.

How about the bill collectors that have such a tough time getting the money? And not from persons of modest means either, who are usually prompt pay, but from high-hatters who put on such swank but can out-stall anybody.

How about the girls who feel there is an understanding of an engagement between their young man and themselves to their friends, but have waited for years and years for him to actually propose marriage?

How about the able worker who has waited so patiently for a raise and promotion?

Patience is the endurance test that counts.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Loves Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

The Huge Crate Is Opened

I was aghast at the interpretation Lillian evidently had put upon my suggestion that Robert Savarin, the famous artist who had loved her and lost her through his own archaic attitude might have again been seized with the insanity from which he had suffered for 15 years. Rushing after her, I seized her arm as she was wildly tugging at the big wooden box he had shipped to her and jerked her upright.

"It's you who have lost your mind, I think," I said sternly. "I didn't suggest that Robert had put an infernal machine in that box, you know."

She looked at me in dazed fashion.

"How do you know what an insane man would do?" she asked dully.

"I know what Robert Savarin, sane or insane, wouldn't do," I said sternly, "and that is to plan anything such as you fancy. All through those 15 years he was the gentlest creature and you know his characteristics too well to let your imagination run away with you like this. Something fantastic we may expect, but dangerous, never. Here is Jim now." I heard the stumping tread of our faithful man coming up the steps. "Please slip on your poker face."

"You mean to have him open it?" There was still a protest in her yielding.

"I certainly do." I returned firmly, and turned to greet Jim.

"Mr. Underwood said you wanted a box opened," he said, laying down a chisel and a hammer. "Is this it?"

"Yes, but please be very careful," I answered, "because it is marked 'Fragile,' as you see."

"I'll be careful," he promised, and kept his word as with infinite pains he pried open the boards which formed the lid of the box, revealing a smooth covering of brown paper. As he stretched out his hand to take it off, I spoke hastily.

"Will you please bring me a couple of large baskets from the barn, Jim?" I asked. "If there is something breakable in here, it is doubtless packed in something which will litter the floor. We might as well make the work of unpacking as light as possible."

"That's a good idea," Jim said approvingly, and departed forthwith for the barn.

"You thoughtful darling," Lillian said fervently, and then she lifted the tightly stretched paper. We both exclaimed as there met our eyes nothing but the crisp greenness of coils upon coils of ground pine.

"But why should he mark this fragile?" Lillian asked.

For answer I took hold of one corner of the box and tugged at it.

"You're too upset to notice this," I said as with difficulty I raised the box an inch or two. "There is something in this box beside ground pine. Otherwise it would weigh much less than it does. Let's get the pine out and put it into the library for the present. It will mean an extra sweeping but Katie's keyed up for all sorts of extra work this month."

I hoped that my causual voice and my request for help would steady Lillian, and I was not disappointed. With me she lifted the coils of ground pine and carried them to the library. It was then we delved into the box for the second time that our hands struck something hard.

"Here's the real thing," I said, and feverishly we threw aside the next layer of ground pine and uncovered a flat wooden box, cunningly braced to the corners of the bigger box by narrow pieces of board.

"It's a painting!" Lillian exclaimed. "I know the way he crates them."

"No wonder he insured it for two thousand, if it's one of his own," I said. "Two thousand is a small sum for a genuine Savarin."

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Woman, the Questionnaire

There are probably lots of times when the average man wonders whether he has married a human being or a questionnaire.

The most maddening thing about a woman (to a man) is her passionate desire to know WHY!

First, she wants to know why he doesn't tell her that he loves her; and, after she has wrung the admission from him, she wants to know WHY he loves her.

She wants to know WHY he wants to kiss her—and, afterward, she wants to know why he doesn't want to keep ON kissing her.

She wants to know why he slaves so hard "making money," that he is always too tired to take her out evenings—and why he doesn't make MORE money.

She wants to know why he "never sends her flowers any more." And then, when he comes home with a box of cut roses, she wants to know why he is so extravagant—and why he happened to think of bringing her flowers, anyway.

She wants to know why he doesn't want her to henna her hair and use a lipstick—and why he always stares at the sort of women who DO.

WHY he lost all that money in Wall Street—and why he can't afford to buy a new car.

Why he doesn't "tell her everything"—and why he always gets so furious when she tells what he DOES tell her.

Why he wants to play golf all the time—or why he doesn't get more outdoor exercise.

Why he doesn't take more care of his hands—or why he is always dropping in at the barber shop, where the blonde manicurist works, to have his nails polished.

Why he's so late—or why he's so early.

Why he's happy—or why he's grouchy.

Why he has no appetite—or why he eats so much.

And, when in a wild, mad moment, he rises up and TELLS her, she dissolves into tears and wants to know WHY she ever married him!

Perhaps that's why there are so many men in the state insane asylums today.

A man would rather give a woman almost anything on earth than a REASON, anyway.

Not that he hasn't GOT a reason, of course—if he can only remember what it is. But a reason, like an ultimatum, is so apt to prove a boomerang—and to lead to another "WHY!"

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

'Flat-Foot' Is Often Cause of Aches

Anything that interferes with the natural and free use of the feet in walking is bound to cause all manner of disagreeable symptoms.

If your foot is thrown out of its natural position, strain is bound to be the result. Such strain is capable of causing pain extending anywhere from the foot itself, through the leg and into the back.

Many a person has believed himself to be suffering from rheumatism, or even some sort of kidney or spinal trouble, when these organs and parts are really perfectly normal. He is merely paying the penalty of walking on a foot which has become too weakened in certain parts of its delicate structure to perform its function properly.

"Flat-foot" is the common name given this trouble. It is a displacement of the bones of the foot which receive the weight of the body when standing or walking. As a result the arch of the foot is depressed or flattened.

There are many causes for this condition. Chief of these are improperly fitted shoes. They may be shoes with excessively high heels, or narrow or short shoes, or shoes which do not give necessary support to high-lyarched insteps.

Another cause for flat-foot is the turning of the feet outward in walking. Weakened muscles and ligaments due to exhausting illness, poor health, old age, rapid growth in a child, overweight, prolonged standing on hard floors, corns and bunions are specific diseases—all these are factors in producing flat-foot.

The first measure to take in the treatment of flat-foot is to get properly adjusted shoes. As a matter of fact, foot discomfort from any cause is likely to disappear if the shoes are correctly fitted.

Everybody should cultivate correct attitude in standing and walking. It is a good thing to develop the feet by throwing the weight of the body frequently upon the outer side of the feet while standing. One should walk with the feet held parallel and pointed forward, with the weight on the outer side.

Every sensible person will give close attention to the selection and fit of his shoes and to the cultivation of a proper attitude in standing and walking. He must do this if he is to avoid foot trouble.

You take all sorts of trouble in the selection of a hat. You study "models" and "styles" and fairly suffer until the purchase has been determined upon.

How much care do you take in selecting your shoes? You should take pains because your comfort and health depend upon properly fitted shoes. Please don't forget this.

Answers to Health Queries

J. A. F. Q.—How can excessive snoring be prevented?

2. I am a girl of 13, 5 feet 3 inches tall. What should I weigh?

A.—The cause of snoring must be determined. Almost invariably snoring is the result of mouth breathing.

2. You should weigh about 112 pounds.

MISS HARD-BOILED

By JANE DIXON

beautiful clothes in the world?"

Yes. And more to come. She, Raquel, had worn them, would go on wearing them.

The hat with the white paradise, at one hundred and fifty dollars, was but the beginning. A dozen pairs of shoes. The black satin dress with the white scarf that made her look like a dark Madonna. It was to be hers. Her work-dress!

Turning into the dim hall that led to her room—the lights were not yet on—Raquel came to a sudden halt. A thin yellow line shone farther along the hall. Someone in her room had turned on the lights. Instantly she was alert. It might be the maid, yet intuitively she knew it was not. Why? A sneak-thief? A robber? He'd find little enough loot in her room.

Now she was scudding along the hall, close to the wall. The light disappeared. A draft had blown the door to. Would she risk pushing it back ever so slightly? No need. The draft had done it for her. Only a small rectangle of her room was visible through the crack. A desk, with hotel paper piled neatly in cubbyholes.

As she stood there, undecided about her next move, a form moved into the line of light. A man in dark suit and a light fedora hat. Raquel could not see his face. He moved nimbly, warily. Examining the paper in the desk. Shuffling the contents of the wastebasket. Rifling drawers. He paused. Raquel could tell by the slackening of his body that a baffled look had come over his face. He had not found that which he sought.

Now his attention was caught by her cloak, the one she had worn when she fled from Hermosa. It was hung on the back of the desk chair. He lifted it, turned it over, peered at the collar in the back. He was looking for a label there. Someone who dared not ask wanted to know more about Raquel. Where she came from. A coat label might tell that. Who would be interested in such information? Not Alphonse. He had shown no inclination to pry into her past. Then it must be——

"If you will tell me what it is you want, perhaps I can find it for you."

The man at the desk wheeled. A snarl of the cornered animal on the thin, wolfish face under the fedora.

"I was looking for my serving-tray," he mumbled. "Must have left it in this room."

"Not in the cubby-holes, surely." The girl moved farther into the room. Her black eyes flooded their derision over the man at the desk.

"Didn't know—forgetful—"

"Umm. So you tried the waste-basket. And the collar of my cloak." She laughed, leaning against the bottom of the bed.

The man's wolfish snarl shaded into a leer of unwilling admiration.

"If you'll excuse me, lady," he said, sliding toward the door, his eyes still on her face—"I guess I'll be going."

"I would." She was scorching him now with her black look. "And see that you don't come back. I have already summoned the hotel attendant, by putting my finger on that button by the door and keeping it there while you were busy looking for your tray in the collar of my cloak. He will be here any moment."

The man let out a cry, leaped for the door, recoiled. Feet came hurrying along the hall. He was caught. A fox in a trap.

"Don't give yourself away, coward!" warned Raquel. "Here, take this cloak. I will ask the servant for coffee. You bow yourself out as if you had come for the cloak. Quick, now—"

"You mean you are not going to—"

"Turn you over to the police? Certainly not. You must take a message for me. To Madame Pauline."

The man started, as if a missile had hit him midrift.

"Tell Madame that all she will ever learn about Raquel Rojos, the new model for Paris, would be less than can be written on the label of a coat. Tell her, too, that Raquel comes from a town where babies use stilettos for playthings."

A rat-a-tat of knuckles on the door.

Raquel spoke loudly, so the person outside the door could hear.

"You may go now. Do not bother to return the cloak. I have finished with it."

Household Hints

If your family is large, don't try to crowd your hot cakes or fritters into one pan and expect either to keep a supply on hand or to make good cakes. Use two pans and you will not have any trouble.

If your hardwood floors are scarred with dark marks from rockers or furniture casters, rub the marks with very fine steel wool dipped in quite soapy water. Rinse with clear water and then apply a good furniture polish. They will be greatly improved.

If the wall paper has been damaged in moving a piece of furniture and you have no paper such as that on the wall with which to match it, get out the water colors and touch up the vacant places with colors to harmonize with the paper. If carefully done the break will be practically invisible.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A Wedding Gift

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Will you kindly let me know if it is customary for the bride to give the groom a gift?

A READER.

It is not customary for the bride to give the groom a wedding gift, but it is, of course, correct for her to do so if she wishes.

A Secret Engagement

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am secretly engaged, but I cannot be married for quite a long time yet, for my fiance is not established in business as he wishes to be before we are married. Would you advise a public announcement of our engagement, since we cannot be married for so long a time?

ESTHER.

Yes. The fact that you are not to be married for a long time does not necessarily affect the announcement of the engagement. And, as a matter of fact, it will probably not be possible for you to keep from your friends the fact that you are engaged. They guess, you know, and then some one tells some one, and that some one tells some one else, and so forth—"spreading the news." Then you no longer have the joy and dignity of making your own glorious announcement. Then, too, an announcement protects you and your fiance from conjecture, which you will have to answer more or less indefinitely, and from the gossip of your friends. I think that it would be much better and much more dignified to announce it now.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Saturday, August 2

The sidereal operations for this day may be interpreted as of rather weak influence on human events. The stress may be laid on domestic, affectional, social or artistic affairs, with those businesses progressing which pertain to these spheres. But even in these directions it would be wise to be very careful with the handling of money, which is under a hazardous rule of Jupiter.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a fairly progressive year, but mainly in those affairs having to do with the artistic, social feminine and home side of life. The finances are not strongly aspected, therefore there is hazard in loans and in uncertain investments or speculation. There may be other small annoyances, anxieties or setbacks.

A child born on this day may be inclined to art, music, society or the finer developments of life, but may not be markedly successful financially. It should, be agreeable and popular.

Mrs. P., Waco, Tex., writes to encourage the girl who can't forget the fiance who jilted her for her best friend. The same thing happened to her and she went out of the city and worked hard to forget him. She met the right one later and married. Recently she met the old flame and wondered how on earth she ever could care for such a dud. That's the way it usually turns out, so don't get desperate over any man.

Mary Alice wants to know how to lead a man without chasing him.

Of course you can't lead one that is going the other way as fast as he can. He must be willing. But if he is interested you can be agreeable without hanging on to him every minute. By chasing I mean asking him to come and see you every night and pouting if he doesn't come, always phoning him when he is busy and showing jealousy when you haven't any strings on the man. Your instinct should tell you when you are making a fool of yourself in a case like that, and if it doesn't I sometimes think it's a waste of time for anyone else to tell you.

Boston Constant Reader: There are states in which you can get a divorce even if the cruelty was perpetrated in some other state. If that were not true plenty of men would have to go to Reno to mistreat their wives, wouldn't they? Or to Paris, or to Mexico. The reasons for divorce vary in different states. In New York one must be unfaithful, but if you were mistreated in Chicago you can go back there and get a divorce. Consult an attorney as to the laws of your state.

PIRATES WIN 16 OF LAST 25 GAMES

PERHAPS THOSE CRITICS who some time ago pronounced the Pirates hopeless second-division fixtures, predicting they never would get out of that section of the National League standing, will be willing to revise their opinion in view of the position occupied by the Buccaneers today. When the clever pitching and timely hit of Larry French at Forbes Field yesterday gave the Rovers a clean sweep in the three-game series with the Cards, the Ensmen went into a tie with St. Louis for fourth place.

Larry French

Of course, the mere fact that they rose to a deadlock for that position at this stage of the race, with 57 games more to be played, is no guarantee that the locals are going to finish in the first flight. But they must be conceded at least an even chance to beat out the club with which they are tied, and in view of the improved form they have shown in winning their last five bouts up to today against clubs as strong as the Giants and Cards, there is plenty of ground for the confidence that their record of not having finished outside the first division since 1918 will not be marred this year.

THE PIRATE BRACE shows the difference that a single player may make in a ball club. Ever since Lloyd Waner drew near to his best form after returning to the lineup, the Bucs have been moving steadily forward and upward, and the extent of their improvement may be seen in the fact that they have won 16 of their last 25 games, a gait of .640, or an average of very close to two victories in every three contests.

Incidentally, yesterday's win put the Pirates on even terms with their foemen in games played at Forbes Field this season. Since early in the campaign the Corsairs have been carrying a balance on the wrong side of the ledger here, but the capture of three straight from the Redbirds brought them up to the .500 mark. They have now won 23 home games against the same number lost. On the road they are just a step below an even break, having won 26 games and lost 27.

THE POWER OF the Phillies' bats broke their losing streak yesterday after they had dropped 11 consecutive games, the season's record in the majors, but the run of adversity lasted long enough to convince Manager Burt Shotten that he will have to change his policy.

Burt Shotten

Shotten, who has been depending upon a dynamite attack to win for his club, has learned that offensive strength alone will not bring results on the ball field, and it is reported that he has decided to sacrifice some of his hitting power in an attempt to bolster the defense.

TO THIS END, it is said that preliminary steps are now being taken toward a deal to be completed next winter, whereby the Phils will part with one of their star hitters. Lefty O'Doul will be the man to go, according to rumor, the plan being to trade him to Brooklyn for a star pitcher. Dazzy Vance is reported to be wanted, but some of Shotten's friends believe Burt will demand a younger man, as Vance will be 38 years old next March and even now must be given four days' rest between games. That the Phils will make a big play for one or more other top-notch pitchers, however, is certain. They can outhit any other club in either of the big leagues, as their team average of .326 attests, and they have good defensive players besides, but their lowly position shows again that no club, no matter how strong, can get anywhere without capable hurlers.

THE FACT THAT Larry French was able to circle the bases when his winning drive rolled to the center field fence in the ninth inning here yesterday, crossing the plate behind Dick Bartell and Al Bool, who had been on second and first bases, respectively, left many of the spectators in doubt as to the final score and as to the size of hit to which French was entitled.

Some believed that Larry would be credited with a home run. He got only a double, however, and only Bartell's run counted. When a batter drives in the winning run under such circumstances in the last half of the final inning, he gets a homer only if he knocks the ball out of the playing field, that is over a fence or into a stand. French's hit stayed inside the park, and though it was long enough for a homer and Larry ran around the bases, the Pirate pitcher was credited only with a double, the same distance that Bartell had to travel to score the winning run. If French's blow had gone out of the park the final score would have been 6 to 3 instead of 4 to 3.

JIMMY WALSH, former big league outfielder, who joined the Athletics way back in 1912 when Amos Strunk, Rube Oldring, Danny Murphy and others were appearing in the gardens for the Mackmen, and who succeeded Del Gainer early in July as manager of the Fairmont Black Diamonds in the Middle Atlantic League, is playing regularly in the outfield and hitting and fielding like a youngster.

Jimmy Walsh

Walsh entertains high hopes for his club to finish first in the second half of the season and engage Johnstown in the play-off. He says that with just a little more consistent hitting the Black Diamonds will be at the top of the league on Labor Day.

MANY STORIES HAVE been told as to how Pittsburgh Phil Smith got his name, but they're all wrong, according to Jimmy McGill, a nephew of the once famous turf plunger and himself a former horse owner and minor league baseball magnate. "It was in the '80's, in Chicago, when auction pool was the rage," he relates. "The place where the tickets were sold had several players named Phil and it became a problem to keep the records straight. 'What Phil shall me make it?' he was asked one day. 'Oh, make it Pittsburgh Phil,' said Smith, and because of his success at auction pool and at the tracks, the name stayed with him. There has always been a mistaken impression that Phil played the horses on the tail—to show. He was not that kind of better. He usually played them to win and always was looking for the long shots."

RACING VETERANS DECLARE that Pittsburgh Phil knew more about horses and the vagaries of the turf than any other prominent better of his own time or since. Many other famous plungers finally hit the rocks, but Smith was smarter, and after a dozen years of heavy operations in betting circles he had $3,000,000 in bank.

However, the distinction of having made the biggest single turf killing on an American track belonged to Arnold Rothstein, murdered New York gambler. He is said to have won $800,000 on a horse named Siderail, a rank outsider, burning up every layer at the track. Rothstein frequently made wagers of $100,000, a practice that finally put him into disfavor with the racing powers. His plunging proved costly on one occasion. At Belmont Park on Memorial Day, 1928, every horse he backed was defeated, and Rothstein lost more than $200,000 in one afternoon.

IN SMASHING THE Cardinals' pennant chance by beating them 12 times in 16 meetings, the Pirates have set a National League record for the season for percentage of games won by one club from another. There is only one other instance of a team's having won as many as 12 games from a single opponent, the Giants having taken that number from the Phillies, but New York's percentage against the Quakers is

WIFE OF NATS' PILOT DIES SUDDENLY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—A long series of misfortunes for Walter Johnson, one of baseball's best loved figures, was climaxed today with the death of his wife, Hazel Roberts Johnson.

Mrs. Johnson

Johnson, manager of the Washington Nationals, was in uniform yesterday for the game with the league-leading Philadelphia Athletics when a telephone call came from physicians at Georgetown Hospital.

He left the park hurriedly and shortly afterward his big frame tiptoed into his wife's room. He was told that her condition was serious; that a recent automobile trip from Coffeyville, Kan., through the intense heat had sapped her strength, but that a long rest would probably restore her to health. She was completely exhausted, however, and early today she died. She was 36 years old.

DEVOTED COUPLE

The devotion of Johnson and his wife was proverbial. She was the daughter of former Representative E. E. Roberts, of Nevada, and also was an athlete. During her high school days at Carson City she captained the basketball team that held the state championship for two years.

She liked baseball and first saw Johnson on the playing field. Those were the days when almost all that was needed for a Washington victory was the announcement that Walter Johnson, the "Big Train," would pitch. They were married June 14, 1914, and on that very day she saw the Philadelphia Athletics—the team which played in the capital the day before she died—go down before her husband's "fire ball."

Johnson quit the Nationals in 1927 to become manager of the Newark Internationals. He had been incapacitated by injuries during most of his last playing season.

He went South with the Newark team in the spring of 1928, but within a few weeks was back in Washington, 30 pounds underweight. He had influenza and the after-effects left him in such a weakened condition that it was feared for a time he had tuberculosis. It was months before he recovered.

SON BADLY HURT

He took over the management of his old team, the Nationals, in 1929. The club floundered until near the close of the season. The biggest blow to Johnson was an injury several months ago of his oldest son, Walter, Jr., 14, who was struck by an automobile. Both legs were broken and it was thought for a time he might be crippled for life.

The long months of watching over the boy slowly sapped Mrs. Johnson's strength, and, as her son grew stronger, she grew weaker. There was no warning, however, of the breakdown that came only a day or two ago.

The funeral will be held next Monday. A Washington game scheduled for that day has been postponed. Besides Walter, Jr., the Johnsons have two other sons and two daughters.

Among those who sent a wreath to the Johnson home today were the President and Mrs. Hoover.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE BLIND BASEBALL FAN, MORRIS LEVIN—Levin, attended every game at Cubs' Park in Chicago during 1929 and has not missed a game there this season. He is totally blind and finds his way to the ball park alone each day. He knows the pitching, fielding and batting averages of all the players in the National League, and also where they come from and their home towns. The above is verified by Jack Sommers, 4750 North Kedzie avenue, Chicago. EVERYBODY IS PARTIALLY BLIND—The explanation for the disappearance of the dot, as shown in the illustration, is that there is a spot in the back of the eye in which there are no nerve ends. When an image is focused against this spot the message is not transmitted to the brain; there are no nerves to transmit it. THE 4,470-POUND STEER—At the City Park in Kokomo, Ind., there is an exhibition of the steer, now stuffed, which was raised by Mike and Joe Murphy. At the age of 7, it weighed 4,470 pounds; at 18 months it weighed 1,700 pounds, and, at birth, it weighed 125 pounds. It is of shorthorn and hereford breed.

SCOTS REGAIN M.-A. LEAD

The wild second half race in the Mid-Atlantic League continued its merry way yesterday with the league lead again changing hands. Scottdale, defeating Fairmont, 9 to 0, behind splendid hurling by Lange, regained the top position.

At Clarksburg, the Generals lost ground when Wheeling emerged from its slump and nosed out the Generals, 6 to 5. Wheeling won with a one-run rally in the ninth.

Jeannette rallied in the eighth and ninth frames to defeat Charleroi at Jeannette, 6 to 5. Stricklin, Charleroi first baseman, secured four hits in five jaunts to the plate.

Cumberland swept the three-game series with Johnstown, taking the final game yesterday, 17 to 9. The Colts tallied four runs in the first and eight runs in the second inning. Pritchard and Helmack each hit two homers.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Announcement that Roger Peckinpaugh, now serving his third season as manager of the Cleveland American League baseball team, had signed a contract to continue in that role for the 1931 season, was made yesterday by President Alva Bradley.

FOOTBALL GOSSIP

Ran across half a dozen eastern coaches and graduate managers on a recent trip, and the cross-section of their remarks was quite interesting to me.

Don Harrison, graduate manager of Pittsburgh, claims that the Panthers will have a stronger team this year than last fall. He says Coach Jock Sutherland had a whale of a spring practice, specializing on forward pass defense, and that they are looking forward particularly to the Notre Dame game on October 25, which they feel quite confident they can win.

Knute Rockne

Another optimistic coach is Chick Meehan, of N. Y. U. He didn't say it exactly, but he sort of exuded an aroma of optimism. The same is true of Lud Wray, of Penn.

Judge Steffen, of Carnegie Tech, is more than optimistic. He is effervescing with enthusiasm. He thinks Carnegie will have the best team of its history. They lost none of last year's players except two linesmen, with a great frosh team coming on.

Lou Little, the new Columbia coach, and Tom Mills, of Beloit, the new coach at Georgetown, however, were outdoing Dobie in their gloomy pessimism. It looks as if neither will have a great deal next fall, but I predict they will be up there with the best of them the year following.

Maj. Sasse at West Point, the new coach, who replaces Biff Jones, has an uncertain outlook. He has a veteran line, but a new

PRIMO'S CASE IS HEARD

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—All the reasons why Primo Carnera, Italian fighter now under immigration orders to leave the United States, should be permitted to remain here longer, were submitted to a government tribunal today at the Labor Department.

The decision of the board will be announced within a day or so.

Carnera, head and shoulders over everyone else in the room, smiled broadly and stepped willingly to the front when one of his representatives asked him to come forward so the immigration officials might see how big he was.

Leon See, his manager, did most of the pleading in his behalf. Board of Review members asked the prize fighter if he cared to say anything, but there was silence until See interjected:

"No, no. He is the man who fights. He does not know anything else. I tell him to hit and he hits. And that's all he does."

Carnera grinned even more widely at this description.

His counsel said Carnera only desired to stay here a few months longer and pleaded for a ruling that would "give this boy a chance at the championship title."

Representative Hartley (Rep.), New Jersey, also spoke for the boxer.

He said Primo had an Atlantic City engagement to perform for charity late this month and added Italian-Americans generally were admirers of the man.

The lawyer said Carnera did a lot of fighting for charity and at one point asserted "crippled children were his principal interest."

See interposed again at this point. "I wouldn't say it was his principal business," he remarked, "but we do something for charity as we can."

In contrast to the usual slim attendance at an immigration hearing, the room was crowded today, and most of those present were women.

Department of Labor officials, in the light of other cases, believed the board's finding would be favorable to Carnera, although no official comment was made.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—The cooling flush of victory was upon the Pirates today as they reached Chicago to take on the National League champions. Possessors of five victories in a row over two crack ball clubs, the Buccos had something to be proud of, even if they are considered out of all pennant reckoning.

Moreover, the Buccos today were tied for a money position in the National League. They shared fourth place with the skidding Redbirds whom they defeated for the third time in succession at Forbes Field yesterday.

MEINE TO PITCH

Manager Ens stated this morning he would use Heinie Meine on the mound in the first clash of three battles scheduled with the Cubs. Meine started the present campaign a very sick boy, after having been a standout in the Spring training period. The St. Louis Dutchman was seized with sickness on the day before the opener in Cincinnati and it was many weeks before he began to look like his natural self.

Meine went along for almost half the season without his regular stuff. About 10 days ago, in Philadelphia, he was in possession of some rich baseball ability, he holding the Quakers to five hits in their own ball orchard. This achievement convinced Skipper Ens that Meine was back close to his best form and he started him in his regular turn against the Giants a few days later. Heinie turned in another victory, although Steve Swetonic went in to give him a lift in the eighth. Meine has had plenty of rest and should be on edge for the ordeal of this afternoon. Charlie Root is due to hurl for the Bruins.

The Buccos pleased a crowd of sizeable proportions as they took over the Cardinals yesterday by one run, for the third one-point triumph in three days. The score was 4 to 3. The Ensmen looked like champions in all three of the games, their fighting spirit standing out strikingly as they made late rushes to gain the laurel.

FRENCH COMES THROUGH

Larry French won his own game in a heroic manner in the ninth inning when he unleashed a double to center, scoring Dick Bartell with the winning run. Dick was on second and Al Bool on first

Nick Altrock Says:

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—Don't elect the Athletics to the pennant yet. Before the season is over we will give Connie Mack more wrinkles than a roll of crepe paper, and I still predict in the National loop the Cubs will shake salt on the Robins' tail. They're in a swell position to do it now. Well, I see where old Pete Alexander has joined the Toledo Mud Hens. Since the Phillies released him he has certainly been in circulation. He must have got writer's cramp from just signing contracts alone. The House of David ball team wanted to sign him, too, but Alex couldn't raise the whiskers.

PHILS END SLUMP BY SLICING ROBINS' LEAD

HURLERS STAR IN AMERICAN LOOP FRAY

Associated Press.

Philadelphia's National League Club, one of the most powerful arrays of sluggers in the National League, has been floundering through the season going from bad to worse as pitchers failed to hold the rival batters in check, but every so often the Phillies burst out with an exhibition of hitting that holds forth more than one ray of hope for their fans.

It was a rather dismal crowd that assembled at Baker Bowl yesterday to watch the Phillies swing their bats against the league leading Brooklyn Robins with every prospect of meeting their twelfth straight defeat. Things were different at the end for the Phillies gave an effective demonstration of why they are leading the National League in hitting, and came out with a 12 to 7 triumph.

GET FEW BREAKS

They got a few "breaks" in ending their losing streak for Ray Phelps, who started for Brooklyn was hurt in the second inning and Fred Heimach had to come into the game just in time to meet a five-run rally in the third.

To the Phillies the victory meant only a bit of encouragement, but it was a rather serious affair for the Robins. Instead of increasing their lead over the Chicago Cubs, who again were idle along with Cincinnati, the margin was reduced to two games.

The New York Giants, who seem to be threatening the leaders in a serious way, made a big gain. The Giants blasted out 20 hits against the Boston Braves, and won an 11 to 5 decision. It placed them five games behind the leaders and only three back of Chicago.

The Pittsburgh Pirates did still better with their third straight one-run victory over the St. Louis Cardinals and their fifth successive triumph. They finally moved out of the second division into a tie with the Cards for fourth place as Larry French won his own game with a double in the ninth inning that drove in the deciding run of a 4 to 3 game.

With five games on the card, the American League had one of its days when pitching counted heavily and batting comparatively little. Wes Ferrell, of Cleveland, and Ted Lyons, of Chicago, were the outstanding mound performers, each winning his seventeenth victory of the season. Ferrell had a great duel with Sorrell and Cantrell of Detroit and finally triumphed, 5 to 3, as Eddie Morgan hit his twenty-first home run of the season with two out and one on base in the ninth inning.

LYONS WINS SEVENTEENTH

Lyons held the St. Louis Browns to four hits in the second game of a doubleheader and won it 1 to 0 after Garland Braxton had pitched Chicago to a 10 to 2 victory in the first. Lyons scored the game's only run, taking advantage of two St. Louis errors and the only extra base hit of the game, a double by Watwood, for an unearned tally. Dick Coffman also gave but four hits.

George Earnshaw, of Philadelphia, pitched another four-hit game against Washington, but he developed a streak of wildness in the ninth inning and Mose Grove had to come to his rescue to give the Athletics a 4 to 3 victory and place them eight games ahead of their nearest rivals. The pitchers were about as bad as all the rest in Boston where the New York Yankees downed the Red Sox, 14 to 13, in a game packed full of hits and errors. Lou Gehrig's thirty-third home run made with the bases full in the seventh inning, gave the Yanks the decision although they were outhit, 17-12, and made seven of the game's 13 errors.

BOWEN GETS FOOT INJURY

OSLO, Norway, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Steve Anderson, crack timber-topper from the University of Washington, equalled the world's record of 14 4-10 seconds in winning the 110-meter hurdles event at an international track and field meet here yesterday. Petterson, of Norway, was second and Hague, of Norway, third. Anderson's time equaled the recently accepted standard of Wennstrom, Swedish hurdler.

Pendleton, another American star, won the 200 meters run in 21 2-10 seconds with Nikajima, of Japan, second, and Hagen, of Norway, third.

Reginald (Pete) Bowen, sprint man from the University of Pittsburgh, suffered a slight injury to his foot and did not run in the finals of the 200 meters. Tommy Warne, of Northwestern, won the pole vault with a leap of 13 feet 9 6-16 inches. Nishida, of Japan, was second and Mochizuki, of Japan, third.

The newspapers, commenting on Wednesday's race, call Bowen the meeting's chief star and say he now is the world's best man at 400 meters.

COAST NETMEN IN FINAL

SEABRIGHT, N. J., Aug. 1.—(AP)—All California finals in both men's and women's singles were assured in the annual Seabright invitation tennis tournament yesterday as favorites fell by the wayside in the semi-final round.

Today Ellsworth Vines, Jr., 18-year-old sensation from Pasadena, Cal., will meet his fellow-townsman, Sydney B. Wood, Jr., for the men's title. Tomorrow, Josephine Cruickshank, of Santa Ana, and Mrs. L. A. Harper, of Los Angeles, will fight it out for the women's crown.

Vines scored his second victory in five days over Frank Hunter, of New Rochelle, veteran international and No. 2 in the national rankings, in the semi-final round yesterday, 3-6, 6-2, 8-6. Almost as surprising was Wood's triumph over Clifford Sutter, of New Orleans, by 6-3, 3-6, 6-0.

MARANVILLE'S FATHER DEAD

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Aug. 1, (AP)—Ward E. Maranville, 72, died suddenly at his home here today.

He was the father of Rabbit Maranville, shortstop of the Boston Braves, and former Pittsburgh Pirate star.

Last Saturday Mr. Maranville attended festivities at Boston honoring his son at the Braves-Cardinals' doubleheader.

Mac Smith Breaks Record, Wins Title

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Two record-breaking rounds have enabled MacDonald Smith, veteran scot, to win the Long Island open golf championship for the second straight year.

Until yesterday 70 never had been broken at the Engineers' Country Club, one of the toughest courses in the Metropolitan district, but Smith, at the top of his game, shot a 68 in his morning round and another 68 in the afternoon to hang up a 72-hole total of 278 and win the championship by the decisive margin of eight strokes. Willie Klein, of Wheatley Hills, was second with 286 and Gene Sarazen third, another stroke behind.

Smith's cards for the two last rounds of the championship showed only three 5s. He had nine 3s and a 2. All the others were 4s.

LOCAL FILLY WINS

The 3-year-old Axworth filly, Real Worth, owned by F. R. Evans, president of the Schenley Maitland Club, won the 3-year-old trot for a purse of $630 over the Charles River Speedway, near Boston, Mass., according to a wire from the Ben Avon sportsman yesterday. The chestnut filly was the lone representative from Pittsburgh, but she won in a decisive manner from six other 3-year-olds owned and driven by members of the League of Amateur Drivers Clubs.

Carl Kauffmann Scores National Tourney Site

The Jacksonville (Fla.) course, where the national public links championship will be played next week, is not a championship layout, according to Carl Kauffmann, local star, who now is at Jacksonville preparing to win the national title for the fourth consecutive year.

In a letter to his brother, John, green keeper at Schenley Park, Carl says that the Jacksonville course fairways are so baked and the grass so parched as to make the playing of real championship golf impossible.

WOMEN HOLD TOURNEY AT GREENSBURG

By VERN SWARTSFAGER.

The Women's Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania is holding another of its one-day competitions today, an 18-hole medal play handicap affair at the popular Greensburg Country Club. Play got under way fairly early this morning and indications were that a large field would tee off before the afternoon was over. The woman players are competing for prizes in three divisions, as usual according to handicap.

The women's event is the only tourney of consequence on today's golf menu.

The United States Golf Association has announced the pairings and starting times for the 36-hole qualifying round of the national public links championship Wednesday and Thursday at the Jacksonville, Fla., municipal links.

CHAMP AFTER RECORD

There are no less than 114 qualifiers representing 25 cities in the championship event this year, the pick of the nation's many linksmen being out to challenge the local crownholder Carl F. Kauffmann, who is on the scene of action at this time preparing not only to defend his laurels, but to establish a new record for consecutive victories by winning the gonfalon a fourth time in succession.

Pittsburgh also will be represented by Carl J. Lunden, Mike W. Galido and Andy Sawedko, making up the four-men squad which will go after the Warren G. Harding Trophy, emblematic of the national team championship, which the locals have captured several times. The Steel Cityans also expected to play against the Philadelphia team for the state championship and the Joseph Horne Cup, but the Quaker City does not have an entry in the field this year.

The National public links title play will continue through to Saturday, when the finals will be reached and it is anticipated that Kauffmann will be right on the job to present the James D. Standish, Jr., Cup to the officials in charge, only to have it returned to his possession for another year.

ENTRAIN TONIGHT

The remaining members of the local team, Lunden, Swedko and Galido, will entrain tonight at 10:30 over the P. R. R. for Jacksonville and will be accompanied by Kenneth C. Witherow, local U. S. G. A. public links committeeman. Witherow will not stay for the duration of the tourney, he says, having to return to Pittsburgh on Friday, the day before the finish.

The lowest 32-aggregate scores will qualify in the 36-hole medal grind Tuesday and Wednesday, and if Kauffmann survives that stiffest of tests, he unquestionably will go well into the final rounds. All match play will be at 18 holes except the final which will be 36 holes.

Yesterday a big Boosters' Day stag affair was held at the Valley Heights Country Club, and a Red and Blue Match in the afternoon was followed in the evening by a dinner at which President J. C. Anderson presided. In the team match the Reds defeated the Blues by a score of 17½ to 15½.

The pairings and starting times for the National public links championship follow:

GIZZY DEFEATS COLLINS IN ROUGH GO

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Ray Collins, blond, baby-faced lightweight, of Erie, wore out his Pittsburgh welcome with his exhibition of alley fighting against Battling Gizzy, of Donora, in the 10-round main bout before the largest crowd of the season at Hickey Park, Millvale, last night. He finished on the short end of the decision, and, if he never comes back, it will be soon enough, unless he learns to abide by the rules of the sport.

Round after round, from the first tap of the gong, Collins concentrated on deliberate kidney and rabbit punching, mugging, choking and other unethical tricks, and he wound up the night's work by cold-bloodedly heeling and elbowing a cut that he had opened on Gizzy's right eye in the last round, to the utter disgust of those few patrons whom he had not already alienated from his cause.

CHOKES OPPONENT

Why Referee Al Grayber permitted Collins to get away with his foul tactics as long as he did is a mystery, for the violations of the rules were so flagrant that even the uninitiated could not miss them. It was not until after Gizzy, finding himself being choked in clinch after clinch, with no relief in sight, took the law into his own hands and pushed Collins through the ropes onto the outside platform late in the eighth round that Grayber took cognizance of the situation. When he remonstrated with Gizzy in the latter's corner after the round, Gizzy told him about the choking, and only a couple of punches had been exchanged in the ninth round before Grayber, on the lookout, detected Collins in the act and stopped the bout to warn him.

Forced to cut out his foul tactics at least for the moment, Collins immediately went back on the receiving end, where he had been until he got away with "murder" in the seventh and eighth. Gizzy wound up the fight by lambasting the Erie man all around the ring and won the unanimous decision of the judges and referee. Collins had the edge in only the seventh and eighth rounds, and, considering his fouling, those rounds should have been scored against him.

WEARS OUT WELCOME

It was an exciting mill, but one that did the game here no good. The pity of it is that Collins can box and punch in neat fashion and should be a pleasing performer. He registered a hit when he defeated Johnny Smackey in his local debut, at Duquesne Garden, last spring. In his second appearance here, he won a lucky decision over Andy Andrucci, coasting all of the way after almost knocking out his man at the start. Then came his nauseous exhibition of last night. It will be a long time before he comes back here to fight, if ever. He owes the local fans an apology for his unsportsmanlike conduct.

Gizzy weighed 133½ pounds and Collins 134¾ at 3 p. m.

Billy Brent, Negro, of the Hill, 151, put up a surprisingly strong fight against Young Saylor, Charleroi veteran, 152¾, in the first 10-round bout of the double windup card, extending Saylor to the limit to win. Saylor's nose was bloodied from the second round on and he had to call on all of his experience to come through on top, which he did gallantly.

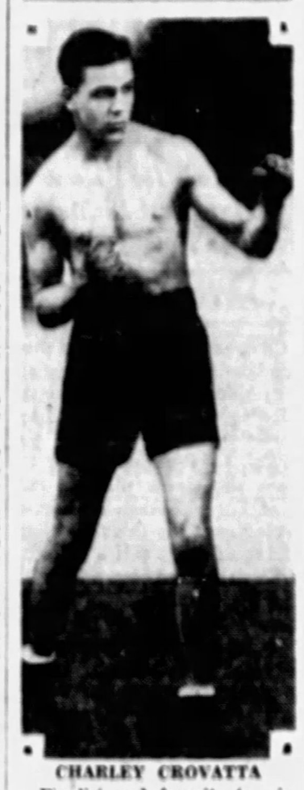
SCHOLES BEATS CARPENTIER

Billy Scholes, of the North Side, 134 pounds, won the referee's decision over U. S. Carpentier, of New Kensington, 131¾, in the second bout, a hard-fought affair. Judge Lou Meininger called it a draw, with Judge Freddie Lux agreeing with Referee Grayber on Scholes, who had the edge with his forcing and harder punching.

Joey Angelo, of Braddock, 128¼, won the referee's decision over Don Frazier, of the Hill, 129, in the opening six-rounder. Frazier was down for a count of eight in the first round and for no count in the third, but came back to drop Angelo for nine and two in the fifth. Judge Lux voted for a draw and Judge Meininger and the referee for Angelo.

Eddie Kennedy alternated with Grayber as referee, and the timers were A. C. Couch and Steve Russell. Harry Klaas did the announcing and Dr. M. R. Goldman was the commission physician in charge.

Finalist



CHARLEY CROVATTA

Finalist and favorite to win the titular honors in the welterweight class of the Golden Gloves amateur boxing tournament under the auspices of the American Legion, which will be concluded in the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, tonight. He hails from Uniontown.

SOCCER CONFAB ON TONIGHT

The Western Pennsylvania Soccer Football Association will hold its annual meeting this evening at its offices on the Boulevard of the Allies. Important business will be transacted at this session, with the election of officers for the coming season to be held.

With some of the last year men retiring from active service, it is assumed new men will be placed in office.

Tomorrow, at Kennywood Park, the annual five-a-side soccer tourney will be held. George Lumsden states that 22 entries have been received, including the Bruells, of Cleveland, famous Western professional club.

George and Ralph Caraffi, former members of many Pittsburgh teams, are expected to be featured in the Clevelanders' lineup. The first round games will be staged at 10 a. m. All teams should be on hand at that time.

SCOTT BRINGS SUIT

TOLEDO, O., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Jack Scott, of the Toledo baseball club, has filed suit for $35,000 against the Yellow Taxicab Company, claiming his pitching arm was injured while he was riding in a cab that figured in a collision last April 25.

GOLDEN GLOVES FINALS ON TONIGHT

Three semi-final bouts and seven finals make up the card for the last night's battling in the Golden Gloves amateur boxing tournament under the auspices of the American Legion Post No. 99, of Braddock, North Braddock and Rankin, to be staged in the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, tonight.

The winners will receive diamond-studded golden glove stickpins and the runners-up plain golden glove pins. A special trophy will go to the winner of the team title.

The men in the ring tonight will be the survivors of an original entry list of 135 individuals, who began battling Thursday night of last week. Further eliminations were held on Friday and Saturday and the finish of the event was carried over to tonight when rain halted the festivities on Saturday.

TWENTY KAYOS SO FAR

Twenty knockouts have featured the tournament so far. The first bout tonight is scheduled for 8 o'clock. Interest centers about the efforts of Lloyd Clements, of North Braddock, to win two titles. He is a finalist in both the middleweight and light-heavyweight classes. The program of bouts:

SEMI-FINALS.

135-pound class—Chuck Torko, Willow Club, vs. Robert Barnes, Homewood A. C.; and Joe Spiegel, Sands A. C., Uniontown, vs. Chuck Graham, Willow Club.

Heavyweight class — George Sloma, Sands A. C., Uniontown, vs. Frank Sombora, Homewood A. C.

FINALS.

118-pound class—Phillip Enzo, Willow Club, vs. Clair Repole, Homewood A. C.

126-pound class — Leon Annis, Sands A. C., Uniontown, vs. Ray James, Willow Club.

Between Rounds

Jackie Pilkington, of New York, will meet Tony Herrera in the 10-round semi-final at the Meyers Bowl next Monday night, their third meeting, in 30 years, and has been hoping for four years. He is a former amateur star and his record includes bouts with Ed Vierra, Emory Cabana, Billy Wallace, Petey Mark, Georgie Day, Nat Rawles, Tackie Reed, Milton Jampol, Freddie Mueller, Johnny Kaufman, Paul Goldstein, Joe Kelo and Johnny Dundee. He has been stopped only once, in the tenth round of his 1929 bout with Billy Wallace in New York, more than a year ago. He won a 10-round decision to Wallace the year before.

The Tom Heeney-Gunnar Farina fight at the Meyers Bowl, August 15, is slated on according to Amico Meyers, manager of the Bowl, despite Heeney's knockout defeat by Tuffy Griffiths in New York Wednesday night.

Carl Carvelli, formerly of Canton, O., boxes Frankie (Kid) Amorin in a 12-round windup at Brooklyn Armory tonight. Bat Jelo and Dennis Golden box the six-round semi bout of a show at the Long Beach (L. I.) Stadium. Primo Carnera is booked for a return engagement with the immigration authorities in Washington today.

A new boxing club will be opened shortly in Erie, to be known as the Keystone A. C. Lewis Krohn will be the promoter.

The Jackie Rodgers-Mike Dundee bout is signed for Hickey Park, Millvale, next Thursday night.

The Twenty-seventh Ward A. C. will hold another outdoor amateur boxing show at its North Side arena next Tuesday night.

Primo Carnera will box a four-round exhibition at the Fouts Brothers' Bowl, East Liverpool, O., next Tuesday night. Six other bouts will be on the card.

C.-I. NINES CLASH

RIECKS SEEK TO END RULE OF LIFERS

By TOM BIRKS

The Commercial and Industrial League swings into the limelight this evening with two big games on tap, both having much to do with the pennant race. At Carrick Park, the Reick-McJunkin nine will make another effort to break the winning streak of Reliance Life by handing the Miller aggregation its first defeat.

This is going to be a tough assignment, but seeing that the Milk boys copped the championship last season, and with many of the players are still with the club, it is possible that Bill Struhlfire and his boys will succeed.

TRADERS MEET MOTORS

The other game finds Carnegie Steel and Mine Safety clashing at Etna. The Steelers are swinging into form and may be the dark horses of the league.

Only one game is scheduled in the Central loop. Soho Traders will entertain Beckman Motors. Johnny Hornyak still has the Traders in the race and a big crowd should be on hand at Moultrie Park.

The City League will flash three games. The North Side Civics will meet Dormont; Stowe Civics will clash with Homewood at the playgrounds and the W. O. W. tangles with Johnny Dunsky's Smilers at Pleasant Valley.

One elimination game in the Class A series will be staged at Springdale this evening. This will find the Crawford Stars meeting Springdale. The presence of the crack Negro outfit will attract a large crowd up the Allegheny River.

Tommy Carson, manager of the Allegheny Collegians, first half champions of the Central League, is looking for games abroad for tomorrow and Sunday with any of the leading clubs in the tri-state district. The former City League champions are having a wonderful season. Call Carson at Cedar 0474.

SMILERS DOWN STOWE

The Pleasant Valley Smilers and Homewood turned in triumphs in the City League last evening. Pleasant Valley defeated Stowe, 8 to 5; Homewood nosed out the N. S. Civics, 8 to 6, and Book Shoe tied J. L. Thomas, 3 to 3.

In the West Penn loop, Verona defeated Whitaker, 7 to 3. The Dan Heeps won over the Jenkins, 11 to 4, and Reliance Life defeated North Bessemer, 8 to 7, in Greater Pittsburgh League games.

Beckman Motors turned back the Cosletts, 5 to 4, in the Central League and Fintex blanked the Lincoln Civics, 6 to 0.

In the Crafton-Ingram Church League, Ingram walloped the Presbyterians, 8 to 3. Duquesne Light turned in a 9 to 5 victory over the Pittsburgh Railways in the Philadelphia Company circuit. Speers overcame an early lead in the Monon Valley League to defeat Charleroi Robins, 10 to 6.

Latrian to Face Pirates at Charleroi

CHARLEROI, Pa., Aug. 1.—Vic Latrian, 25-year-old Monessen recruit, will pitch for the Charleroi Governors against the Pittsburgh Pirates in the exhibition game here next Tuesday.

The introduction of night baseball here on next Thursday evening in the Clarksburg-Charleroi Middle-Atlantic series opener will see Harry Gumbert and Joe Coles, two local district recruits, scheduled for mound duty.

Sport Vignettes

If those Phillies only had the pitching that the Red Sox get and the Red Sox only had the Phillies' hitting strength—in short, if the best points of the teams could be combined, neither would be in last place, where they happen to be, but probably would be leading one of the major circuits . . . . The Phillies make a lot of runs, but their pitchers can't get the other side out, and the Sox pitchers allow very few runs, but the Sox themselves can't get that many, losing more games by one and two runs than any other club in either of the big leagues . . . . That's the way it goes, though. We seldom find perfection in any one group . . . . Billy Stribling seems to have found himself overnight, judging from his work in his last two starts, against Otto Von Porat, whom he knocked out in one round, and Phil Scott, whom he stiffened in two . . . . Many other good ringmen have had this experience . . . . They have served long apprenticeships and suddenly found themselves afflicted with the spark of greatness . . . . Benny Leonard, one of the best lightweights of all time, was just a cream puff puncher until he knocked out Joe Mandot, and then he proceeded to flatten 'em all and win the title . . . . It's the foundation that counts . . . . Perfection in the fundamentals leads to the heights . . . . If Stribling ever attains the title he can trace his rise to the fact that he had a bad left hand the night he boxed Ven Porat and found it necessary to toss caution to the winds and get the fight over with as soon as possible . . . . His aggressiveness took the lantern-jawed Otto by surprise, and Stribling decided to try the system again against Philip . . . . He ought to be a tough hombre to hold in check from now on . . . . The work of Buff Donnelli as freshman football coach at Duquesne University this fall will be watched with interest . . . . "Boof" was a swell fullback for the Dukes, and captain his last two seasons, but he was an even greater soccer star . . . . In fact, he was just about the best soccer player in the amateur ranks in this country while playing for the Heidelberg National champions, especially when it came to booting goals right through the defense of the opposition . . . . Buff's goals went into the net as if shot out of a cannon and it was a wise goalie who got out of the way, thereby saving a leg . . . . Something will have to be done about this young Elsworth Vines, California high school boy, who recently defeated the veteran Frank Hunter to win the Metropolitan tennis title and in the Seabright tournament this week so far has beaten Frank Shields, R. N. Williams and Hunter again to gain the final round . . . . Barring accident, he'll be in the Davis Cup trials next year . . . . Rabbit Maranville, who was given that Day in Boston last Saturday is popping off that Bill McKechnie is the finest manager he has worked for in his entire career and attributes much of his fine success at his age to the encouragement and understanding of Wilkinsburg Bill . . . . He also gives Bill credit for at least an assist on the rejuvenation of George Sisler and the comeback of Pitcher Tom Zachary with the Braves . . . . Al Munro Elias, the famous figger filbert, who is responsible for the weekly averages of many leagues that appear in newspapers throughout the land, was a visitor in town t'other day and was greeted in the Pirates' press box in the following insulting manner: "Here's a hit, there's an error—and over there sits Al Munro Elias." . . . . "Heart is a wonderful thing in sports," said an observer as he saw a remarkably-physiqued young boxer back-pedaling and losing a bout that he easily should have turned in as a victory. "Only a few days ago, I saw a pitcher with a six-run lead let it slip from him because he didn't have the heart to hold it. The fellow who was working against him was a veteran who kept bearing down although behind and finally drew down a win as his reward. The fellow who lacks heart doesn't belong in any competitive sport." . . . . Jennings Randolph, athletic director of Davis & Elkins College, of Elkins, W. Va., is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress from the Second District in West Virginia at the primary to be held next Tuesday . . . . Jennings is quite an orator, and why not? He teaches public speaking as a member of the D. & E. faculty.—HARRY KECK.

backfield coming up from the plebe class. He is putting in the Warner system this fall for the first time. I wish him luck, but don't believe his material is heavy enough or powerful enough to put on Pop's system. Basse may fool us.

Bill Ingram, of the Navy, expects to have one good team of 11 men, but will be shy of replacements. He is banking a lot on Kirn, the unknown, who was "discovered" toward the end of last season.

MEINE READY FOR BRUINS

with one out and many persons within the Oakland Orchard expected the southpaw pitcher to bunt. Like a bolt from the blue Larry wallops a hot drive to the outfield that rolled all the way to the centerfield fence. French completed the circuit of the paths on his drive, but under the scoring rules he received credit for a two-bagger.

Burleigh Grimes shared the slab honors with French. The erstwhile Buccaneer star gave a brilliant exhibition on the mound through seven grueling rounds. Burleigh held the Oaklanders to six hits, he leaving the battle in the eighth when Gus Mancuso batted for him. The Cardinals had a runner on third with two out and one run needed for a deadlock as Grimes' turn at the plate arrived. Gabby Street was loath to lift the veteran, but a pinch-hitter was needed and Mancuso came through with a hit that tied up the fight.

Jim Lindsey relieved Grimes. Bartell drew a pass from Big Jim to start the home half of the ninth. Suhr sacrificed and Bool walked, when French came through with his game-winning hit.

SUHR HITS HOMER

Gus Suhr and Bool gave the game some slugging fireworks in the third when the home team scored twice to overcome a one-run lead owned by the Redbirds. Suhr hit a homer into the right field stands and Bool came through with a triple that stands out as one of the longest drives yet recorded in the history of Forbes Field. Farmer Al's sock just missed clearing the centerfield fence a short distance to the right of the center line. Lloyd Waner scored the catcher on a sacrifice fly. Lloyd later drove in a run on the merit of his speed, he scoring a mate from third with two out when he beat out a tap to Frisch.

The Cardinals made all three of their runs with two out in three separate innings. In Tuesday's game the Redbirds made all five of their runs in five successive rounds after two were out.

lower than that of the Bucs against the Cards, as the Phils have beaten the McGrawites five times.

Kremy Kremer and Larry French hold clean records against the Redbirds, Kremer having beaten them five times and French three times without suffering a defeat. Ervin Brame has downed the Missourians four times and lost to them once. The three other Pirate defeats are charged against Heinie Meine, Glenn Spencer and Jess Petty.

Jack Britton

THEY CAN'T GO on forever in the fight game, and even old Jack Britton has finally been forced to quit. However, he gave Father Time a harder and more stubborn battle than any other fighter of his generation, and in announcing his retirement he closes one of the most remarkable careers in the history of the ring sport. The former welterweight champion will be 45 on October 14, and he has been active in the ring for the amazing period of 26 years, as he started boxing in 1904. His memorable battles with Ted Lewis for the welter title featured his long career. The pair set a record by meeting 18 times without ever being accused of staging an "act." Lewis was the winner when they first clashed for the championship in 1915. Britton grabbed the crown from his rival in 1916, lost it back to him in 1917, regained it in 1919 and kept it until 1922, when he was dethroned by Mickey Walker. Britton won four decisions and scored one knockout, Lewis won three decisions, one contest ended in a draw and nine were no-decision affairs. Britton will not give up the game altogether, but will carry on as boxing instructor for the Downtown Club, of New York.*

We Now Present

By ROY JANSEN

Darrell V. Martin Will Return Soon

Ranging from "Old Black Joe" and other delightful old Southern melodies, to the ultra-modern musical comedy numbers, the Raleigh Revue to be broadcast through WCAE at 10 o'clock tonight, will be a generously spread musical melange. The program will be in two parts featuring Olive Kline, soprano, Phil Ohman and Victor Arden and the Rovers, a male quartet, selections from "The Cuckoos" and some Tin Pan Alley versions of the South.

Lois Bennett, star of many of the Gilbert and Sullivan operettas, will be heard tonight during the musical salute to New York State by the Armstrong Quakers broadcast through KDKA at 10 o'clock tonight. The "West Point March" by Sigmund Romberg, and "Saw Mill River Road" will be dedicated to New York. Miss Bennett will sing "Last Rose of Summer" and a vocal duet with Mary Hopple.

All fatigued with his managerial duties, Paul Miller, of station KQV, leaves Saturday for rest—and plenty of it. "I'm going North, to get cooled off," he said. "Way up North!" "Canada?" we asked. "Well, Cleveland, anyway," he replied.

KDKA presents for the first time Sylvia S. Stein, Pittsburgh girl who has been in the East for three years in concert and recital appearances, at the same time studying with prominent teachers there. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Stein, of Raleigh street, Squirrel Hill, and before going East she appeared frequently as soloist in the Y. M. and W. H. A. concerts. She is a soloist in the Calvary Episcopal Church and also in the Church of the Redeemer. She appears tonight as guest soloist during the Westinghouse band concert broadcast from 6 to 6:30 o'clock.

The "Herd Girl's Dream" is a difficult bit in any language, especially on a zither. Anton Endl swung into the piece the other evening at the WJAS studio, with the thermometer registering 100 degrees. When he twanged the last twing he was informed he had been playing into a "dead" microphone. It was almost the end of Endl, but he bravely played it all through again. Zither players have stamina.

Miss Yettabelle Rosenbloom, of Pittsburgh, will sing two numbers in the regular Friday program of Sybil Young and her debutantes, broadcast from WCAE. A note of interest includes Miss Rosenbloom's appearance during the program as a whistler.

Oh, those fish stories!

But maybe we got it wrong.

George Leatherbury and Jack Buchheit, of KQV studio, and Roy Verret, a friend, were at Conneaut Lake. George had a 19-foot fish pole. He got a bite and yelled to the others, who ran up the bank and started a big fire to cook the fish. Naturally, it turned out to be an old boot or something.

(That's the last fish story!)

Entire List Turns Upward As Specialties Grow Firm; Day's Trading Listless

NEW YORK, Aug. 1. (AP.)—The stock market sank rapidly under a mere featherweight of selling pressure today, until bulls apparently decided that timidity in the face of such liquidation was ridiculous, and by early afternoon began bidding up a group of specialties, which turned the entire list upward.

Utilities developed pronounced weakness, as bears turned their attention to this group on reports of an impending reduction of around 25 per cent in New York City electrical rates. Leading industrials sagged a point or two, but soon attracted support.

Trading was about as dull as any experienced during the past two years, sales during the first two hours falling close to 500,000 shares. Ironically enough, it was announced that the high-speed tickers, permitting rapid reporting of 6,000,000 to 8,000,000-share days, will all be installed by Labor Day.

RALLY IS FEEBLE

The feeble character of yesterday's rally was disappointing to the bull faction, but with many indications that the recession in business has reached bottom, bears lacked courage. Traders generally, however, appear to be awaiting more indications as to the probable scope and duration of the impending seasonal expansion of business before committing themselves extensively to higher prices.

The day's business news continued of an inconclusive by mildly cheerful character. The National City Bank, in its monthly survey, found consumption overtaking production. It pointed to the agricultural situation as the outstanding sore spot, but explained that excessive farm production probably would be nil if the buying power of millions now in want in the world could be improved by better trade.

Wall Street found the analysis of the steel situation by President Grace, of Bethlehem, reassuring, but not of bullish report, for in saying things looked a little better, he frankly added, "very little." The earnings statement of Crosley Radio, showing net loss of approximately $1,000,000 in the first half, gave an indication of the difficulties which the radio industry has weathered.

Despite settlements at the turn of the month aggregating about $600,000,000, the weekly Federal Reserve statement showing a reduction of about $19,000,000 in outstanding credit, and the shipment of $10,000,000 in gold to France, making total exports recently of more than $50,000,000 credit continued fairly plentiful with call money holding officially at 2 per cent. Outside offerings at 1½, however, were soon exhausted.

In the utility group, Brooklyn Union Gas, Consolidated Gas, North American, American Power and Light and American Water Works lost about 3 to 6 points, touching new lows for the latest decline. There seemed to be some fear that the proposed rate reduction in New York might be a signal for similar developments elsewhere.

U. S. Steel, American Can, Westinghouse and Vanadium lost 2 points or so, but rallied by afternoon. The American Tobacco issues were strong, the old stocks gaining 4 points or so.

Portland Has Dignity of Age and Energy of Youth

—By B. C. FORBES—

IN THE WEST, Aug. 1.—The East knows Portland (Ore.) as the City of Roses. It has other claims to distinction besides its bewitching beauty.

Mr. Forbes

Portland resembles a British city. It breathes the dignity of age, solidity, wealth, orderliness, stability. There is nothing suggestive of the boom town. Its people impress you as living rationally. Its newspapers are high-grade. It has palatial banks of a magnitude exceeding the largest in cities twice its size. There is a leisured class possessing culture.

But don't conclude that Portland today is backward, slow, unprogressive, that its love of beauty and refinement and the graces of life is handicapping its forward march. It is very much alive, very alert, very energetic, very ambitious under the leadership of Mayor Baker, whose popularity has maintained him undisturbed in office for about a couple of decades.

FROM AN "Onward Portland" folder are culled these "assured Portland developments"; they are proof that here is another Western city that has not taken fright and gone into a blue funk just because an overdone speculative boom has ended and the national business pace has slowed down temporarily to enable the country to recover its breath.

Five boats to be added to the State's steamship line, cost $20,000,000, giving improved passenger and mail service to the Orient. Lloyd Hotel, costing $3,000,000. A quarter-million Onto Oregon civic advertising campaign, national in scope. Commonwealth building, costing $2,500,000. St. John's bridge, highest long-span bridge in America over navigable water, costing $4,250,000. Tualatin tunnel, estimated to cost between $3,500,000 and $5,000,000. New waterfront market to cost between $500,000 and $1,000,000. Meier & Frank 14-story building covering entire block, $2,000,000. New Port of Portland aviation field, administration building, Mt. Hood tram and new Cloud Cap Inn, $3,000,000 to $4,000,000. Oregon state highway program for 1930, $13,500,000. New Federal building, over $2,000,000. Sanctuary of the Sorrowful Mother, $7,000,000 to be invested. New East Side sports arena, $400,000, and, finally, this item: "Columbia River development; eventually this will reach nearly three hundred million."

IS IT AT ALL astonishing, in view of all these evidences of initiative, confidence and foresight, that Portland can make this claim:

"Portland has made the greatest proportional numerical growth on the Pacific Coast among cities of the first class, Los Angeles alone excepted. Official census shows the population of the metropolitan area to be 437,316. Portland is in keen competition with all cities of America as the wealthiest per capita city in the U. S. A."

P. S.—THE SENSATIONAL overthrow of the Mackenzie King ministry in Canada, accused of having been overfriendly with the United States, and the election of the Bennett anti-American party presages a tariff battle-royal. As told in earlier columns, hostility towards Washington is alarmingly bitter. The voting demonstrates all too convincingly that our northern neighbors mean to resort to extreme measures to keep out U. S. goods and to levy the heaviest possible imposts on Canadian products needed by us.

Our promised "limited tariff revision" is having unlimited regrettable results. Will the President please get his tariff commission busy?

European Motor Makers Press Quota Plan

PARIS, Aug. 1. — European automobile manufacturers again are seeking to restrict American competition by instituting a quota system.

Representatives of French, Belgian, German, Czechoslovakian, Italian and Austrian manufacturing associations are meeting here in secret session. This is the third such meeting, but thus far they have failed to interest their governments in the plan.

The plan is to fix a quota of cars that can be imported from any country high enough to cover imports from any European country, but lower than the present American sales. This technically would not be discrimination.

GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—Corn rose today to the highest level yet on the present market movement. August unofficial monthly crop estimates indicated even greater damage by drought and heat than had been looked for, and showed an average of 329,000,000 bushel curtailment of yield in the last month, compared with the government July 1 forecast. Opening ¼@1½ cents up, corn later scored decided further gains. Wheat sympathized, starting at ¼c decline to ½c advance, and subsequently rising all around.

Corn values jumped up 2¼ a bushel before reactions were witnessed. One leading expert put the probable net loss of the corn crop during July at 343,000,000 bushels and said that the full extent of the heavy toll taken by the prolonged, widespread drought and record heat could not be measured in full until the extent to which tassels have been injured became apparent. It was added that experience had shown cumulative damage followed whenever adequate rainfall and moderate temperatures during July were absent.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(P.)—Cotton opened steady today at an advance of 1 to 13 points and after some little irregularity sold about 15 to 22 points net higher on covering, accompanied by comment on reports of crop deterioration in the Southwest, and talk of a firmer technical position.

Offerings were comparatively light and the new December contract sold up to 12.74c during the early trading, while March advanced to 12.90c. There was a little more cotton for sale at these figures, but the market was steady and within 2 or 3 points of the best at the end of the first half hour. Some selling was reported on relatively easy Liverpool cables and reports of showers in Oklahoma, but these features appeared to be offset by doubt of adequate relief for drouthy conditions and the technical position of the market following recent declines.

The market tapered off after the early advance to 12.74c for new December contracts and the market eased later in the morning with that delivery selling down to 12.65c under realizing. Part of the buying on the early advance was supposed to reflect disappointment over the failure of the weather forecast to hold out more hope of an effective break in the southwestern drouth.

It was attributed chiefly to covering, however, and the market met a little selling later in the morning on the smaller figures from New Orleans placing world's consumption of American cotton for the season just ended at 14,027,000 bales against 15,509,000 including linters. Trading at midday was quiet with the active months 9 to 13 points net higher.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—(AP.)—The curb market began the new month in a state of apathy today. Prices sagged after a firm opening had been extended into small gains, but trading became very quiet and movements of the favorites were narrow and irregular.

The day's news offered nothing to stimulate activity one way or the other and many traders left early for an extended week-end. Utilities were inclined to take their cue from the early decline of the group on the big board, and a few of the less active issues slipped off a point. American Gas and Electric met profit-taking.

Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

Two Producers Brought In by Penn Mex

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

PENN MEX FUEL COMPANY has brought in two new wells at its operations in the Alamo district of Mexico. Paso Real No. 48 showed 2,200 barrels a day and Paso Real No. 50 was completed with a production of 750 barrels.

The company is producing 10,000 barrels a day from 28 wells. The wells are spread over a distance of about eight miles. Breaks in the producing area along this structure have been found but recent drilling to the side of the structure has developed production of higher gravity oil. This leads officials to take an optimistic view of the prospects for proving an exceptionally large area. The company controls about 160,000 acres in the district which is in the state of Vera Cruz.

Sells On Gravity Basis

THE ENTIRE PRODUCTION is sold under contract on a gravity basis for consumption within Mexico. Operations for the present year have been on a very satisfactory basis. The year is expected to show a marked improvement over the earnings of last year.

Penn Mex reported net profit for 1929 of $283,510 which was equivalent to 71 cents a share on 400,000 shares of capital stock. This compared with $1,965,701 or $4.91 a share in 1928.

The decline was due to the appearance of sediment in some of the wells and to unfavorable marketing conditions. Pinching-in of wells to cut production was successful in eliminating the sediment. Recent drilling has restored production and the marketing situation has been corrected. Profits have shown a marked recovery.

To Maintain Dividends

A DIVIDEND OF $1 a share was paid on May 20. It is generally believed that another payment of $1 will be made before the close of the present year. Dividends are not paid in regular periods. Declarations amounted to $2 a share in each of the past two years.

An exceptionally strong financial position was disclosed by the annual report for the year ended December 31, 1929. Cash and accounts receivable amounted to $2,622,890 against all current liabilities of $68,230. Inventory was carried at $509,719. The company has no funded debt or preferred stock.

Drilling Deep Well

DRILLING HAS BEEN STARTED on a deep well in an attempt to find producing sand below the depth reached by existing wells. The well has reached a depth of 2,732 feet. At about 2,200 feet salt water was encountered which, it is estimated, would have come through the hole at a rate of 100,000 barrels a day.

In order to drill through the enormous pressure in this stratum, elaborate equipment was installed. A cellar, 25 feet under the derrick was made. A valve was placed at the top of the hole and a stuffing box was set just below the derrick floor. These were used as a lock to hold back the pressure when the tools were removed from the hole.

It is now planned to place a 16-inch casing to a depth of 2,236 feet to shut out the high pressure salt water. Drilling can then be carried to lower depths without fear of trouble with the pressure in the upper stratum.

In order to handle the enormous equipment needed for the deep drilling, a derrick 123 feet high was built. The 22.5-inch bit was constructed to leave a core in the center so that the formations can be studied.

HEARST STOCK TERMED FINE INVESTMENT

Expert Sees Chance for Big Earnings in Safe Issue; Growht in Revenues Cited

By LEWIS HANEY.

Director New York University Bureau of Business Research and Former Economist of Federal Trade Commission.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—After a careful study of the new stock offered by Hearst Consolidated Publications, Inc., I am glad to say that I consider it a desirable investment. Not only is it a sound issue, but it offers certain desirable features in the way of profit-sharing which will appeal to investors who desire a chance to make money through an appreciation in price.

In the first place, the 7 per cent preferred stock of Hearst Consolidated Publications is safe.

The business is a long-established, growing one. It includes such outstanding newspapers as New York Evening Journal, Chicago Evening American, Detroit Times, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, San Francisco Examiner, San Francisco Call-Bulletin, Oakland Post-Enquirer, Los Angeles Examiner, Los Angeles Herald, Seattle Post-Intelligencer, together with the great American Weekly.

REVENUES GROW

Thus it is territorially well diversified. It centers in the great metropolitan areas, and may logically be expected to grow with them.

Incidentally, there are valuable tangible assets in the shape of real estate and equipment. The plants of these companies are modern, and most of them quite new.

Speaking of growth, the figures for the past four years show an uninterrupted increase in gross revenues from $64,264,000 in 1926, to $85,273,000 in 1929.

The preferred stock is "preferred," both as to earnings and assets (in case of dissolution).

It is "cumulative," which means that if a dividend were ever passed, that amount would remain payable. Nothing can go to the common stock until all dividends are fully paid on the preferred.

But it seems very improbable that this safeguard will ever be needed, because the preferred dividend is only a small part of total net earnings. The net increased from $10,000,000 in 1926, to $12,854,000 in 1929. It has averaged well over three times the requirements for preferred dividends.

HIGHER VALUE SEEN

In addition to safety, there is the chance to share in any extra earnings. After the common stock gets $1.75 a share, the preferred stockholders share with them in any additional dividends, up to 3 per cent a share. This feature is attractive. If the business continues to grow and prosper, the preferred stockholders may find themselves getting a good deal more than 7 per cent.

The bare chance of this will give a higher market value to the preferred stock.

Similar 7 per cent preferred stocks are now selling between 110 and 120 and yield only about 5.7 to 6 per cent. The new Hearst issue is being brought out at par ($25) and this yields 7 per cent. I can see no reason why it should not correspondingly sell above 30—perhaps up to 35.

Note, too, that this issue is being offered to Hearst employes. A company does not sell stock to employes unless it is good, and most such stocks have been very good. This together with the fact that the stock comes out during a period of deflation, makes me think that the terms have been made very fair and attractive.

Earnings of Railroads Should Improve in Second Half Year.

Earnings of the railroads in June were unsatisfactory, and caused no surprise. However, many believe that the carriers will make a better showing in the final six months of the year, particularly as comparisons are to be made with periods in 1929 when revenues were decreasing. Maintenance charges should be smaller in the coming months, and these will have some influence on the statements to be issued, especially so far as the net results are concerned. A moderate amount of investment buying has come in the standard rails from time to time during recent recessions.

Coca Cola reported a profit of $4,332,000 in the quarter ended June 30, comparing with $2,849,000 in preceding quarter and $3,927,000 in the corresponding quarter of last year. Six months' profits were $7,182,000, compared with $6,491,000 in the first half of last year. Due to unusually hot weather so far favorable earnings in the third quarter are likely.

Copper producers look for higher metal prices before the end of the year. Therefore, they believe the low-cost producers will be able to ma

DAILY TRUE STORY

'Buttons' Davis

"I reckon that's Clay."

Mrs. Jackson shaded her eyes and peered down the slope to the rickerty landing in Cottonwood Cove, where a young man stood astern in a battered old bateau, smoking a cob pipe and lazily sculling the ancient craft to shore.

Mandy, Mrs. Jackson's eldest daughter, never missed a stroke at the barrel churn, but a brighter color flashed in her tan cheeks.

Mr. Jackson, sitting on the steps of the gallery, complacently surveying his score of black shoats grubbing for acorns under the swamp oaks, turned his head and scowled down on the river where the evening sun had turned it to a dazzling orange hue.

"I don't hone much fer his comp'ny," he drawled.

"He ain't er comin' fer to see you, Pap," Mandy spoke up spiritedly.

But she continued to work the churn plunger with the same smooth rhythm. It would be in about five minutes.

"I ain't any too eager fer him to be a comin' to see you," her father replied.

"Boys are bounden to travel to visit up with comely gals," Mrs. Jackson reminded him.

"Same as you journeyed fer to see Maw," Mandy put in, with what she considered clever diplomacy.

"I wan't so dog-gone lazy I couldn't keep up a ten-acre place—that thar Clay Davis is so danged lazy—"

"Hush up," Mrs. Jackson said, in her soft drawl, "it don't go fer t. mean Mandy has ter marry up with him."

"In co'se she's got more sense, but when this Clay Davis keeps l..fin' 'round Mandy it keeps th' more likely boys away, like Pete Burgess, 'r Sime Jennifer—them's right smart boys, up an' doin' with money in th' bank."

"Paw" Jackson arose slowly and leaned against the gum tree bole to wait the coming up the path of Clay Davis.

Clay Arrives

"Howdy," he said as he turned in at the landing.

"Howdy, Clay," Jackson answered, affably.

Clay started to get out at the landing.

"Wouldn't go up, Clay—takin' turns is th' way we done, an' Sime Jennifer's up thar, settin' with Mandy tonight."

"That so? Guess I won't go up," Clay answered, and Jackson couldn't detect the least emotion in his good-natured face.

"I wouldn't," grunted Jackson.

Clay sat in his boat and watched Jackson work at the landing which made the old man nervous. He didn't want to work any more and he couldn't very well quit, with Clay there, as it would too plainly show that his repairing work had been merely an excuse to be at the landing when Clay arrived.

Father Angry

Mandy and Sime, on the gallery, were talking without animation and Mandy was watching Clay and her father. When she saw Clay shove off and scull back, she sighed. It meant that her father was dead set against Clay.

The moment Clay's old boat disappeared around the sycamores that leaned out worse than any tower of Pisa, Jackson dropped his work and came up to the house. He brought out a wicker-covered jug and poured some moonshine for Sime and himself.

Sime mentioned that he had his old hill pasture cleared and ready to cultivate.

"Well, sir, Sime," Jackson told him, "that's right smart of you. It reminds me—when Mandy, here, gits married up I'm a givin' her th' two best plowin' mules in Lee County."

"Don't want no mules," Mandy snapped at him.

"Good plowin' mules is worth a heap—of course you want 'em, Mandy," Sime told her.

Mandy stared down the river cove and wished her eyes wouldn't smart so.

Jackson went inside, after he gave Sime another drink, nudging the young man clumsily. Jackson hoped the moonshine would give him Dutch courage.

"When you and him goin' to be married up?" he asked.

"Never!" snapped Mandy.

"Ain't he spoke?"

"Yes, and I spoke back—I said no."

"I reckon I'm a-runnin' my family—you had no call fer to say him no—I'll see him tomorrer an' tell him you meant yes—"

"But, Paw—"

"More'n that—I'll have Parson Willger over an' Sime will have th' papers—you'll be married up to Sime tomorrer evenin' and have yourself a good home!"

Mandy said no more. When Paw Jackson said "Shet" he meant just that.

Mandy went up to her room while Jackson turned in with his wife in the downstairs room. He told his wife what was to happen next day and from the tone of his voice she knew better than to protest, but she was disappointed. She liked the shiftless, handsome, lovable Clay Davis, and she could understand why Mandy loved him.

The next day Jackson drove over to Sime Jennifer's place in his little truck—which was all the car he owned. Sime was delighted at the news that Mandy had changed her mind.

Marries Davis

Jackson went over to the courthouse with Sime and then to see the parson. It was late afternoon when he got home.

"Tell Mandy to git herself in her Sunday dress," he ordered.

"She's gone up Laurel Hill with a bucket, after berries for pie," Mrs. Jackson informed him.

By sundown, Jackson was furious because Mandy hadn't returned.

And then the Luther boy came over with a note. It was from Mandy. It informed her father that she was then Mrs. Clay Davis and on that account she didn't believe the proposed wedding party he had planned would be much of a success.

Jackson took down his squirrel rifle and went down river.

Clay Davis owned 10 acres along the river. Jackson saw lights in the Davis house and heard music. As he approached the place, Hank Birgess stepped out, greeted him and deftly took his rifle away from him.

"Welcome to th' party," Hank said. "Yore wife just arriv' with the Youngers in their car—Button Davis is shore having a great chivaree fer his bride."

"Button Davis. Who's Button Davis?"

"Yore new son-in-law. We named him that tonight.

"We call him 'Button' 'cause in th' last four years he's been secretly shippin' clamshells to a factory up in Saint Looey, an'—"

"Clam shells? Are you drunk——"

"Yore son-in-law has got him more than $10,000 in a Saint Looey bank right now—you see he discovered how they makes these here pearl buttons outen clam shells!" Hank Birgess leaned over and whispered, because they never cuss where women folks might hear. He said, "Ain't that a hell of a sight better'n farmin'?"

Jackson allowed that it was. He enjoyed himself thoroughly at the wedding party.

Defends Clay

"Paw, you let Clay alone," Mandy warned.

"A gal," Jackson went on, shaking his head at his daughter, "that's got sense don't marry up with a boy that spends his time fishin' an' scoopin' up fresh-water clams when his farm land's goin' to rack an' ruin—and Mandy's got sense."

"I reckon she has, Mr. Jackson," Clay answered. He stood up so as to pull down a few sun-cured leaves of tobacco hanging from a gallery rafter. He rubbed these in his palms and filled his pipe.

"Well, buddy, I was jest a-tellin' ye."

Clay Davis lighted his pipe and sat down on the steps again.

This was as far as Paw Jackson could go, without violating his hospitality. He went around back to get his live stock out to the watering trough.

"Yore Paw don't seem to be so turrible crazy 'bout me, Mandy," Clay said, as she sat down beside him and put her strong, capable hand on his arm.

"Maw likes you, right smart, Clay."

They sat there until ten o'clock. Mandy walked down to the boat with him in the moonlight.

"By tunket," Jackson said, "it looked to me like he kissed her afore he got into his boat!"

The next night Jackson became very industrious, mending the old river landing.

Sime Jennifer had arrived at the Jackson place in his shiny new car. Jackson was aware of it because he had asked young Jennifer to make the visit.

Clay Davis appeared around the bend, sculling his old boat.

THE BUNGLE FAMILY — Kind Words for Wealth — By Tuthill

WHAT A WONDERFUL EXPERIENCE IT WAS TO HAVE DINNER ON THAT BEAUTIFUL YACHT. SUCH NICE PEOPLE. SO ARISTOCRATIC. THAT'S THE LIFE. AND PEGGY I THINK YOU MADE A FINE IMPRESSION ON MR. EL DORADO.
HE CERTAINLY DIDN'T MAKE A GOOD IMPRESSION ON ME WHEN HE TALKED TO THAT POOR SAILOR WHO CAME TO THE UPPER DECK.
WELL PEGGY I DIDN'T EXACTLY LIKE THAT EITHER BUT WHEN YOU HAVE JUST OODLES OF HELP YOU HAVE TO DO A LOT OF THINGS THAT DO NOT SEEM JUST PERFECT.
FOR A MOMENT I THOUGHT MR. EL DORADO WOULD CARRY OUT HIS THREAT TO THROW THAT POOR SAILOR OVERBOARD.
PEOPLE SAY A LOT OF THINGS THEY DON'T MEAN, PEGGY. A MOMENT AFTER THAT AFFAIR MR. EL DORADO SMILED AND CHATTED AS THOUGH NOTHING HAD HAPPENED. THAT PROVES HE JUST HAS A HASTY TEMPER.
TEMPER IS RIGHT. HIS EYES WERE A SORT OF GREENISH COLOR
I'D HATE TO HAVE TO WORK FOR A MAN LIKE HIM. HE WAS SO CRUEL LOOKING.
PEGGY, THERE ARE TWO SIDES TO EVERYTHING. IF WE OWNED A BIG LUXURIOUS YACHT I KNOW THE HELP WOULD GET ON OUR NERVES, TOO. MILLIONAIRES HAVE A LOT OF THINGS ON THEIR MINDS, PEGGY. I DON'T BELIEVE IN LOOKING DOWN ON THEM JUST BECAUSE THEY MAKE A MISTAKE NOW AND THEN.

LITERARY NOTE

This is Professor Dashaway Doakes, of Gimlet College (Michigan,) who has returned to America after spending five days in research at Stratford-on-Avon. Professor Doakes says he will immediately begin work on his ten-volume thesis to prove that the works of Shakespeare were not written by Shakespeare but by another person of the same name.

Undermining of Homes Demands Legal Relief

The situation suddenly thrust upon public notice by the abominable threat of the Pittsburgh Coal Company to remove supporting pillars of coal from under Mt. Lebanon homes unless the property owners buy the supports at 75 cents a ton is, of course, no new thing, and there is neither reason nor excuse for becoming panicky over it. Parts of other nearby communities have been undermined for years, and there have been not a few cases in Allegheny County in which surface lands over coal operations have sagged and houses have had to be propped up. The anthracite region has suffered from the same condition to a much greater extent.

Mt. Lebanon, fastest growing and one of the most attractive of our residential suburbs, will overcome this menace to its welfare if the people will face the issue squarely. On the other hand, if it is ignored, on the mistaken theory that open discussion of the matter is not a good thing for the township and it would be better to hush it up, some of the householders are liable to come to grief.

The intolerable situation calls for legal or legislative relief or both, and it speaks well for the alertness of the community that action is already promised in the General Assembly as well as in court. It must be admitted that previous efforts of the same sort, made by the cities of the anthracite region, have not been successful. But in drawing up the new measures the proponents will be able to profit by the mistakes made by their predecessors in the movement.

It is unthinkable that there is no way in which a community like Mt. Lebanon can protect itself from the threat of a rapacious corporation like the Pittsburgh Coal Company.

Let's Get Rid of Our Undesirable Aliens

Poor Uncle Sam Has Enough Home-Grown Troubles to Keep Him Busy.

We have tightened up our immigration laws. It isn't so easy for undesirable aliens to get into the United States.

But our deportation laws are still full of holes.

Tens of thousands of extremely undesirable aliens are finding it easy to STAY in this country—and that is costing big-hearted Uncle Sam a pretty penny.

It costs huge sums of tax money to maintain these aliens in asylums, prisons, poorhouses. It costs MORE than money to fight the activities of foreign gangsters and racketeers. Too frequently it costs HUMAN LIVES.

But when we try to get rid of this alien riff-raff we run into a labyrinth of legal red tape designed to protect the alien at the expense of United States citizens.

We need to cut through that mass of red tape.

We need to tighten up our deportation laws just as drastically as we tightened up our immigration laws. When Congress convenes again it should tackle that job. In the meantime intelligent American citizens should work for the passage of a law providing for the summary deportation of all aliens who are undesirable for any sound reason.

Uncle Sam has enough DOMESTIC troubles, manufactured right here at home.

He has to worry about the Volstead law, creating criminals in wholesale lots. He has to worry about unemployment. He has to worry about the alarming increase in narcotic addiction. He has to worry about the terrible increase in the burden of caring for public charges in asylums and almshouses.

He should NOT have to worry about imported foreign troubles.

The thing to do is to DEPORT THEM.

But the United States has always dealt gently with the aliens within its borders. That has been part of a fine tradition—the tradition of giving sanctuary to political exiles, of offering a haven of liberty to the oppressed people of other countries.

We are proud of that tradition. We should maintain it.

But offering a haven to gangsters, racketeers, narcotic addicts and peddlers, the physically and mentally diseased—that is SOMETHING ELSE again, something DANGEROUS to the welfare of this nation.

In the last few years Congress has passed many fine, useful laws regulating the entry of undesirables into the country. The alien law of 1924, providing for the deportation of aliens who give false statements at entry; the Jones-Miller law of 1922 providing for the deportation of aliens caught smuggling narcotics across the border; the Johnson act of 1924, providing for the medical examination of aliens seeking entry—these are all good laws as far as they go.

But they DON'T GO FAR ENOUGH!

We should have the right to deport aliens who become public charges AFTER they enter.

At present we cannot do that unless we can prove that the causes leading up to delinquency originated within five years of their entry. So we have in our midst a horde of aliens, impossible as citizenship material, who prey upon this country, who burden it with taxes, who break its laws—and who defy us to put them out.

Many of them entered the country by smuggling themselves across the border. But only recently were aliens entering through regular channels provided with certificates showing that they were legal residents. So under present laws it is almost impossible to distinguish between aliens who are here legally and those who are here illegally. Compulsory registration of all aliens would change that.

This country welcomes honest, hard-working aliens—the kind that become good citizenship material. While tightening up on the undesirable aliens in this country, it would be highly desirable for the government officials to use more care in admitting aliens to citizenship. As the law is at present administered, it is entirely too easy for applicants to become citizens. It should be made more difficult.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

High-Proof Forest Fire

There is something about New York subway air that is fascinating once it gets used to you.

Atmosphere in the subways is the richest concoction of clam chowder known to science. It is not the fault of the transportation companies because any underground passage is a natural oven during June, July and August.

"Bugs" Baer

The subway is the only way to travel in Manhattan if you want to get anywhere and if you like your ears crisp.

The fans don't help much because they aggravate the air and increase its high wave frequency.

We think the smartest bit of housekeeping was accomplished by a lady passerver yesterday.

She sat in the subway with a pound of butter in her lap. Then her husband threw cracker crumbs at her.

She fried evenly all around.

But that's nothing compared with the Blue Ridge Mountains. A forest fire broke out in them there hills. A forest fire at its best is rather embarrassing to a tourist whose credentials are all printed on celluloid cards.

Add a forest fire to a heat wave in July and you have a grand slam in steam-heated climate. All you need to make it an eight-hour day is a raccoon coat and wrist warmers.

But if that whip wasn't long enough they added a snapper to it. Every mile or so the fire met a moonshine still. If you cannot figure the result then your imagination went on a vacation and forgot to take you along.

The minute the flame reached the sequestered filling station the moonshine still went three octaves above boom.

The result was that the mountaineers fled from one still to another in a very inquisitive panic.

It rained alcohol that had been aged in the suburbs, followed by north-easterly showers of kegs. We have tasted the boiler compound that is brewed in the bottle orchards of the high places of the world.

It tastes like the sparkling end of a comet. You have a better chance of surviving if you go into executive session with the Riffs.

There isn't any government bureau in the world that could forecast that kind of boiling weather. It got so fierce that Virginia wildcats tried to pass the entrance examinations for the Richmond zoo.

The only good result was that the exploding stills just naturally blew that forest fire into another state.

When the forest rangers got there all they had to do was to refuse admission to late customers.

JONSONG'S SUMMIT ATTAINED

By Archibald Henderson

In two groups, on April 6 and 7, respectively, the greatest expedition of mountain climbers ever assembled started off from Darjeeling to attempt the conquest of Kanchenjunga. In these articles has been told the story of the expedition and of the failure to conquer Kanchenjunga on account of avalanches. But the party achieved a great triumph, nevertheless. Balked in the attempt to scale Kanchenjunga, the effort was next made to climb to the summit of Jonsong Peak, the northerly outpost of Kanchenjunga.

To attain this end, which was crowned with success, it was necessary to "negotiate" Jonsong La pass. To the south is Kanchenjunga, on the Bengal side; to the north is mysterious Tibet. The magnitude of the effort is shown by the fact that this year's party had 250 loads and 80 porters to carry them.

Jonsong Peak, although inferior in altitude to its giant neighbor, Kanchenjunga, truly one of the monarchs of the district. It is 24,340 feet high; its summit is broader and more accessible than Kanchenjunga. Jonsong towers above all the other peaks within sight. It is what the mathematician calls a relative maximum. It is pre-eminent in the district where Nepal, Tibet and Sikkim converge.

Although others have climbed to altitudes several hundreds of feet higher than Jonsong, this is the highest mountain summit ever attained by man. The members of the party, comprising climbers of five nations, were Prof. G. O Dyhrenfurth, his wife; H. Hoerlin, Ulrich Wieland and Dr. H. Richter, all from Germany; Marcel Kurz and H. Duvanel from Switzerland; E. Schneider from Austria, Frank S. Smythe from Great Britain and Enrico Gasparri from Italy.

The difficulties the party had to surmount, the hardships to endure, are almost unbelievable. Steps had repeatedly to be cut in the solid ice, hundreds of them—difficult and grilling work in high altitudes. Sometimes an ice pick, suddenly driven into the ice, was all that held the slipping climber from being precipitated to death, far below. Ice picks, straight at the beginning, were almost semi-circular at the end. The surface rocks were constantly slipping, and often falling great distances with tremendous force. The most implacable and terrible adversary was the blizzard, which blinds and numbs.

The day was wonderfully clear. Perhaps 200 miles away over the brown Tibetan plains to the northeast rose a range of huge snowy peaks in the direction of Chinese Turkestan. At this distance they seemed to rival Everest. To the southwest the whole country was covered by the cloudy pall of a monsoon, above which the summits and peaks rose like an archipelago. Kanchenjunga was smothered in new snow, and from this distance its northern facets looked more unassailable than ever.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

There are 3,649,756 letters saying: "My husband doesn't make me happy. What shall I do about it?"

Corra Harris, that wise, rich soul has written the perfect answer to that plaint.

"Every wife," says Mrs. Harris, "is the keeper of her husband, and is more responsible for their mutual peace and happiness than he is."

And immediately, if not sooner, I can hear Tillie the Toiler say: "What hooey? Why should I be any man's keeper even if I'm married to him? Haven't I had enough punishment keeping bosses smiling pretty for the last 10 years, without getting myself responsible for mutual peace and happiness with some peevish husband?

"And why should husbands be peevish, anyway? Why should a big grown-up man have to have his wife as a keeper? Why can't he manage to consume his own smoke without some woman petting him along?

"Maybe that stuff went when Mrs. Harris was a girl—when women had to marry to eat. Then if you didn't like your husband's pouts you were just outta luck. But nowadays there are just about a million easier ways of earning your three pers than by marrying some sorehead. If I gotta rassel a living that way I'll stay in an office where a girl gets paid for grief."

That's Tillie's side of it—Tillie's tired, tight way of reasoning after weary office years. And if you're a working girl yourself you may sympathize with Tillie rather than with Corra Harris. Yet Mrs. Harris is right. Even for the selfish ends of the Gimme Girl, she's right.

A wife is her husband's keeper. Don't ask me why husbands need keeping, or why husbands may pout and wives mustn't. I don't know. I didn't invent natural history and I refuse to be responsible for it. I only know that husbands do pout that the female of the species was so constituted that she can stand it—if she will.

For every woman is two things to her husband. She is his wife. And she is his mother. She is his wife in order to love him. And she is his mother in order to live with him. And if she has the sense God gave a gooseberry, she'll never drop the mother role.

For job, or no job, a woman's happiness depends on her husband as much in 1930 as it ever did. Tillie can, it is true, find freedom and funds in a job. But she cannot find the priceless possessions of love and pride and deepening content which only marriage brings. And she can only find these things in marriage, if she brings to the handling of her home and husband, the same common sense which she brought to her office work.

The stenog who lets office irritations get her goat and won't bother to keep the boss in a good humor is a sap.

BUT THE WIFE WHO LETS HOME IRRITATIONS GET HER GOAT AND REFUSES TO BE RESPONSIBLE FOR HER HUSBAND'S HARMONY, IS AN ABSOLUTE FOOL.

FOR TILLIE THE MISSIS HAS INFINITELY GREATER TREASURE AT STAKE THAN TILLIE THE TOILER—

AND IT'S UP TO HER TO MAKE GOOD.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

The kids sometimes get funny ideas about what the grown folks are trying to teach them. Kids often bring home kinda twisted stories from Sunday school because they don't always understand the words and phrases they hear out of the Bible. There was a kid that was learning a lot about the Old Testament at Sunday school. He had heard about the Prodigal Son and was telling his mother the story when he got home.

"The worst thing about it," he says, "was when the old man hurt his throat."

"So?" says his mother. "I don't seem to remember about any throat trouble."

"Yeah, but there was. The dad, running out to meet the kid that come home, hurt his throat. See, it tells about it here in the book. I can prove it to you."

And he pointed out in the story where it said that the father saw his son coming and run out and "fell on his neck."

Miracle

How marvelous, how more than strange
That you and I should meet
Out of a world of chance and change,
A myriad hasting feet!

We might have passed so lightly by,
With earth's demands obsessed,
No touch of hand, no glance of eye—
We might have never guessed.

There lies a miracle in this!
Though half the world apart,
You came one day to claim my kiss,
I waited for your heart.

How marvelous, how strange it seems
That it was thus decreed,
With love as perfect as our dreams
Each met the other's need!

It seems a miracle to bring
Our feet so far, and yet
It would have been a stranger thing
If we had never met!

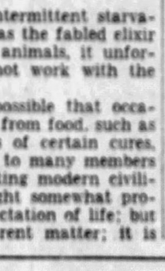
THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

The reduced worms are different in proportions from adults; their shape is like that of young worms. They look rejuvenated. To see whether they not only looked young but had really become young again, the following experiment was undertaken by Prof. Child, of Chicago:

Two lots of full-grown worms were taken of a species which normally reproduces sexually by a form of fission. One lot was regularly fed and grew and reproduced in due course. The others were starved until quite small and then fed until they reached their original size.



H. G. Wells

By this means they were kept between definite limits of size, while the other lot ran through 12 generations—a period which, if translated into human lives, would take us back to the Elizabethan age.

Meanwhile, those on half-time starvation had never reproduced at all, had remained the same individuals throughout, and had shown no signs of progressive aging. Whenever they were large, they were as old as ordinary worms of that size, whenever they were made small they were as young as ordinary young worms.

If we chose to take the trouble, we could doubtless keep a single flat-worm going up and down the hill of life and never transgressing a certain limit of age for periods which would make Methuselah look ephemeral.

The actual experiment has not been tried on other species, but we have every reason to suppose that it would succeed with any organism which while living on itself can keep a just proportion between its various tissues.

Such ought to be the case with sea-anemones up to the time when they absorb their tentacles, with certain worms, and even the highest insects in their growing stages, for starved beetle larvae can shrink almost as much as Planarians.

But if the intermittent starvation can serve as the fabled elixir vitae to lower animals, it unfortunately will not work with the higher.

It is quite possible that occasional holidays from food, such as form the basis of certain cures, would do good to many members of our over-eating modern civilization and might somewhat prolong their expectation of life; but this is a different matter; it is because their bodies are cluttered up with stored food and has nothing to do with rejuvenation.

Only two methods have yet been found to work with higher animals—one based on gland-grafting, the other on diet. However, this latter is rather a prevention of growing old than a return to youth.

If different proteins are used separately as the main or sole source of nitrogen in the diet, it is found that while some are altogether useless, there are others which contain all the amino-acids (the chemical units of which proteins are built up) needed both for maintenance and growth, and others on which the animal can maintain its weight and health, but not grow. Such a one is zein, one of the proteins of maize.

Young rats fed on this zein diet have been kept at half-weight until long after the time at which rat-growth is normally over, and yet begin to grow again perfectly well when put on normal diet. One may presume, though the experiment has not yet been tried, that they could be kept both small and young for a time well exceeding the normal life of their species by prolonging the zein dietary.

It would certainly be interesting to try a similar experiment on human beings, but it would not be easy, and it may be doubted whether any growing boy or girl would be willing to endure the monotony of the diet even to secure an extra 20 years of existence. And even if it were feasible, this would be mere retardation, a holding-up of our developmental processes, not rejuvenation.

Finally, we come to what the daily press usually refer to as "gland" experiments, although most glands have no connection with rejuvenation.

Steinach was the first to attack the problem. He reasoned as follows: The most obvious sign of old age in mammals is the loss of sexual power and the failure of the sex-instinct.

We know that the ductless glands together form an interlocking system. If the reproductive hormone fails, will not the others suffer? And will they not be stimulated to renewed activity if a new supply is provided.

Abroad With A New Yorker

By O. O. McIntyre

COLOGNE.—First crack out of the box in Germany we ran afoul of a left-over Prussian petty officer with a shaved square head. Near Wesel he was in the middle of the road, helmeted and roped with gold a gutteral Goliath in need of a David. I shivered in the back seat, wishing he were on our side.

Our cars were labeled with the "F" of France. He demanded everything from passports to a sample of dandruff, rushed up and down like a hydrophobic dog until I thought the war had begun all over again. Finally he hopped into the lead car and escorted us to the town, caboose, a portrait of swollen rage.

There we paraded like dumb sheep before the local burgomaster, who, in contrast, was as polite as a dancing teacher. It developed one of the chauffeurs, a placid young Holland Hans, had no local driver's license. It was straightened out after two hours, during which the entire village dropped around to gape and see the fun.

At Duisbourg, the next stop, we dined at the new three million dollar hotel, designed completely in the modernistic mode from facade to ash trays by one man. Afterward we began the leisurely journey along the Rhine, halting at dusk for a moment to see the bustling city of Dusseldorf.

We reached Cologne at midnight, dog tired but thankful not to have spent the night in durance vile. At 6 a. m. we were aroused by the clanging chimes of the celebrated Cologne cathedral across the street from our hotel—the Dom. It produced the lead roar of a triple dose of quinine.

A big fete day was on and the cathedral steps were massed with surpliced choir boys, nuns and bare-headed priests, holding aloft crosses. Out of Cologne's 800,000 population, 85 per cent are of the Catholic faith. From a flowered and pebbled hotel portico we watched proceedings.

Cologne is the home of the perfumed concoction eau de Cologne, and has a history stained with the blood of religious conflict. I exploited my German on a 14-year-old hotel page boy. He ventured modestly: "I speak a little English." He spoke better English than I—which, come to think of it, is a high in left handed compliments.

The famous Rhine is an unruffled ribbon of green. On its cowling hillsides are the castle ruins of feudal barons, and every few miles a quaint village, outlined like those fluted and frosted ginger cakes of years agone. For miles the bowl-shaped banks are a patch-work of vineyards for the stupendous output of wines. It is the longest river in Germany, and alive with shipping. Along footpaths where nature-loving students, some with tiny feathered hats of the Tyrol, pursuing the custom of learning their country afoot and pitching a pup tent wherever night falls.

A brand new passenger packet churned by bearing the name "Kaiser Wilhelm II. Many streets, hotels and cafes also bear his name—a name that has not been scratched out, at least along the Rhine. At Bonn, near Wiesbaden, we passed the modest cottage of Beethoven.

As we swung into Bingen I began to recite with gestures and to the utter boredom of everybody "Bingen, Fair Bingen on the Rhine," just as I did at the Gallia Academy, years ago. Bingen sidewalks were crowded with children arm in arm and six in a row, German fashion, skipping and singing home from school. On one Bingen doorstep was a long and languid lady dachshund with whom Billy flirted outrageously, squatting so firmly on his haunches I had to yank him up and carry him away.

What interests me more is that German porters wear green aprons, magazines and newspapers are displayed and sold in hotel elevators, and all motor signs are yellow and black because German efficiency discovers the color combination easiest to read.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

You'd like to reduce expenses but can't see how in your position.

This sort of eternal worrying about finances ought to result in some sort of satisfactory solution.

You inaugurate petty economies, but some way new avenues for spending money open up faster than you can cut down the bills.

Your bank balance has dwindled at the end of each year to practically zero.

You are holding your social position at the cost of a substantial bank account and freedom from worry.

Curtailments that would not deprive your family of comforts but would eliminate the scale of entertaining you do, are considered by you, but you have not the stamina to carry out the plans you contemplate.

Why not an economy schedule for one year?

Why not work for a little money ahead and a feeling of greater security?

Break away from this continual struggle to meet your obligations by determined cutting down of unnecessary expense.

It is the only way you can get together a "nest egg."

And wouldn't it be worth the effort to rid yourself of the worry of being at the end of your bank account each month?
